War? Heaven Forbid.
Attacking Our Dollar.
Spain and the Church.
Your Power Plant.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

NO BETTER NEWS from Asia. War begins to look unpleasantly inevitable. China's minister in Tokio has stopped talking to the Japanese foreign minister, the League of Nations is marking time, like the soldier in the pantomime.

Old Uncle Sam, as usual, is being pushed to the front. It is actually announced that he will share in the League's deliberations, although the people of this country have voted by gigantic pluralities against any such meddling.

In the end he will be told: "You pull out the chestnuts."

MEANWHILE THE civilized world deplores the sad possibility of war, while the business world discusses its business possibilities.

Wheat and cotton were strong yesterday. War calls for wheat and cotton. Stocks were weak because of a rumor that Russia would come in. Big business has acquired a strange respect for Russia, mixed with a scorn that is not very real.

IT IS PROBABLY true, as alleged, that Russia and Japan have an understanding about Manchuria, as a fox and a wolf might have an understanding about a fat duck.

In the end the wolf may take the whole duck, or perhaps Manchuria will be divided as the "Christian" powers once divided Poland, or as "the walrus and the carpenter" divided the oysters.

MR. ROGERS, who spends much of his time in airplanes, thinking much and writing little, which reverses the usual order, observes that the League of Nations is humble, when Japan seems to want a war.

Rogers says of the League:

"It was a great thing to make the little fellows behave, but when the big fellows want to get away with anything, it has no more power than a Senate investigating committee."

PARIS REPORTS a "big gambling ring" raiding the dollar, to bring down its value. The big gambling ring is not alone in that process.

Europe owes us $10,000,000,000 and if they could cut the dollar's value by half, they would only have to pay $5,000,000,000. They won't pay us much, if anything, from now on, probably, but it would make them feel safer and ease their honor, if a lower price for the dollar made repudiated debts smaller.

THAT GRATIFICATION will probably be denied them. By a simple process the United States could draw to its self practically all the gold in the world, even gold that able Frenchmen have accumulated, unless gold exports were forbidden by law.

THE NATIONAL assembly of Spain has signed Article III of the new constitution, "no official state religion exists."

This ends the age long connection between church and state in Spain.

In addition, Spain's new government proposes to expel from Spain, and seize the property of all religious orders "which take a vow of obedience directly to the Pope."

THE VATICAN, looking far into the future, and far back into history, has anticipated these steps, and, disappointed but not alarmed, feels that the position of the Catholic church in Spain will be little impaired.

Those that know the position, influence and growth of the Catholic church in America, where church and state have long been separated, believe that the church in the long run will benefit by the separation, although new conditions at first will be difficult for the clergy.

DR. CRILE, distinguished scientist of Cleveland, tells the clinical congress of marvelous operations on the human heart, and of nerve surgery, relieving pain, prolonging life.

Dr. Crile proves that you are indeed "fearfully and wonderfully made." Your "power station" in the adrenal glands, just above your kidneys, sometimes drives the nervous system too hard, causing "soldier's heart" and other ills.

ALSO THE FRONTAL lobe of your brain, just back of your forehead, in which your intellect dwells, is the "slave driver" of the mind.

The majority of us have that "slave driver" under sufficient control to let the mind rest part of the time.

Dr. Crile, in 20 different operations, has cut nerves leading from the adrenal glands to the sympathetic nervous system, preventing supply of too much power and producing important cures. It is as though a tired office boy should cut the wire leading from the bell on his desk to the push-button on the desk of his employer.

Wonderful things are done by science, while ordinary mortals pursue the fleeing dollar.

IN ROME, 50 famous physicists hear from Prof. Millikan, of the California Institute of Technology, about a new microscope for measuring the velocity of electrons. It must be a good microscope.

An atom consists of a nucleus or protons, with electrons revolving around it, something like our sun, as nucleus, and the planets as electrons. A miniature solar system makes up one atom. It is very "miniature" for you could have a million such atoms in the corner of your eye, without noticing them.

And they are sprightly electrons. Our earth goes around the sun, once in 365 days. An electron goes around its proton-sun several TRILLION times in one second, difficult to believe, but a fact.

TREASURER EXPECTED TO MEET KERR

Criminal Suit Indicated As Possible If Missing Bonds Fail to Appear

BULLETIN.

Assistant District Attorneys Roy T. Clunk and Charles B. Jarrett conferred with City Controller James P. Kerr today on possible action against Treasurer Roy D. Schooley as a result of developments in the audit of the Treasurer's office.

Prosecution resulting from the transactions of iCty Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, involving $125,000 bonds posted to secure city funds in the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company loomed today.

Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk announced he would confer with Controller James P. Kerr over the failure to find the bonds after a search of Schooley's safe yesterday. This conference likely will take place tomorrow.

Controller Kerr was in conference with Mayor Kline for half an hour today, presumably on the course to be pursued regarding Schooley.

At the conclusion, neither would talk.

SCHOOLEY TO APPEAR

Kerr was informed by Attorney Hiram D. Hirsh, representing Schooley, he said, that Schooley would appear later today to talk over the audit situation with Kerr. Schooley was expected to explain disappearance of the bonds.

Already being sued for $10,000 redemption of a promissory note, which secured a $9,800 N. S. F. check, Schooley today faced possible action over the $125,000 in "mystery bonds" that have disappeared since they were shown to Kerr as security for a city deposit of that size in the Franklin Savings & Trust Company.

NO PENALTY PROVIDED

The city depository ordinance carries no penalty for its violation, an examination of the measure today disclosed. At the District Attorney's office, however, it was said that failure of any city official properly to protect the city's interests would constitute an indictable offense—malfeasance in office.

Woman, 85, on Trial For Rum Violation

CLEVELAND, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—An 85-year-old grandmother who does not speak English was to go on trial here today for violation of the city liquor ordinance.

She is Mrs. Anna Bandi, who was arrested yesterday upon testimony of her granddaughter, Mrs. Mary Lacy, 26. At the latter's trial on liquor charges, Mrs. Lacy testified:

"I didn't sell any liquor. If any was sold at my house it must have been by my grandmother."

Mother Ends Life As Son Takes Bride

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—(INS.)—Inhaling gas in the kitchen of her home while her son stood at the church altar being married, Mrs. Marie Hahnke, 80, was dead today. Her body was found in the gas-filled room a few hours after the wedding of her son, Walter. She had carefully laid a shroud beside her and had written a note containing funeral instructions.

PINCHOT CALLS SESSION NOV. 9

HARRISBURG, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—The proposed special session of the Legislature to consider only unemployment relief measures will convene Monday, November 9, Gov. Pinchot announced today.

The Governor said that he was setting the date for convening of the special session for November 9 as that is after the municipal elections to be held Tuesday, November 3, and thus will not interfere with political activity or interests of the members of the Legislature.

The $10,000,000 prosperity loan plan for raising money to meet unemployment relief needs throughout the state, as announced recently in the Governor's statement of his proposal to call the Legislature into extraordinary session, will be carried through so far as the administration is concerned, he said.

Gilbert Sails, Lupe Stays in New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(INS.)—Jack Gilbert, screen star, was on the high seas today en route to Europe. He sailed last night. It was reported that Lupe Velez, Hollywood actress, who arrived here yesterday from the West with Gilbert, also would leave for Europe, but a check showed she did not sail on Gilbert's boat. She was reported to have remained in New York. Both refused to confirm reports linking them in a romance.

Radio Announcer Farren On City Payroll

While the League of Women Voters clamored today for extension of City Controller James P. Kerr's auditing activities to an audit of city payrolls, employment of Radio Announcer William A. Farren to turn off water of delinquent taxpayers became known.

Farren devoted considerable of his time on the air, paid for by a commercial sponsor, last winter to the doings of City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley's hockey club.

Records in Kerr's office show that Farren had been on the City Treasurer's payroll as a clerk but was removed on October 1. From January 1 to October 1, the records showed, the radio announcer-water-controller received $1,052.23 of the taxpayers' money.

Mystery as to just when Farren went about with his wrench turning off water of those who failed to pay water bills loomed today when Farren's superior in Schooley's office indicated that he did not know that Farren had been dropped from the payroll but insisted he was "out on the job."

Farren said nothing to clear up the situation.

While being paid for turning off water meters Farren made ex-

BETHLEHEM ABANDONS MERGER

Grace Drops Consolidation; Decline in Stock Prices Factor in Blocking Deal

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, today announced the merger contract between Bethlehem and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company has been canceled.

Mr. Grace said that due to changed conditions it was deemed impracticable to carry out the contract made in March, 1930, for merging the two companies and that Bethlehem had exercised its option to cancel the contract.

The contract, Mr. Grace said, had been extended from time to time by agreement of the parties in the hope that conditions would justify consummation of what both believed to be a sound understanding.

STOCK PRICES CHANGE

Market changes in the common stock of both corporations since the merger was delayed by injunction more than a year ago, have altered the situation to such an extent that many stockholders who fought the consolidation now are said to favor it.

When the merger contract was made, Bethlehem common was quoted around $100, while Sheet and Tube common was approximately $125. Bethlehem agreed to give one and one-third shares of its stock for each share of Sheet and Tube. Stockholders of the latter firm who refused to accept were offered by their own company an alternative of $110 a share in cash. Many set upwards

RITCHIE SEES WORLD NEED OF LEADER

Debt Cut by U. S. Opposed In Foundation Day Talk; Forecasts 'Greatest Boom'

Today's need is "leadership in a leaderless world," Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential candidate, told an audience at the thirty-fifth annual Founder's Day celebration at Carnegie Institute.

Col. Samuel Harden Church, president of the Institute, in introducing Gov. Ritchie, mentioned former presidents of the United States who have spoken at Founder's Day exercises and said:

"There is an atmosphere of the presidency about Founder's Day, and who knows but that, in the possibilities of life, the next President of the United States may at this moment be upon this platform?"

Forecasting the eventual coming of a prosperity even greater than that before the depression, Gov. Ritchie added:

"What we need today is a mobilization of constructive brains of the country and a demobilization of political oratory."

LAYS SLUMP TO WAR

His topic was "Politics and Economics." He said:

"I think the roots of the depression were in the World War. Our problem then was production — war production — and we gave no thought to markets or to distribution.

"Peace found us with a huge oversupply of products. That caused the depression of 1921. After that general construction and general production started up again. Individuals, industries and governments all began to spend. They spent more than they had, and mortgaged their future through short-term credits and installment

STERN TOKIO WARNING DEFIED

Hints of Anti-American Fears Ignored at Geneva; Stimson Continues Efforts

By NEWTON C. PARKE
Director of International News Service Foreign Service.

League determination to draw the United States into full participation and responsibility in attempted settlement of the Manchurian dispute was reported in Geneva dispatches this afternoon.

The league is so eager for American assistance that it is even ready to risk an affront to Japan by overriding Tokio's frankly stated objections, delivered to the "Big Five" of the League Council today by Kenichi Yoshisawa, Japanese delegate.

FORCE TOKIO'S HAND

Yoshisawa was quickly informed that the Japanese protest, based on the grounds that an unwise precedent would be set, was untenable.

It was reported that the Council may issue a formal invitation to the United States late today, forcing Japan's hand and compelling her either to acquiesce or accept isolation with possible withdrawal from the League.

The Japanese Foreign Office is placed in a most difficult position by the league's insistence upon American participation. If Tokio backs down it must withdraw its own demand that the Manchurian dispute be settled by direct negotiation.

SECRECY ON STIMSON

It must also face bitter opposition by Japanese military leaders and possible anti-American outbursts which thus far have been prevented by withholding from publication the texts of Secretary Stimson's two latest notes.

Japanese military activities in Manchuria have been temporarily halted with the retreat of 5,000 Chinese soldiers across the Liaho River, removing the threat against Mukden and outlying districts. The Japanese authorities, however, announce fighting will be resumed if the region is again threatened.

Stimson Seeks Japan's O. K. for Aid to League

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—The American government is making an effort to have Japan withdraw objections to a representative from this country participating in efforts by the League of Nations for peace in Manchuria.

Informed of the Japanese stand, Secretary Stimson today called in Ambassador Debuchi, of Japan, and explained to him the status which Prentiss Gilbert, American consul general at Geneva, would have if invited to participate in the league's discussions.

Gilbert's part would be that of an observer to help efforts by the league to invoke the Kellogg-Briand pact for the renunciation of war.

LOST BETS ONLY CAPONE PLEA

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—With testimony on the records purporting to show that Al Capone lost $327,000 on the races in six years, the defense ceased calling witnesses today, and began arguing motions to have government evidence stricken, and moved for a directed verdict of acquittal.

Although no formal announcement was made that the defense rested, Attorney Albert Fink said the gangster had no more witnesses.

The gang leader's defense to charges that he evaded taxes on a six-year income of more than $1,000,000 consisted almost entirely of testimony to show that he lost about $327,000 on race bets during the same period. His attorneys contend this amount must be deducted from any income the government has been able to prove.

Petain Lands in Virginia; Greeted by Pershing

OLD POINT COMFORT, Va., Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Marshal Henri Petain, head of the French delegation to the Yorktown sesquicentennial celebration, landed on historic Virginia soil today and was greeted in the name of the American government by Gen. John J. Pershing, one of his friends and associates in the World War.

"The savior of Verdue" and a distinguished group of descendants of George Washington's French comrades in the Revolutionary War battle of 1781, came ashore in two launches from the cruisers Duquesne and Suffren. They had been escorted to this port earlier in the day by the American cruisers Augusta, Chester and Pensacola.

Gen. Pershing was the first to greet the Marshal of France, who smilingly saluted the A. E. F. commander 20 yards from the dock, while standing in an admiral's barge. Pershing, in khaki, returned the salute and grasped the marshal's hand as he stepped to the quay.

As the distinguished group posed for photographers Gen. Pershing turned to his companion of the western front and said:

"On behalf of the President of the United States and on my own behalf, it is my great pleasure to welcome you this day to American soil."

Petain replied in his native tongue and the Marquis de Chambrun, direct descendant of Gen. Lafayette, interpreted his words as the radio carried them over a chain of stations.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the World War President, was among the gathering of distinguished guests to witness the colorful ceremony.

RIOTS SWEEP SPANISH CITIES AS CIVIL WAR THREATENS

AZAVA TAKES REPUBLIC'S HELM

Disorders Over Religious Dispute Grow; Vatican May Sever All Relations

By THOMAS A. LOAYZA
International News Service

MADRID, Oct. 15.—A series of riots occurred in various parts of Spain today as public feeling over the government's anti-religious measures blazed into violence.

With Manuel Azana, war minister and former newspaper reporter taking charge of the government as provisional president in succession to Niceto Alcala Zamora, groups of demonstrators clashed in Madrid, Barcelona, Granada and elsewhere amid threats of civil war.

Foreshadowing a complete break in relations between Spain and the Vatican, Mgr. Tedeschini papal nuncio, has been recalled to Rome and will leave Madrid tonight. It was definitely learned this afternoon.

Azana was elected to the presidency by the Cortes following the resignation of President Niceto Alcala Zamora, who quit as a protest against the action of the National Assembly in ordering expulsion of the Jesuits and otherwise limiting the activities of Catholic organizations.

The Basque and Navarre deputies left the Cortes after the vote of the Jesuit expulsion and it was reported they might formulate a demand for an autonomous Catholic government in Northern Spain.

Vatican Sees Breakdown Of Relations With Spain

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 15.—(INS.)—Complete breakdown of all relations between the Vatican and Spain was forecast here today as a result of the anti-religious articles being incorporated in the new Spanish constitution.

In an interview with International News Service, a Vatican spokesman declared the situation in Spain was so serious as to necessitate more drastic action than the lodging of a simple protest.

For this reason the Vatican has taken no steps toward lodging a protest, and none will be presented, according to indications at the present time, until the situation has been studied in all its details.

A high Vatican official pointed out to International News Service that while the church did not thoroughly approve of the new republican regime in Spain it was ready and willing to accept formal separation of church and state, as provided for in one article of the new constitution.

SLASH IN NAVY TO OUST 3,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(INS.)—The Navy's new budget $61,000,000 lower than this year's, was transmitted today to President Hoover.

Mr. Hoover ordered the slash from a tentative budget of $401,000,000. Although the department declined to make public the revised budget, it was assumed the President's mandate was carried out, thus making the new budget total $340,000,000.

The indications were the savings would be effected by reducing personnel by some 3,000 or 3,500 men, including the Marine Corps, reducing the fleet in commission by one-fifth and by failing to build new constructions beyond the 11 destroyers already contracted for an aircraft carrier and one or two cruisers.

tensive trips out of town with Schooley's hockey team.

Discovery of the Farren employment, today, indicated a possibility that intensive inquiry may be made into the Schooley payroll by auditors probing his financial transactions as City Treasurer. It is though possible that some members of the staff may be found to possess sinecures.

Inquiry as to Farren's status, previous to his discharge, met with mixed results. John McKibben, in charge of the Delinquent Tax Department of the Treasurer's office, said:

"Farren was employed as a clerk, but was chiefly attached to the 'water turn off' gang. The reason he's not employed now, is that he's an extra man."

The Controller's records show that Farren was paid regularly on the first and fifteenth of the month from February 14, $67.50. On February 1, he received $28.03 for five days' work and, on one other date, $49.50 for 11 days' work.

Frank Devine, in charge of the water gang, asked about Farren, declared:

"He's out on the job."

Informed that Farren was off the payroll, Devine walked away, silent.

Farren, asked if he held a city job as records indicated, said:

"Why do you ask that? I don't see why I should worry about your records or any one else's."

PROSECUTION IN SCHOOLEY QUIZ SEEN

vestigator for Schooley, who showed bonds purporting to be those tendered by the Franklin Savings and Trust Company to Controller Kerr, it was said he was out of town and that it was not known when he would return.

SCHOOL FUNDS

J. Rodgers McCreery, solicitor of the Board of Public Education, today pointed out that if any of the $165,000 delinquent tax funds in the Franklin Savings and Trust Company proves to have been school money, it would constitute a misdemeanor as all school funds are required to be kept in school depositories.

The bonds covering inactive city deposits were thought, until yesterday, to be under lock and key in the Treasurer's vault. They were missing, however, when Kerr searched for them.

The "mystery bonds" were seen for the first and last time, so far as is known, when Special Investigator Burgoyne, Schooley aide, presented them to Kerr, about 10 days ago, for inspection. Wrapped in brown paper, the bundle contained $125,000 in United States securities. Burgoyne told Kerr that it represented security for the Franklin deposit.

SCHOOLEY REPORTED ILL

Demand by Kerr, following opening of his audit of the treasurer's office, that he be shown the bonds again, was met with the answer that they were locked in the vault to which only Schooley has access. Schooley, ill, was unable to appear at his office to open the vault, it was claimed.

Yesterday, with court action threatened to force the office to open the vault to Kerr, Schooley issued an order giving the auditors access to it. Search showed no trace of the pledged securities.

Efforts to reach Burgoyne for an explanation have failed. He has not been found. Schooley was said to be under orders from his physician, Dr. A. W. Crozier, to discuss no business.

Only remaining hope of locating the "mystery bonds" today seemed to be in an inspection of all safety deposit vaults in city depositories holding collateral for city deposits. An order permitting Kerr's auditors to open the boxes was signed by Schooley today. Addressed to the depositories, it read:

"This will be your authority to permit Mr. Robert Torrence to open safety deposit box in your bank containing security pledged to secure time deposits of city funds.

"The purpose of this visit is to permit the Controller or his authorized representative to list and check this security."

It was learned Kerr holds small hope of finding the securities in the boxes.

WOMEN UPHOLD KERR

Civic support for Kerr came yesterday when the League of Women Voters added its indorsement to his work, which yesterday extended itself to a probe of Schooley's transactions as treasurer of the Board of Education, at the board's request.

Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, the league's president, said:

"Let us have an audit of the payroll and clean things up. If we can do this, Pittsburgh will be a better place for all of us to live in."

Mrs. Smith called on Kerr, late yesterday afternoon, to extend her congratulations for his work. Kerr was closeted with City Attorney Charles W. Waldschmidt, Attorney McCreery, counsel for the Board of Education, and Kerr's attorney, Lee C. Beatty, and could not see Mrs. Smith.

Kerr, asked as to the result of his conference, refused to commit himself, saying:

"Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

KLINE REFUSES ANSWER

Asked if he plans action against Schooley, Mayor Charles H. Kline himself under indictment for irregularities in conduct of the Department of Supplies, with Director Bertram L. Succop, said:

"I have no statement to make until Dr. Kerr completes his audit."

Kline has previously told Kerr to "do your duty."

The audit of the Board of Education's funds was undertaken, according to Kerr, with no immediate anticipation of finding irregularities.

Attorney N. R. Criss, chairman of the board's committee on finance and administration, said, however, the probe would at least call attention to the practice of City Treasurers of temporarily depositing board funds in city depositories, until proper division can be made.

Possibility that Kerr will ask that Schooley's bond be declared forfeit was being discussed in the City-County Building, today.

TAYLOR FACTOR

A large question mark, in the person of Special Deputy Secretary of Banking George F. Taylor, Jr., appears in every discussion of the situation.

Taylor, with a record of obtaining a conviction in every suit he has brought in behalf of failed banks, has already shown himself vigirously interested in protection of his depositors' interests.

His suit against Schooley as president of the Pitt Hockey Club, resulting from the N. S. F. check signed by Schooley personally and secured by a note signed by Schooley for his club and indorsed by Herman Friedman, came so quickly after disappearance of the check and note from the bank's records that it shocked political circles.

He has declared no bonds have been given by the bank in security for the deposit and has given every indication of intense interest in all proceedings relative to the deposits.

COYNE BACKING FULL TICKET OF G. O. P.

Senator Denies Support For Lawrence in County Race for Commissioner

By MARK SHIELDS

In the face of reports that he would assist David L. Lawrence, Democratic candidate for County Commissioner, Senator James J. Coyne today announced he would support the entire Republican ticket, including Senator William D. Mansfield and Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, Commissioner candidates, at the November election.

Third place on the county board lies between Lawrence and former Senator C. M. Barr, independent, in the view of politicians, though Louis Alpern, Liberal party candidate, is making an active fight. The election of Mansfield and McGovern is not considered in doubt. Coyne was asked after he had made his statement indorsing the Republican ticket:

"What about the fight between Barr and Lawrence? Have you any preference between those two?"

Coyne replied:

"It is up to them to get their own votes. That's what I did in the primary."

Coyne was a candidate for a Commissioner nomination in September, being defeated by Mansfield and McGovern.

MEETING CALLED

Late this afternoon the Republican candidate will meet with County Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong, also defeated as a Commissioner candidate, to determine who will manage the campaign. Ordinarily this would fall to Armstrong, but the prejudices engendered in the primary are believed back of his decision to step aside and let the candidates handle their own affairs.

Though Mansfield and McGovern are regarded as the heads of the ticket, it is understood all candidates will have an even voice in the selection of a chairman. Some of the Republican nominees are of the opinion that McGovern, so long as he intends to run openly with Barr on the Independent ticket, should not have a major voice in naming Republican campaign officials.

If any difference should arise between Mansfield and McGovern over the selection of a chairman, it is forecast that the majority of the other candidates will side with Mansfield.

McCLURE MENTIONED

Prior to the meeting today the name of Representative James H. McClure, who managed the Mansfield primary campaign, was being advanced as the logical man to run the November fight. McClure, who is a member of the Legislature from Mansfield's senatorial district, is being mentioned as a possible successor to the senator in the Upper House at Harrisburg.

Former Congressman William H. Coleman, who managed the Hoover campaign in 1928, also is being suggested as chairman for the present battle. Coleman is from Mansfield's home, McKeesport, but the two have been opposed in previous campaigns. Coleman was an unsuccessful candidate for Common Pleas Court in September, though he was indorsed by McGovern.

A new secretary and treasurer for the campaign committee are in prospect. William H. Ziefel, secretary of the County Committee, is ill, and C. J. McBride, treasurer, is under indictment following investigation of the County Tax Board, of which he is a member.

Liberal party headquarters today announced the following additions to its ticket:

Sixth Ward, Pittsburgh—For Constable, Luke J. Hannan.

Seventh Ward, Pittsburgh—For Constable, Joseph B. Cleary.

Eleventh Ward, Pittsburgh—For Constable, Ben A. Rosenson.

Twelfth Ward, Pittsburgh—For Alderman, Michael De Rosa, Jr.

Seventeenth Ward, Pittsburgh—For Alderman, John P. Kearcher; for Constable, Michael (Jukey) Zorgowski.

Twenty-first Ward, Pittsburgh—For Constable, William J. Conners.

Borough of Sharpsburg—For Constable, Edward M. Duffy.

Borough of Wilmerding—For Borough Council, Frank Kukurin, Mortimer J. Dempster and Robert Sullivan.

Borough of Wilmerding—For School Director, Stanley Cwynar and Helen M. Holohan, six-year terms; Michael J. O'Conner, four-year term; Raymond B. Malloy, two-year term.

W. H. McNair, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate in 1928, has been named chairman of the Democratic campaign committee, and will take charge of headquarters on Diamond street, adjoining the Hotel Pittsburgher.

STEEL MERGER ABANDONED

of $160 a share as their price, instead of $110.

Bethlehem common is now approximately $28, while Sheet and Tube common is quoted around $23.

REVERSE STAND

Stockholders who have opposed the merger say it might now be more profitable to lose the merger battle than to win so as to be paid in cash for the Youngstown stock more than four times its present quoted price. There is said to be 300,000 shares of dissenting stock which, sold at $110 a share, would amount to $33,000,000.

Had the merger gone through at the time, Bethlehem presumably could have refunded this $33,000,000 to the merged treasuries by selling additional Bethlehem stock close to $100 a share.

In some circles it was reported that the purpose of the appeal in the injunction suit was to keep the case open pending a renewal of negotiations. Reports have been circulated from time to time that a new basis for the merger was being negotiated, but they all met with denials.

TO PAY BACK DIVIDENDS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Youngstown Sheet and Tube stockholders, who opposed the merger of their company with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, will receive approximately $1,700,000 in back dividends.

This was announced by Sheet and Tube officials today on receiving word of the cancellation of the $1,000,000,000 merger contract.

Man Killed by Gun; Believed Suicide

County detectives were investigating the death today of Adolph Andreini, 44, part owner of the Mt. Lebanon restaurant, 761 Washington road, Mt. Lebanon. He was found in the rear of the restaurant, his head partly blown off by the discharge of a shotgun, by his brother and partner, Marino. At first it was thought he was cleaning the gun for hunting and it was discharged. The detectives inclined to the suicide theory. An autopsy was ordered by the coroner.

Mrs. Hoover Saves Jobs; Buys New Curtains

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 15.—(Universal.)—They're going to have new window curtains in the White House, and you can blame it on the depression, too.

Mrs. Hoover was going to cut the worn edges from the old ones, but she heard that the man who makes them was going to discharge his two helpers for want of business. So she decided to order new ones, she revealed, after an address before Girl Scouts here.

The old curtains will be used as dust cloths.

Mrs. Hoover donned her Girl Scout uniform in opening the seventeenth annual convention of the National Council.

Mrs. Hoover spoke for 11 minutes, her address being broadcast over a nationwide hookup.

Mrs. Hoover emphasized the opportunities which periods of financial stress bring to the Girl Scout organization, declaring:

"In this year of trial and depression, we may see what part in alleviation the Girl Scouts will take, individually and collectively."

GAY SCENES OF PAST RECALLED IN CALVIT GEM HEARING

CARUSO WIDOW WEARS JEWEL IN COURT

$50,000 Ring Given to Her By Moore as Seal of Troth, Defendant Says

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The ghost of Lillian Russell danced into the somber Supreme Court this morning and gay scenes of life as it was lived in the early part of the century were recalled when Mrs. Enrico Caruso Ingram was examined before trial by counsel representing Mrs. Dorothy Russell Calvit, daughter of the beauty of bygone days, who claims ownership of a $50,000 ring worn by Mrs. Ingram.

The ring, holding an emerald as big as an acorn framed by nine diamonds, was on display as evidence. Mrs. Calvit says that the ring was bought for her in 1900 and given to her by her mother. The emerald she says is her birth stone.

BIRTHDAY PRESENT

Mrs. Calvit's story was that the ring was presented to her mother in her absence, and a few months later her mother gave it to her for a birthday present.

When Miss Russell died, the daughter said she went into mourning and turned the ring with her other jewelry over to her stepfather, the late Alxander P. Moore, former Pittsburgh publisher and ambassador to Spain, for safekeeping. He failed to return the ring, she said.

Mrs. Caruso testified that, after having been engaged to Moore for nearly a year, she broke the engagment in 1928 and offered to return the ring. He told me to keep it, she said, and that, if he married first, he would take it back, but that, if she married first, he would give it to her as a wedding present.

BOTH IN COURT

Moore died in 1930, before either he or Mrs. Caruso had married.

The examination before trial today was for the purpose of identifying the ring. Mrs. Ingram, dressed in a black suit with hat to match, entered court wearing the ring on her finger. Mrs. Calvit, dressed in a gray suit with beige fox, was also present.

Mrs. Calvit is bringing another suit for the same action against Beth Leary, who was also the recipient of Moore's generosity. Moore gave her a pearl necklace, but Mrs. Calvit protests that Moore never had title to the pearls and that they were merely given to him for safekeeping.

FAMILY TAKEN FROM CAVE IN W. VA. HILLS

Destitute Widow, Her 5 Children and 3 'Roomers' Get Food and Shelter

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Oct. 15. — (AP.) — The rocky, musty cave, deep in the West Virginia hills, where a widow and her five small children and three "roomers" had made their home for months, stood deserted today, while authorities sought "real" homes for the little ones, and aid for the mother.

Meanwhile, bright-eyed, curly-headed Jesse James Hinkle, 1 year old; Alice, 3; Albert, 6; Alma, 8, and Ulah, 10, munched warm food and wore new clothes in the care of probation officers.

Mrs. Hinkle doesn't know what she'd have done had it not been for the fact that she found three unemployed men to board and "room" with her. They couldn't pay her much rent, of course, but with what little money they gave her she managed to buy some food to go along with the berries and roots they found in the mountains.

W. T. Farley, McDowell County probation officer, was tramping through the hills when he came upon the cave. Smoke was rolling from the hole in the hill. Going up to the entrance he found the woman cooking on a battered stove.

The cave, under a steep cliff, with jagged rocks for a ceiling and the bare ground for a floor, was divided into two compartments. In one of these was an old wooden bed. Boxes served as chairs and tables. Boards were the other beds.

The mouth of the cave was walled up with rocks, timbers and clay. But when it rained, Mrs. Hinkle explained, sometimes even the stones and the boards that served as a door failed to keep out the water.

COUNCIL HEAD PLEDGES TAX REDUCTION

Kline Willing to Cut Levy 15 Mills If He Can Be Shown Way, He Asserts

Reduction in the city's 1932 tax rate by 15 mills is not impossible if some way can be shown Mayor Kline to do so without "crippling" activities of any of the various departments, according to his statement on record today.

Meanwhile, Council was making preparations to refute arguments of the Building Owners and Managers Association that taxes here, at 55 cents per square foot of rentable real estate, were much higher than any other city in the United States.

REDUCTION ASSURED

President John S. Herron, promising the association "Council's full co-operation in tax reduction," said:

"Council will prove that if taxes here are higher, the income on real estate is much higher than any other city in the nation. There will be a tax reduction next year. What it will be, or how much it will be, I cannot say."

Mayor Kline, speaking at the hearing held in the City-County building, pledged his aid to all civic organizations advocating tax reduction, adding:

"I'll admit that the present method of tax assessment is, to my mind, unjust. However, that will have to be changed at the 1933 session of the Legislature. We do not want to impose an extraordinary burden on anyone. If you can show me how we can reduce expenses of the departments without injuring their activities, I'd be willing to reduce the millage 15 mills. That isn't impossible."

'POLITICAL PARASITES'

J. A. Bamford, of the Building Owners and Managers Association, charged the city with employing political parasites who did nothing to justify their hire. He said:

"Time after time we have come before Council and insisted that the operating cost of city-owned buildings is far in excess of operating costs of privately owned structures. We have been unable to get any co-operation. We demand that taxes be reduced at once."

J. R. Brady, of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, pointed out that a Community Research Bureau was studying the tax burden and was ready to co-operate with Council.

3RD CLAIMANT ACTS TO SEIZE LONG'S JOB

Louisiana Governor Holds Troops Ready; Threatens to Jail Cyr 'If He Gets Rowdy'

International News Service.

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 15. — Further complicated by the advent of a third claimant to the governorship, Louisiana's civil political war today approached an issue in the courts.

While Gov. Huey P. Long continued in actual command of the state administration, his enemy, Lieut. Gov. Paul Cyr, prepared to enter the courts and assert his right to the governorship.

The political turmoil pervading the state Capitol was further increased by the contention of Walter L. Aldrich, of Shreveport, that he is now the lawful Governor of Louisiana. He took an oath of office administered by a notary public and a cousin of Gov. Long, E. G. Eagles.

Aldrich declared that neither Long nor Cyr have any right to the Governorship. Long forfeited the office when his election to the United States Senate was certified, Aldrich contended. Since Cyr did not immediately assume the Governorship, the office was left open, according to Aldrich, and any citizen could therefore take the office by the expedient of having the oath administered and filed.

Gov. Long said:

"Cyr is just out of a job as far as the state of Louisiana is concerned. I'll put him in jail if he gets rowdy."

Fortifying his position, the Governor augmented the military guard posted in and about the Capitol buildings. A detail of armed highway policemen was stationed in the office of Miss Alice Lee Grosjean, Secretary of State.

5 DIE TONIGHT FOR MURDERS

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—(INS.)—A few minutes after midnight tonight five men will follow each other to the electric chair at Cook County Jail. Their last hope for life vanished today with the refusal of Gov. Louis L. Emmerson to intercede.

The doomed men are Frank Bell and Richard Sullivan, killers of a cafe owner; John Popescue and Charles Rocco, murderers of Courtney Merrill, a banker, and Frank Jordan, who shot and killed two policemen.

Warden David Moneypenny made a futile attempt to rescue Bell from the chair. He appeared before the Parole Board and recounted how Bell had saved his life and the lives of several jail employes by averting a violent jailbreak.

KLINE AX READY FOR POLICE

Reports that Mayor Charles H. Kline's long-anticipated retaliatory police shakeup was due today followed closely on the heels of a report that a police official had been summoned before the Mayor.

Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh said that if any drastic shakeup is contemplated today he did not know of it. He did say that there would be some routine transfers of patrolmen. He said he had no knowledge of any dismissals of inspectors at this time.

Among the "higher-ups" slated to go are Inspectors Joseph Elsner, of the Strip; Dennis Hennessey, of the South Side, and Charles Faulkner, of the North Side, and scores of lesser lights. Capt. John Schnurr, who with Lieut. Thomas Gross "cleaned up" the Strip district, is slated to get Elsner's job, and Gross is expected to step into Schnurr's shoes. Magistrate William McNamara, of the Oakland district, also is slated to get the "gate."

U. S. WILL FIGHT FOR ASTOR TAX

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—The New York American says the federal government will move to have set aside the $10,000,000 in taxes and $6,000,000 in interest which the government refunded to the estate of Viscount William Waldorf Astor.

The newspaper says Assistant Federal Attorney Coleman, of New York, recently returned from a trip to England, where he obtained depositions from Astor's servants, learned that Astor set a trust fund of $48,000,000 aside for his two sons in anticipation of death, thus evading an inheritance tax.

Federal Judge Caffey, who ordered the refund on July 1, will be asked to reconsider his decision, the American said.

WRITER EX-WIFE NO LONGER

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Ursula Parrott, the former college girl whose novel "Ex-Wife" caught public fancy, deserted the ranks of ex-wives yesterday. She was married in the Municipal Building to Charles T. Greenwood, Brooklyn banker.

She and her first husband, Lindesay Parrott, newspaperman, were divorced in January, 1928. A son, now 7 years old, was born of that marriage.

The small black-haired, gray-eyed writer, whose name in private life was Mrs. Katherine U. Parrott, said she was 30 years old. Greenwood gave his age as 41.

Born in Boston, the daughter of a doctor, the novelist studied at Radcliffe College. Before she sprang into prominence with "Ex-Wife," she was employed as an advertising copy writer and as a newspaper reporter.

Mme. Curie Holds School, World Scientists Pupils

ROME, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Mme. Marie Curie, co-discoverer of radium, stood up like a school teacher before some of the world's greatest physicists here today and explained further disclosures on the origin of cosmic rays.

These disclosures have been described by Robert A. Millikan, American scientist and, like Mme. Curie, a winner of the Nobel prize in physics, as tending to modify the world's theory of the universe.

Mme. Curie and Prof. W. Bothe, German physicist, explained that an artificial ray, called the gamma ray, could be developed out of an atom. This supplemented statements of a group of scientists, including Dr. Millikan and Prof. Arthur Compton, of the University of Chicago, that cosmic rays originate from the formation of atoms out of a field of hydrogen at an unknown distance beyond the sun.

After taking off her black hat, revealing her silver gray hair, Mme. Curie went to a blackboard. Speaking rapidly in French, she sketched an algebraic formulae with a piece of chalk experiments in Paris in the development of the artificial ray. She and Dr. Bothe said they had accomplished it by shooting an alpha ray at an atom. At the point of the alpha ray's impact with the atom, a gamma ray of great penetrating power shot out.

Mme. Curie, who will be 64 next month, answered questions put in German and English by her distinguished colleagues attending the week's Congress of Physicists and was applauded warmly.

Premier Mussolini will receive the scientists tomorrow.

CO-ED MURDER LAID TO SQUAW

WHITE RIVER, Ariz., Oct. 15.—(INS.)—In the wilds of the Apache Indian Reservation, Department of Justice agents today played hide-and-seek with a squaw, sought for the murder last July of Henrietta Schmerler, Columbia University co-ed.

Federal agents uncovered secret evidence that indicated the squaw, jealous of the attentions paid by her husband to the vivacious young student, had ambushed Miss Schmerler and cut her to death with an Indian weapon.

The squaw eluded arrest by fleeing to a remote section of the reservation, officers here said, and efforts to locate her have been in vain.

Thousands Watch For Cemetery Apparition

CLOQUET, Minn., Oct. 15.—(AP.)—One thousand persons last night gathered at a Chippewa Indian cemetery four miles from this city to watch for an apparition reported seen for a week in the old burial ground.

The phenomenon, witnesses say, takes the form of two lights, similar to the headlights on an automobile. The lights are reported to rise from the ground, turn red at times and either flutter away or disappear when approached.

The apparition was reported by some folks to have appeared nine days ago after an Indian woman was buried in the cemetery. Indians told townspeople here they fired two shots at the apparition, only to "hear it whimper like a baby" and flitter away.

Three others named as the killers of Morris Curran, deposed bootleg supply king, were indicted yesterday. They are Cino Ramano and Angelo LaMantia, and an unidentified man. They are all unapprehended.

CADILLAC V·8

The greatest VALUE ever offered in a Cadillac V-8

There are so many exceptional things about the Cadillac V-8 to urge its possession, that the average buyer is prone to overlook its outstanding dollar-for-dollar value.

Yet, purely on the basis of what you get for what you pay, the Cadillac V-8 is a most logical choice.

First of all, it should be remembered that the V-8 is a Cadillac — not only in name, but in design and in craftsmanship as well. This is the definite guarantee of its excellence — proof that, in every feature, it is built to the highest standards the automotive industry has known.

It should be remembered, too, that a car of such superior quality has a period of usefulness far exceeding that of a lesser automobile. Months and years after the average car would have ceased to satisfy, Cadillac V-8 owners continue to drive their cars with the fullest enjoyment.

Furthermore, a car that is built to such exacting limits of precision requires the very minimum of service. In fact, by taking advantage of Cadillac's Standard Service Contract, the V-8 owner can know — in advance — exactly what his service will cost for any given year.

Come in and see the V-8. And remember, as you admire its beauty and thrill to its performance, that V-8 prices now start at only $2695, f. o. b. Detroit — actually hundreds of dollars below the cost of previous Cadillac Eights.

f. o. b. Detroit, is the price of the Cadillac V-8 line. Illustrated above is the V-8 Town Sedan — priced, less extras, at $2845, f. o. b. factory.

ENRIGHT KOMIC CLUB DUE FOR SURPRISE

Special Feature in Store For Saturday Meeting; Also for Other Branches

Preparations have been completed for a unique entertainment for the newly-organized Warner Theaters Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Club Enright, East Liberty, Chapter, for next Saturday morning. This chapter was organized last Saturday and approximately 500 charter members attended the first meeting.

At next Saturday's meeting Andy T. Beveridge, Boy Scout executive of the Pittsburgh district, will address the Enright Chapter and a special cartoon show will be given for the young sters, including Hoot Gibson in "The Bad Hombre."

Another meeting of the downtown Harris Chapter will be held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and it is expected hundreds of new members will enroll in the Harris Chapter. The branch of the Junior Komic Club is being organized for the boys and girls under 14 years of age who live in the districts adjoining the Triangle—Duquesne Heights, South Side, West Side and Washington Heights.

SURPRISE SCHEDULED

There is to be a special surprise announcement to be made at Saturday morning's meeting. Be on hand at 10 o'clock, bring your application blank and get your membership cards and buttons. Watch for the surprise, but you won't know what it is unless you attend the meeting and join the Junior Komic Club.

The Junior Komic Club is still getting stacks of interesting letters from boys and girls who are sending in their application blanks. Morris Pries of Carrick writes:

"I'd just love to belong to a club which has anything to do with the Sun-Telegraph. This newspaper is always having interesting things in the paper for the boys and girls to do."

SPECIAL FEATURES

The surprise at the Harris Chapter meeting is not going to be the only surprise of the day. A special announcement is to be made at every chapter meeting about a big free Sunday afternoon theater party in November for Chapter members who regularly attend the meetings at the other Warner Theaters.

The Sun-Telegraph is still swamped with applications for enrollment. Membership cards and buttons are being mailed to the new members as fast as a big force of secretaries can get them out. It looks as though it will be an easy thing to swell the present membership of 20,000 to more than 50,000 before the Christmas holidays.

BIG LOAN URGED BY LA FOLLETTE

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 15.—(Universal.)—Describing the Hoover administration as an utter failure, Senator Robert M. La Follette, Wisconsin Progressive, last night declared the administration long ago should have adopted William Randolph Hearst's plan for a $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan for unemployment relief.

The President's recent move for easing credit through formation of a banking pool is "only part of a comprehensive relief program that should be undertaken," said La Follette.

It should have been accompanied by an extensive public works program as advocated by William Randolph Hearst, he insisted, saying:

"I am in favor of Mr. Hearst's proposal for a prosperity loan to finance public works, as I think nothing like that should be undertaken unless on a large scale.

"The $116,000,000 building program of last year I regard as a mere drop in the bucket."

SMITH BATTLES FOR TAMMANY

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Tammany braves are on the war-path again.

Spurred by the oratory of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Mayor James J. Walker, 4,000 Manhattan Democrats crowded the Tammany wigwam last night in a noisy campaign pow-wow.

The objectives set for Manhattan Democracy were twofold: Election or re-election of Tammany office seekers and vindication from the criticism that has arisen from the Seabury investigation into city offices.

Osteopaths to Hear Leader at Banquet

Dr. A. D. Becker, president of the American Osteopathic Association, will be the principal speaker at the fall banquet and meeting of the Allegheny County Osteopathic Society in the Hotel Henry tonight. Body of Attorney Suicide Comes Home

The body of Attorney Blythe S. Weddell, 34, of Beechwood boulevard, who ended his life in a cottage at Conneaut Lake Tuesday, was returned to Pittsburgh last night. Funeral services will be held privately here.

The body of the Pittsburgh attorney was found in his cottage by two Pittsburgh friends. The attorney's automobile had been moved close to a window in the cottage, and a hose had been attached to the automobile exhaust line and passed through the window. The Coroner listed the death as a suicide.

Technical Matters Before Gear Makers

If all the gears in the world were to be stripped for one hour, industry, transportation and virtually all business would be at a standstill, was the opening remark of President B. F. Waterman, of Providence, as the semi-annual meeting of the American Gear Manufacturers' Association began today in the Willam Penn Hotel. Technical discussions will occupy the sessions that continue through Saturday.

RECLUSE'S OLD FINERY SOUGHT

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(INS.)—Old lace and lavender, jewels and cameos, voluminous, costly ball gowns she wore when she danced with the Prince of Wales and her beau, Samuel J. Tilden, three-quarters of a century ago, were expected to be yielded up today in a search of Mrs. Ida E. Wood's 40 musty trunks.

Relatives of the recluse, in whose dingy hotel apartment $900,000 in cash and a fortune in gems and antiques already were found, prepared to interrupt legal action over her guardianship long enough today to examine more of her property.

Meanwhile, affidavits were filed on behalf of Mrs. Blanche Shields, granddaughter of the aged woman, criticised the fees of attorneys, physicians and alienists, as well as private detectives, intimating they were "flagrantly" too large.

P. R. R. to Relocate Line Near Lake

Now polish silverware without rubbing

BY MARY LEE WORK

A new quick way to CLEAN silver; to make two other jobs easy

There is now a simple new way that cleans silver without rubbing—and yet makes it look as if a professional silversmith had cleaned it! You don't even touch a cloth to it—just immerse it in a pan of water a few minutes.

In this way, you clean all your table silver in an instant—clean a complete silver service just as quickly.

It is a preparation called Climalene that you get for 10c a package (12-oz.) at any grocery store. Use according to directions below.

It makes many other hard jobs easier—removes bathtub ring without rubbing—cuts dishwashing time in half.

Thousands of women are using it now. It saves hours of work for them every day. Try it—these three ways.

To Clean Silver Without Rubbing

Add one teaspoonful of Climalene to 2 qts. of water in an aluminum pan. Immerse the silver—bring it to a boil. Then rinse silver and wipe it dry. That is all. All signs of tarnish disappear. Even the most intricate and highly embossed silver patterns are perfectly cleaned.

To Avoid Faded, Gray Washings

Use 2 tablespoonfuls of Climalene and ¼ the usual amount of soap. Clothes emerge soft spotless, utterly without fading. For soap fade and soap eat are ended this way. In recent tests, men's blue shirts were washed 75 times, without noticeable fade; sheerest French hosiery 100 times and more—to prove the blandness of this way.

Banish Bathtub Ring

Add a tablespoonful of Climalene to your bath water. It makes the water soft as summer rain. Soap makes a quick, rich lather. After the bath—just rinse the tub. That is all. There just isn't any "high-water" mark. No scrubbing; no rubbing.

Why It Cleans

Climalene instantly takes all the harshness out of Lake water, medium hard water, and hard water. Makes it soft and gentle as rain water. So soft it does the work with ¼ the soap you now use. At the same time, due to certain bland cleansing agents, it instantly DISSOLVES all grease, dirt and grime, and thus cuts your working time ½ or more, in washing, cleaning and in the dishpan.

"I find Mueller's goes farther than any other macaroni"

"It cooks up better"

IN many a confidential talk between mothers of families, this important economy point is discussed. Mueller's Macaroni makes a larger dish, when boiled, than any other macaroni. More nourishment—a more satisfying meal.

In every important feature, Mueller's Macaroni is essentially different from any other brand. It cooks up better. A more appealing taste, a greater lightness and digestibility, higher nutrition, and greater abundance when cooked.

Don't be satisfied with "just any macaroni". You owe it to yourself and your family to use only the best—made from the heart of the wheat by special Mueller processes. Your grocer has Mueller's, or can get it for you.

GERMAN 'PRICE OF PEACE' BARED

Terms Laid Down Before U. S. Entered World War Asked Slice of France

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Germany's price for peace two months before America entered the World War was revealed today by the State Department as "a slice of France" and general Allied indemnities.

The information was contained in a hitherto unpublished cablegram from Ambassador James W. Gerard on February 4, 1917, to President Wilson. It was part of a 708-page compilation of official correspondence made public by the State Department. It said:

"Even if there is war, German military calculated that they can starve England before America can do anything. These people have only one God—force.

"If you decide to make any threats, threaten war, Germans not afraid of break of diplomatic relations, which simply means they can go ahead and do what they please and attack us if they win."

The German Chancellor, he reported, had spoken to him of "the great hatred the military and naval people have for America."

The German terms for peace at that time, Gerard informed his chief, were:

"Germany to give up Belgium but retaining so-called guarantees such as railroads, forts, a garrison, ports, commercial control, etc; a slice of France through rectification of frontier; will only give back a small part of Serbia, and Bulgaria can do as she likes with Rumania and everybody must pay indemnities to Germany, etc."

Gerard added that "if Bernstorff (the German Ambassador) has given the President any other terms he is fooling him, but do not quote me to Bernstorff."

'PEOPLE WON' -M'GOVERN

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, Republican nominee to succeed himself, has issued a statement thanking his supporters. In it he says:

"It was not my victory but the people's victory. A culmination of 20 years' battle against the vicious system of election frauds which grew up in Allegheny County under official protection. The backbone of that official support has been broken and I sincerely hope for good. If permitted to continue, this social cancer, election frauds, would have permeated every section of the county.

"It is my purpose, if elected in November, to do my part to reduce waste and extravagance in the county government, to reorganize the county bureaus so as to get a maximum of service for a minimum of expense and to perfect such measures as will prevent election frauds in the future."

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have forgotten but which is the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs due to colds. It takes but a moment to prepare, costs little and works like magic in giving relief even in those dreaded cases that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. This makes a full pint of the most prompt-acting cough remedy you ever tasted, and you get the cost. It keeps perfectly and never spoils. You can feel the way it takes hold of a cough and soothes the irritated membranes with each swallow, how it is absorbed into the blood and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes. Within a few hours, the whole annoying, distressing cough, phlegm and cause that sometimes starts in a way that is serious, is gone.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine containing the active agents of creosote and other healing elements. Nothing else like it in medicine. Is helpful in cases of severe coughs. Don't accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Table Tells How Much Women and Girls Should Weigh

How would you like to lose 24 pounds of fat in a month and at the same time increase your energy and improve your health?

How would you like to lose a load of unhealthy fat that you don't need and don't want and at the same time feel better than you have for years?

Now Whiten Your Teeth 3 Shades in 3 Days

Remove nasty Yellow this way

NOBODY likes to look at teeth that are dull, dingy, yellow, discolored or eaten away by decay. And there's now no reason why you should have such teeth. They're unnatural. And the new scientific Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique proves they're unnatural by removing stain and yellow, and making teeth gleaming white.

Try this technique for a few days . . . A half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush, morning and night. You'll note an improvement after the first brushing. Your mouth will feel cleaner than ever. And in just 3 days teeth will look whiter—fully 3 shades whiter. Gums will feel firmer and look healthier. All because Kolynos does what no ordinary tooth-paste can do—it kills the millions of germs that cause most tooth and gum troubles. And cleans teeth as they should be cleaned—RIGHT DOWN TO THE BEAUTIFUL NAKED WHITE ENAMEL WITHOUT INJURY.

Kolynos is unique—unlike anything you've ever used. The very moment it enters the mouth it FOAMS, thus permitting the use of a dry brush which makes Kolynos 10 times more effective.

This penetrating FOAM gets into and cleans out every tiny pit, fissure and crevice. It erases tartar and yellow, washes away the unsightly mucoid coating. It kills the millions of germs that swarm into the mouth with every breath and attack teeth and gums—kills 190 million in the first 15 seconds.

Easily and quickly this remarkable Kolynos FOAM cleans teeth gleaming white and keeps them sound. It stimulates gums and keeps the breath sweet and fresh.

If you really want sound, dazzling white teeth and firm, coral-pink gums, try this way. You'll be glad that you did. Buy a tube of Kolynos from any druggist.

... take S.S.S.—a splendid Tonic for restoring the appetite and for rebuilding the red-blood-cells

"Dear, here is good news for you"

"Let me read you a message I found in the papers today . . . then I want you to start on your first bottle which I brought home for you tonight."

Those important precious red-blood-cells that mean so much to vitality, when lowered in count, render the body weak and deprive you of an appetite.

You cannot be low in strength and be happy—let's be happy.

S.S.S. is especially valuable in aiding the system to recuperate after the specific cause of a disease has spent its force.

Its Tonic properties will help the body restore to normal a low red-blood-cell count and by so doing many ailments may be avoided—body resistance increased and conditions of a low blood count corrected.

Take S.S.S. and notice how much better you will "feel" . . . as it helps Nature build red-blood-cells it will also create an appetite for food. These two things working together aid the human body in its struggle for health and vitality.

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring health and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a trial.

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

It is a great protection to health and physical well-being to keep the red-blood-cell count up to normal. These cells build and sustain—they also remove impurities.

(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to the cubic millimeter. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body—they also remove impurities from the tissues.

(Right) Weak red blood cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh and to carry away the impurities. Such a condition is often responsible for body weakness, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils.

Don't let them count you out!

You should know that S.S.S. has the distinct advantage of being composed of fresh vegetable medicinal ingredients in concentrated form . . . it is Mother Nature's formula.

Why not start taking S.S.S. today?—the larger size represents a price saving.

Club to See Stunts With Electric Light

Blowing out electric lights and relighting them with a match will be one of the tricks demonstrated by Dr. Phillips Thomas, research engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, tomorrow night before the Harvard Club in the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Clubhouse, William Penn way. The topic of this lecture will be "Electrons at Work and at Play."

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

IT HAPPENED in one of the better speakeasies the other early morning. A Big Shot in the production world arrived with three other men, and they were immediately seated at an excellent table. The Big Shot's eyes wandered around the place and finally settled upon an attractive little blonde at the bar.

He nudged a companion.

"Who's the cute blonde over there?" he asked. "Do you know her? No, not that one. The one with the dinky hat. Yes, that's right. Who is she?"

His friend smiled.

"Her name's Millicent," he replied. "Millicent Something-or-other. I don't remember the last name. She's a chorine in the 'Scandals.' You like?"

"I like very much," returned the Big Shot. "See if you can get her over here."

The friend did as requested. Within five minutes, the girl had dodged her escort and was seated next to the Big Shot. Immediately after the introduction she began to gush all over the place.

"Oh, Mr. Big Shot," she cooed, "it's such a really wonderful pleasure to know you. Everybody knows your name and what a grand person you are in the theater. What a thrill for me!"

The producer patted her hand and winked at his friend.

"There, there, my dear," he murmured, "you mustn't be afraid of me or my name. No name means very much these days, you know. We're all equal."

Outside, the small orchestra began to play. Millicent raised her eyes and swayed slightly.

"If you only knew, Mr. Big Shot," she cried. "If you only knew."

The man was puzzled.

"If I only knew what?" he muttered. What are you talking about, girlie?"

Millicent leaned closer to him.

"If you only knew," she asserted, "what wonderful things I could do in the theater if I had the chance. You don't know what a voice I have. Ah, if I was only working for you!"

The Big Shot shrugged his shoulders. He was sorry now that he had begun this thing. Somehow or other, the conversation always turned to the same thing no matter who the girl was. If only—

"I've never been given the chance," she cried. "Never! How does anyone know the emotions I carry around. What am I doing in the 'Scandals'? Do you know what I'm doing, I ask you? I'm a chorus girl!"

The Big Shot was growing more and more uncomfortable. His friends were nudging each other. And the chorine was getting more emotional by the minute.

"I don't belong in the chorus," she insisted. "That's the place for girls who lack the proper drive and talent. Not me. I have something to offer. Listen."

To the producer's consternation, the girl began to sing the song the orchestra was playing. She wasn't a bit bashful about it either. With the eyes of the entire room upon her, she gave out plenty. The producer squirmed in his chair.

When the song finally ended, the damsel looked dreamily at the Big Shot.

"There," she murmered a la Barrymore, "you have heard me sing. Tell me—do I belong in a chorus?"

The Big Shot arose.

"No, ma'm," he growled. "In a department store!"

SPEAKING of chorines and such reminds me of the two Follies girls who have been battling verbally ever since the show opened. In the wings the other night, they started all over again.

"I shouldn't even discuss class things with you," said the first.

"You have no understanding of the finer things. You don't know the meaning of good living."

The second lady laughed nastily.

"Thats a hot one," she returned. "I don't know nothing, don't I? Well, can I ask you where you copped the right to be so high hat?"

"You certainly can," stated the first, "and I'll tell you. It's because my background is better. I stopped at the Ritz all last Winter."

"Yeah?" meowed the other. "And were the tips good?" . . .

ON UPPER Park avenue, reports Joe Eisinger, a young chap opened a cordial store and went into the liquor racket as a means of combating the depression. He was doing rather well when the local coppers decided to hackle him. And they did a pretty job of it.

They began to pinch him on an average of once a month. The arrests didn't mean very much, because they were merely possession charges and meant little more than a small fine if the case couldn't be beaten. The tough angle cropped up in the fact that his entire stock was carried off with each arrest. And inasmuch as that represented a loss of from $400 up, it can easily be seen that the racket boy couldn't hold out any too long.

One afternoon, he hit upon a solution. On a sub-let, he rented a small apartment in a house directly across the street from his store. In that spot he piled up most of his liquor. He kept very little stock in the store and, when he wanted additional supplies, all he had to do was to send to his apartment for it. So far, then, so good. Nothing new about that solution. Thousands of liquor sellers in New York do exactly the same thing.

The pay-off in this case arrives when I tell you that the woman from whom the apartment was sublet has no knowledge of what is going on. She doesn't even dream that her bathtub is being used for the express purpose of making batches of alleged gin.

If she did know, I think she'd roll right over and call for the undertaker. For, in case of a pinch, in an apartment, the original holder of the lease is always sought out. And this lady happens to be an honorary member of New York's prohibition enforcement squad! . . .

A CERTAIN actor, as conceited as they come, drove to Tenth avenue in his car the other night, in order to get home as speedily as possible. The first thing he did was to bump into a taxicab, whose driver wasn't feeling any too well in the first place. The driver let off a torrent of cursing that was a classic.

The actor hopped out of his car. So did the cab driver.

"See here, my man," cried the actor as he shook his finger at the driver, "I'll have you understand that I'm F—— F——, the actor. How dare you talk to me like that? I'll have you understand that I have a large pull on Broadway."

"You got a large pull on Broadway, eh?" sneered the driver. "Well, you go back there and tell them that you got a large push on Tenth avenue."

And he knocked the actor flat!

Fatigue is the signal to rest. Obey it if you can. When you can't, keep cool and carry-on in comfort.

Bayer Aspirin was meant for just such times, for it insures your comfort. Freedom from those pains that nag at nerves and wear you down. One tablet will block that threatening headache while it is still just a threat. Take two or three tablets when you've caught a cold, and that's usually the end of it.

Carry Bayer Aspirin when you travel. Have some at home and keep some at the office. Like an efficient secretary, it will often "save the day" and spare you many uncomfortable, unproductive hours. Perfectly harmless, so keep it handy, keep it in mind, and use it. No man of affairs can afford to ignore the score and more of uses explained in the proven directions. From a grumbling tooth to those rheumatic pains which seem almost to bend the bones, Bayer Aspirin is ready with its quick relief—and always works. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Any nagging, needless pain.

Ritchie Holds Jobs Obligation of Industry

buying. Now everybody has to pay.

"Lack of confidence and fear and panics born of fear came with falling values. It may be bad politics to say it, but there is no magic remedy. Legerdemain will not help.

ALL MUST PAY

"The poor are poorer and so are the rich, but all must pay the price of folly.

"Still, if we have to face these facts showing our weaknesses, let us not overlook facts showing our strength.

"All the things which created the wealth of our past we still have. The foundations on which real prosperity must build are still here. We are a nation of 120,000,000 people with an infinity of wants and desires, ambitions to succeed, willing to labor, to buy and sell, and living in a land with unlimited resources and opportunities.

SEES GREATER BOOM

"He must have little faith in his country or little vision of the future who cannot foresee at last a prosperity greater than ever."

Gov. Ritchie made [illegible] anti-prohibitionist [illegible] made but fleeting references to prohibition, speaking of it as a noble experiment that failed.

To those in the international situation and foreign debts, he said:

"The moratorium should be extended for another year at least, in order that time may show the proper ultimate course with regard to our foreign debts.

"This course should be guided by economics and not by politics.

"It is unthinkable that we should reduce the debts due us by other nations and leave those nations free to use the money thus saved in building armaments, whether those might be used against us or not."

SCORES FARM AID PLAN

The importance of politics and economics understanding each other and working together, he said, is obvious in a survey of the questions, foreign and domestic, awaiting the coming session of Congress. He continued:

"The tariff, for instance, is no longer a local question, nor is it properly a partisan question either. It underlies the whole question of our foreign debts, of our foreign trade and possibly of international stability and security as well. Here certainly politics alone can no longer have its way.

"So, too, our agrarian breakdown can only grow worse if the farmer pins his faith on political leadership alone. Of little use can political leadership be, when, in the vain hope of lifting the farmer by his own bootstraps, it buys millions of bushels of wheat to stabilize the price, and then dares not sell it for fear the price may go to the vanishing point, and so can only exchange some of it for Brazilian coffee, and thus put government in competition with industry. Of little use can political leadership be when, with a surplus of cotton and a deficit of clothes, the most it can tell the planter who has stood the cost of growing his cotton, is to stand now the cost of plowing up and destroying every third row of it.

UP TO INDUSTRY

"It seems almost as if a panic were required to make us see—if, indeed, we do see—that the law of supply and demand still works.

"The question of forced industrial unemployment is upon us. I believe it to be true that a nation's supreme obligation is to protect its citizenship. If its citizens are threatened or attacked, government must guard them or defend them. If they are naked or starving or unsheltered, and if they can be clothed or fed or housed in no other way, then government must do it. But in the cause of industrial labor the obligation to do these things, or rather furnish the means for doing them, is, in this country, primarily on industry itself.

"Both social justice and its own material welfare demand that industry should plan some provision for its labor when enforced idleness comes. Yet we talk about compulsory unemployment insurance without troubling ourselves very much to see whether any proposed squares with the ideals of personal initiative and self-reliance and with the spirit of individual and collective enterprise which have brought our country to world leadership and which are still our greatest hope for the future."

DOUMER'S MESSAGE

Col. Church received the following letter from Paul Doumer, president of France:

"It is a very long time, I believe, since I have had any news from you, and here is coming again very soon the anniversary of the foundation of the Carnegie Institute. You and I had planned certain arrangements as to a visit to Pittsburgh, which circumstances have forced me to cancel. But my thoughts go to you in your celebration of Founder's Day and I am wishing you that I might be with you again, and I want now to send to you and to the memory of your great chief, Mr. Carnegie, who was also my friend, my remembrance, full of appreciation and of affection."

Anti-Dry Sentiment Growing, Ritchie Believes

Gov. Ritchie, shortly after his arrival in Pittsburgh this morning, when interviewed by a Sun-Telegraph reporter, voiced his opinion that public sentiment against prohibition is growing steadily. He said:

"The action of the American Legion, the American Bar Association and the American Federation, in their recent stands on prohibition, is a strong indication of the way national sentiment is veering today."

He said he had made no plans for a presidential campaign, but "certainly would not refuse the nomination."

McCann's 58th Anniversary Sales
MAINE POTATOES 100 lbs. $1.00
McCann's Two Stores

Loses 42 Lbs. by Internal Bathing
From 214 lbs. to 172 lbs. in a Short Time and He Never Felt Finer in His Life—No Dieting
One vital reason insurance companies consider overweight people such poor risks is that excess fat puts an added strain on the heart. Every new pound of flesh adds 4,500 linear feet of new blood vessels—and more work for the heart.
Little wonder L. D. Teall of Erie, Mich., rejoiced when he made the glorious discovery that Internal Bathing with the J. B. L. Cascade not only had corrected his constipation but had reduced his weight from an unhealthy 214 lbs. to a healthy 172 lbs.
"My muscles are hard, my endurance is great, my waist line is six inches smaller. I don't get out of breath easily and I never felt finer in years," he adds.
Most people don't know that obesity and constipation are evil allies. Seldom do you find one without the other.
Excess fat interferes with healthy elimination. The absorbed poisons from constipation weaken and impair the whole system—you have no energy for activity, and the fat piles right on.
By bathing internally with the J. B. L. Cascade, which floods the entire lower intestine with soft, warm water purified by a marvelous tonic, you flush the system free of impurities and enervating poisons. That absorption stops. Cells and tissues throw off the poisons that clog them and impair their efficiency. Energy returns—you feel like a newly charged battery. Your increased activity and magnificent inner cleanliness work off the poundage. Clean inside, you become slim outside.
The most beautiful figure the stage has ever known, Lillian Russell, retained its girlish grace by Internal Bathing with the Cascade. Know the full story of this marvelous hygienic treatment without obligation. Get a FREE Copy of "Why We Should Bathe Internally" at any of our stores. It describes the whole Cascade principle and what it has done for more than 1,000,000 men and women. Ask us to show you the complete Cascade outfit—we'll gladly do so. Don't cart around unhealthy fat when you can pleasantly, painlessly wash it away.

Before Baby Comes
Turn the months of waiting into ease and comfort
THE birth of a child is a beautiful sacrifice the mother-to-be makes for the world . . . inconveniences, discomforts and pains are endured and borne without complaint.
You owe it to yourself and your unborn child to employ reasonable and harmless means to relieve yourself of needless suffering, pain and nervousness, as well as the possible excessive disfigurement thru the formation of the striae gravidarum, those minute breaks of the skin and tissues, which usually attend this condition.
For generations mothers have used and recommended to their daughters—Mother's Friend—a skin emollient which is gently massaged externally of course, to loosen the skin and abdominal tissues during the stretching and distending process.
Mother's Friend by its relaxing and softening properties, aids in bringing ease and comfort. It also helps to prevent "caking," thus being of great assistance in nursing.
This time-tried aid, the prescription of a physician long used in his practice 60 years ago, is an external and harmless massage medium—gratefully and enthusiastically endorsed by mothers and recommended by many physicians and nurses.
For your own comfort and ease of mind do use it in these trying months. It may be conveniently secured from any druggist in the U. S. in the inexpensive $1.25 size, or if you prefer, mailed direct on receipt of price.
To those unfamiliar with Mother's Friend we will be glad to mail a testing trial size without charge. You will be delighted with the physical pharmaceutical beauty of the preparation itself. Its use will bring you comfort and happiness.

"None so good as LUCKIES"

"I've tried all cigarettes and there's none so good as LUCKIES. And incidentally I'm careful in my choice of cigarettes. I have to be because of my throat. Put me down as one who always reaches for a LUCKY. It's a real delight to find a Cellophane wrapper that opens without an ice pick."

Jean Harlow first set the screen ablaze in "Hell's Angels," the great air film, and she almost stole the show from a fleet of fifty planes. See her "Goldie," a Fox film and Columbia's "Platinum Blonde."

 Is Miss Harlow's Statement Paid For?

You may be interested in knowing that not one cent was paid to Miss Harlow to make the above statement. Miss Harlow has been a smoker of LUCKY STRIKE cigarettes for 2 years. We hope the publicity herewith given will be as beneficial to her and to Fox and Columbia, her producers, as her endorsement of LUCKIES is to you and to us.

Made of the finest tobaccos—The Cream of many Crops—LUCKY STRIKE alone offers the throat protection of the exclusive "TOASTING" Process which includes the use of modern Ultra Violet Rays—the process that expels certain harsh, biting irritants naturally present in every tobacco leaf. WIFE DIVORCES PRISON INMATE

Mrs. Margaret M. Fulton, Breckenridge street, was granted a divorce from Russell B. Fulton, serving a sentence of five to 10 years in Western Penitentiary for robbery, by Judge William H. McNaugher in Common Pleas Court.

They were married June 26, 1913, at Greensburg, and lived together until August 10, 1930, when Fulton was arrested in East Liberty on charges of robbery and receiving stolen goods. He was sentenced by Judge George V. Moore, certificates of record established.

Mrs. Gertrude Hough Curley, 138 Arch street, Verona, asked a divorce from Raymond J. Curley, 269 Atlantic drive, Mt. Lebanon, in Common Pleas Court, charging cruelty and indignities. They were married December 8, 1928.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

SOME WOMEN ALWAYS ATTRACT

You want to be beautiful. You want the tireless energy, fresh complexion and pep of youth. Then let Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets help free your system of the poisons caused by clogging bowels and torpid liver.

For 20 years, men and women suffering from stomach troubles, pimples, listlessness and headaches have taken Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, a successful substitute for calomel, a compound of vegetable ingredients, known by their olive color. They act easily upon the bowels without griping. They help cleanse the system and tone up the liver.

If you value youth and its many gifts, take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly. How much better you will feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

VERONA WARNED ON VOTE FRAUDS

Alderman John J. Verona was warned today by Judge Frank T. Patterson in Common Pleas Court that he must not interfere with nor obstruct investigation into election frauds.

The warning was issued after two Negroes wanted as witnesses in registration fraud hearings before Alderman A. J. Henning today had been arrested last night and placed under $3,000 bond each after being taken to Verona's office.

Verona told Judge Patterson that he had been busy at the time the Negroes were brought in and that bail had been set by a clerk. He said he had no intention of interfering with the hearing before Alderman Henning.

The Negroes, Walter Raines and Clarence Clark, were arrested on a variety of charges running from election law violations to assault and battery and carrying concealed weapons. They were thrown into jail immediately after their arrest.

Judge Patterson, found at a banquet by the prisoners' attorneys, granted a habeas corpus writ for their release and today reset their bonds at $1,000 each.

IRENE'S PASTOR ACQUITTED

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Oct. 15 —The Rev. H. O. Teagarden, former minister of the Sewellsville Methodist Church, won another battle yesterday when Justice C. B. Bradfield found him not guilty of assault on Elder L. C. Hoffman during Sunday school services two weeks ago.

The decision was made after two days of fiery testimony. Not another person could have crowded into the courtroom to hear the arguments of the attorneys, which lasted two hours.

The decision is final. Bradfield having complete jurisdiction, and no appeal will be made. Teagarden commented:

"It proves that a preacher does not have to turn the other cheek to his enemy when he is struck."

Teagarden was spiritual adviser to Glenn Dague and Irene Schrader at New Castle, Pa., before their electrocution for murder.

Recently he called for deputy sheriffs to guard his revival services from attack by gangsters. He is now a member of the Sewellsville church.

FALLS 25 FEET, RECOVERING

Elizabeth Ann, 2½-year-old daughter of John Herbert, 210 Herman avenue, Wilmerding, today was recovering from shock as a result of a 25-foot fall last evening. No bones were broken, but Dr. W. J. Salisbury, to whose office she was taken after she had fallen from a window of the third floor apartment in which she lived, administered first aid and sent her to McKeesport Hospital for observation.

The child was playing near the window when the accident occurred. Her screams attracted Paul Marcon, who lives on the second floor at the same address, and he took her to the physician's office.

MUSIC

Pittsburgh String Symphony Ensemble

Carnegie Lecture Hall

The Pittsburgh String Symphony Ensemble organized last spring to further chamber music in our city, opened its season of 10 concerts last night in Carnegie Lecture Hall.

Mr. Lissfelt

All the results of depression cannot be bad so long as it urges our Pittsburgh musicians to exert themselves in this manner and give us music that otherwise would never be heard.

The program was entertaining throughout but based on a classic suite of Bach in which the concert culminated. An arrangement of the Pathetic Sonata of Beethoven opened the program. It remains questionable whether these arrangements can be successful for Beethoven conceived his works so accurately for the instrument of his original score. Mr. Del Bianca made a worth-while scoring and his men played with a sparkle.

Again the director brought to hearing a presto of Zitterbart, our Pittsburgh composer, and further a rousing rendition of Percy Grainger's Mock Morris Dance.

Organ Dedication

Sacred Heart Church

A most beautifully solemn ceremony took place in Sacred Heart Church last night. The event was the dedication of the new organ, and was accompanied by all the fervor associated with the Catholic church service. The lovely vaulted nave resounded with fine music, the organist and choirmaster, Edgar J. Bowman certainly sparing himself no pains.

How surely it was brought home once again that the organ belongs to the church not to the concert hall. Its massive tones and the breadth of design in which great masters created for this instrument so completely coincide with Gothic curve and line that the music, if incomprehensible to many as conscious art, must have stirred their deepest religious emotions as they listened last night. There was music from all the important writers of classic organ music and some lovely motets as well sung by the parish choir.

Organist Bowman is a newcomer in the Pittsburgh music colony and a worthy fellow.

JAILED DEBTOR FILES CHARGE

Accused of attempted extortion and conspiracy, Justice of the Peace John G. Metz, of Library, and Constable Jake Essell, posted $1,000 bond for a hearing next Tuesday. The information was made by Lester Franks, of Lincoln avenue, Bellevue. A warrant has been issued for the credit manager of a credit clothing store.

According to Franks he purchased a suit on credit and when he lost his job he became delinquent. Franks says he was arrested on a larceny by bailee charge and taken before Justice Metz, and that although he offered to return the suit he was placed in jail.

REVIEW COMPOSER'S LIFE :-: Pitt-Notre Dame Game May Be Broadcast :-: NEW DANCE ORCHESTRA

WE NOW PRESENT

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

THE ULTRA IN studio persuasion has been suggested by a Chicago production man . . . he proposes to create an artificial weather in the studio to stir the emotions of artists in radio playlets . . . By using the studio's ventilating, cooling and heating system the temperature would be regulated to suit the action of the story . . . For a scene of lost hope, dejection or the frozen North, the temperature would be lowered to 55 . . . for love, anger and the more violent emotions, the thermometers would be boosted to fever heat . . . Of course he explains this temperature arrangement would exist for radio sketches only, as any variance in the atmosphere of a studio containing musical instruments would result in heavy damage . . . Can't you picture tonight, for instance, the Lumberjacks, inspiring as they do the cold woods of Vermont, harmonizing at 55 degrees for their 7 o'clock broadcast on WCAE? . . . If they used the same system on orchestras the asbestos manufacturers would grow rich over night.

Darrell V. Martin

Tamara—that's all—is the identification for Rudy Vallee's guest on WCAE at 8 o'clock tonight . . . she's a Russian singer . . . There's a growing tendency for radio artists to delete their surname . . . and in this city a specific example in Lucile Hamilton, former WCAE pianist, who is being groomed to return to the air under the plain booking of "Lucile, Contralto."

* * *

This man Rimsky - Korsakoff whose scintillating musical career had its beginning when he was nothing but an ordinary sailor, finds himself reviewed in story and song over WCAE at 9 o'clock . . . the exotic "Song of India" with luring clarinets, the magnificent "Hymn to the Sun" and engaging "Scheherazade" . . . who could ask for more, unless it be the all Tschaikowsky concert of Toscha Seidel's on WJAS at the same hour.

Question a Day:

This summer you suggested in your column that WJAS pick up Pirate baseball games from Chicago via WBBM. I forget just why WJAS passed up your suggestion. Why not propose now that WJAS pick up the Pitt-Notre Dame football game through WBBM on Saturday, October 24?—Louis M. Vandergrift.

Answer—We put the idea to H. J. Brennen, WJAS manager, several weeks ago. There is a possibility that WJAS will carry this game through WBBM, a hookup having been already established for the Father Coughlin talks on Sundays. The baseball broadcasts from Chicago were passed up when it was learned that the line toll alone for three hours would run about $500, more than any Pittsburgh sponsor would want to pay. However in this Pitt-Notre Dame case, it is very likely that some local company will gladly foot the bill.

Interesting sidelights of famous personalities are booked for review by Edwin C. Hill in a new feature "The Trumpeters," over WJAS at 10 o'clock tonight.

President Hoover, Lawrence Tibbett, the Marine Band are to be heard over KDKA-WCAE at 6 o'clock this Sunday in an unemployment program . . .

Art Randall takes up Jimmy Joy's post at the William Penn-KDKA at 11:30 tonight . . . Art's music is the society brand, something like Jack Denny . . . Art and Ed Harvey, KDKA production man, are great pals, Harvey having introduced Randall several times over Chicago NBC . . .

There's a whisper that stage shows are to be resumed in local theaters on Friday, October 23, thus bringing back to the air the Dick Liebert organ recitals and Dick Powell . . .

Phil Cook and his "army of voices" start on a march tomorrow, stopping at Boston on a personal appearance tour that will bring him through Pittsburgh sometime in November . . .

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—New York can always find time to give a hey-hey to new jazz bands. It may yawn over every other aspect of life, accept as a matter of course, a new skyscraper, a new speakeasy, a new master of ceremonies in the Broadway vineyards, but let a new jazz band appear, with a reputation in distant dells behind it, and it is all a-jitter.

Moreover, it cares not where the band hails from, so long as it pays its tribute to St. Vitus with zip and originality. Not too much zip, mind you. Harlem is always available for zip with a capital Z. But just enough to keep the shufflers from swooning.

New York's latest hey-heys are for an outfit which is called, in the fashion of the Middle West, the Night-Hawks. A band, directed not by one but two maestros, though neither is visible as a leader to the naked eye, or even a bleary one.

One leader sits behind the drums, the other at the piano. Surrounding them are 10 virtuosi of the saxophone and horn. They do tricks with horns, these fellows, bringing a sort of sobbing nasal convincingness to "Now You're in My Arms," the sort of convincingness that old-fashioned playwrights once found so profitable when voiced by village swains.

"My in-laws can't figure out"

why my hands keep so nice

Every time HUBBY'S SISTERS come over they PEEK around. They can't FIGURE OUT how my house is so NEAT Yet my HANDS are so PRETTY!

They don't KNOW yet that I've CHANGED to the NEW CHIPSO flakes.

They make the GRANDEST SUDS you ever SAW! They SOAK out DIRT—yet they're so GENTLE that I WASH out my COLORED SILK UNDIES in CHIPSO now.

• • •

Watch your HANDS SMOOTH UP when you wash DISHES WITH NEW CHIPSO flakes that give SPEED SUDS!

"He's a little roughneck"

But the new Chipso soaks his clothes clean

Don't ask me HOW Jim gets his SUITS and HANDKERCHIEFS so filthy BLACK!

But I'm GLAD HE'S no SISSY—and I don't SCOLD him now that I'm SOAKING his CLOTHES CLEAN in CHIPSO'S GRAND SUDS!

The NEW CHIPSO flakes make TWICE the SUDS of those other SOAPS—That's WHY I don't have to RUB any more!

• • •

Don't go ANOTHER DAY without trying out NEW CHIPSO FLAKES. You'll get SPEED SUDS in LUKEWARM WATER!

BLAST VICTIM DIES HERE

Burned about the body when an explosion wrecked the first floor of an apartment house at 131 South Negley avenue, George Lemmon, 63, died this morning in the West Penn Hospital. The explosion, believed to have been caused by gas, occurred Monday. Two women and two children also were hurt in the blast.

Lemmon resided in the rear first floor apartment and the explosion occurred in the front first floor apartment while Mrs. Jane Reedy, of Greensburg, and her two children, Janet May, 5, and Joseph, 2, were inspecting the apartment. Mrs. Emma Burns, 38, a Negro, of 138 Randolph street, who was passing the house at the time and Mrs. Reedy and the children were burned.

HOOVER DENIES BEER FIGURES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. (INS)—National dry leaders were gratified today by reports that President Hoover has challenged the claim of organized labor that legalized beer would put 1,500,000 men back to work and draw a $1,000,000 a year in taxes into the treasury.

These figures were disputed by the President, it was said, when laid before him by James C. Moreland, Chicago city councilman, in filing a beer petition with Mr. Hoover. The President was quoted as telling Moreland that these facts are basically erroneous.

The story immediately revived interest in the recent activities of Walter H. Newton, a White House secretary, and Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, in gathering beer statistics.

Kept Her Cash Through Slumps, Gets Guardian

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Mrs. Woods, of New York, is 93, smokes black cigars and pins $900,000 in cash money inside her clothing.

When she sneezes a $1,000 bill drops out of her poke bonnet. Her nephews and nieces are fighting to see who loves her most.

She stacked all that pork rind away during the 1907 panic. Now, her relatives claim she can't take care of her money because she managed to save it during three depressions.

She is about the only charter member of the good old days who can show some proof of them. By the way, what's become of those bankers who complained the $20 gold pieces wouldn't' stack?

And where are those Buffalo nickels that once roamed the eastern prairies in countless numbers? And what is the Seabury comittee going to do about Primo Carnera?

Primo must be a politician. In that fight with Sharkey he showed he was another big man who can take it.

FUNDS NEEDED TO MAKE UP DEFICIT

Faced by Loss of Positions Defeat Proves Expensive; Fuel Added to Rebellion

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong's losing campaign for re-election promises to be an expensive one for those who are indebted to him.

It was learned today members of the Board for Assessment and Revision of Taxes—nine in number with the lowest salary $5,000 a year—were called together yesterday and informed each must contribute $500 to make up the deficit in Armstrong's campaign fund.

Prior to the primary election, each member of the board had been assessed $200 for the Armstrong "war chest."

Most of the Tax Board members are Armstrong appointees and are expected to be looking for jobs when the new administration takes over the county offices January 1. As a result, the protests against yesterday's demands were long and loud.

The Tax Board's attitude of resentment added fuel to the smoldering rebellion among Armstrong's other county employe underlings, who have been hearing from sources close to the Commissioner during the past few days they are expected to contribute 2 per cent of their yearly salary to clear up the campaign deficit.

Faced with the almost certain loss of their jobs in the midst of a period of unemployment, many of the workers have announced they will refuse flatly.

DISPLAY OPENS TO PUBLIC TODAY

American Group Praised for Native Subjects; Foreign Repetition Seen as Flaw

By PENELOPE REDD

The thirtieth exhibition of paintings by artists in Europe and the United States, presented annually at Carnegie Institute, opened with a private preview in the galleries of the department of fine arts last night.

As usual, artistic and social Pittsburgh attended en masse. Today the galleries will be opened to the public immediately after the Founder's Day exercises in the Music Hall.

Penelope Redd

The first impression of the European section is that art across the Atlantic, during the past year, has operated on a basis of repeating successful models.

U. S. GROUP LAUDED

The United States group, on the other hand, measures up to the best compilations of domestic art exhibited in the local gallery.

But getting back to the foreign offerings, a sober critic is obliged to admit that, as a whole, this is one of the most disappointing importations brought across the seas in many years.

Individual artists are frequently brilliant, bizarre, or authentically impressive. The too-oft repeated motif of canvases, differing scarcely at all one from the other on the part of the painters with groups of two and three, makes, however, for monotony rather than emphasis.

GROUP DISPLAYS

It has been stated by the Department of Fine Arts that "most of the artists in the exhibition are represented by groups of two to three paintings. This is done in order to give the public a better opportunity to study the development and personality of the painters in the show."

In the European section there seems to be only 47 painters represented by single canvases.

The other 110 painters contribute 285 paintings.

In theory, it is a laudable educational program to demonstrate

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 15.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

As soon as the government lawyers had shown that Al Capone wore silk underwear they rested their case. They looked at the jury and figured that would be the most damaging evidence they could bring before 'em. I don't know if that's the worst charge against Capone, but that about sizes up the condition of the rest of the country. We haven't been any more used to the silk underwear than Capone was and this old cotton is scratching us and that's what we are beefing about.

Woman Scorns Patrol Ride; Drives Self to Court

Mrs. Mary MacDougal, of 5343 Waterford street, who refused to ride in the East End police patrol after being arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct, paid a fine of $10 today when Mounted Patrolman Peter Walsh testified she "sassed" him.

Walsh testified he was tagging cars in Kirkwood street when Mrs. MacDougal, who stopped behind a parked truck, called to him to get the truck out of the way so she could proceed.

Walsh said he told her he would do what he could, but she continued to argue. The argument was climaxed, he testified, when F. M. Stagel, 25, also of 5343 Waterford street, riding with Mrs. MacDougal, tossed a lighted cigaret which struck him in the chest. Walsh also testified that after he called the patrol wagon, Mrs. MacDougal refused to ride in it, insisting she drive her automobile to the station.

Stagel was fined $10, as was Karl Eggers, 22, of 380 Lehigh avenue, another motorist who had been parked in the street, and who also was arrested.

WOMEN FACTOR IN ECONOMIC RECOVERY

Dr. Gilbreth Reveals Plan To Co-ordinate Interests Of Retailer and Consumer

Women will play an important part in the revival of business through the co-ordination of the retailer and consumer, for which a nation-wide program will be ready for operation shortly, according to Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, who speaks at the annual convention banquet tonight of the Society of Industrial Engineers in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Pittsburgh women will share in the responsibility through the campaign being carried on by the General Federation of Women's Clubs' Allegheny County branch, Dr. Gilbreth, who was chairman of the women's committee of the President's Emergency Committee last year, is directing the campaign through the committees of the original group. Describing the importance of the plan, she said:

"Women compose 85 per cent of the retail buyers. It is our plan to co-ordinate the efforts of these consumers and the retailers. The latter will be asked to do a square deal job in merchandising and to keep as many persons at work as possible.

"The women will be urged to indulge in wise buying with the fair merchant. An educational plan for improving the home and other plans will be carried on with view to creating more buying. Through the co-ordination, employment can be improved, starting with the retailer, through the wholesaler to the manufacturer."

The convention closes tomorrow night.

$24,000 ASKED TO AID BLIND

Request of the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind for a $24,000 appropriation to meet a deficit resulting from increased activities was being considered by Council today following a public hearing yesterday.

Unless the appropriation is granted, according to Matthew A. Dunn, blind member of the State Legislature, blind persons will be forced again to solicit alms on city streets. At present blind men and women are given employment at the Workshop for the Blind, Boulevard of the Allies.

Aid from Council, according to Dunn, would prevent arrests of the sightless by police for soliciting held on the streets. In the past, Dunn charged, the Chamber of Commerce and businessmen condemned the blind men and women and had them arrested.

It is likely action will be taken on the request within the next few days, Council President John S. Herron said.

Self-Infection Menace Ended by KLEENEX
Disposable Tissues

YOUR handkerchief is a constant source of danger! Used once, it is fit only to be destroyed.

And that is just what happens when you use Kleenex tissues.

Kleenex costs so little that you destroy each tissue immediately after use. Germs are instantly destroyed before they have a chance to re-infect you, or to spread infection among others. Every tissue that touches your face is clean, fresh and sanitary.

No Laundering

These disposable tissues entirely do away with handkerchief laundering. Kleenex costs less than commercial laundering. Or if you wash handkerchiefs at home, Kleenex relieves you from this disagreeable task.

Kleenex is made from rayon cellulose, and is far softer than the oldest linen handkerchief. And nearly twice as absorbent. Kleenex can never irritate . . . a wonderful relief during colds.

A modern necessity

For removing face creams Kleenex has no equal. Its absorbency is really necessary to blot embedded impurities of dirt and make-up from the pores.

Try Kleenex, also, for polishing spectacles, manicuring, applying medicines and bandaging. Keep a package handy in the kitchen, bath and bedroom—in the car. At all drug, dry goods and department stores.

Disease Germs

found in handkerchiefs used during colds include the dangerous Staphylococcus (pus germ), Pneumococcus, Streptococcus and Catarrhalis.

KLEENEX Disposable TISSUES

Dirty handkerchiefs are a menace to society!

the range of the painters by groups of their paintings. Actually, when one examines the foreign section, the intention is greater than the performance.

For example, in the French section, we are seeing the work of Forain for the last time.

FAILURE OF THEORY

What do we find? Three paintings of dancers, one of which, "In the Dancer's Dressing Room," was sufficient to have shown Forain in that choice of subject. Forain's range was broad and three almost identical subjects fail completely to commemmorate his power.

On the other hand, Le Sidaner and Signac, both paint a single type of subject habitually.

Le Sidaner prefers a dramatized still life, while Signac is deft in mosaic-like paintings of ports and boats. Both of these men, whose work is thoroughly familiar even to the casual annual visitor, are represented by three canvases each. Would not one each be adequate for the public to review?

SUBJECT REPEATED

Henri Matisse, also in the French section, is another case in point. His range is greater than either Le Sidaner or Signac in subject matter, but not in style. Despite this, three paintings with the same subject, "Odalisque," are hung. These eyes refuse to believe that odalisques in triplicate are vital to the public's esthetics.

Moving on to the galleries devoted to Great Britain, one finds the selection of paintings by the late Sir William Orpen, better than that of Forain, who also died recently.

Orpen was the most versatile painter in Great Britain so a selection of any three of his canvases, of necessity, excludes other moods equally representative.

ORPEN PORTRAIT

For the Pittsburgh public there is also local interest in Orpen's portrait of George Crawford.

Another portrait in this section of local appeal is that of Frederic Schaefer, by Maurice Greiffenhagen. One cannot recognize, however, the necessity for the other Greiffenhagen portrait of one of the painter's kinsmen.

Nor does one understand what esthetic stimulus lies in three landscapes by P. Wilson Steer, when one would have told his story.

Colin Gill and Paul Nash, particularly, justify in diversity of subject the inclusion of more than one canvas.

'NEWER MEN' MISSING

Although Paul Nash, one of the year's judges, referred in a New York interview to five young English painters as "newer men . . . whose tendency now is more toward the abstract—toward insistence on structure and design and the imaginative elements," not one of them is included in the exhibition.

Taking a smaller section, for example, that of Czechoslovakia, Blazicek, a good traditional painter, is represented by three landscapes. "Gypsies" has all the virtues of the other two and the additional interest of human figures.

In the Italian section, one meets with many repetitious themes. Out of the 15 painters exhibiting, 13 have 32 canvases. Only two painters show one painting each.

ITALIAN SECTION

Romagnoli and Casorati, by their varying ideas are entitled to more than one canvas. Note, in passing, Ferrazzi's three paintings, all dominated by horses.

A staid critic is hard pressed to find more than 15 painters out of the entire group of 157 Europeans, whose range of style or subject as revealed in the current exhibition commands the right to more than one painting.

Could not the canvases be chosen so that obvious repetition might be the exception rather than the rule? More hanging space would then be available to exhibit works from perhaps 100 more painters from countries other than the United States, without increasing the number of foreign works.

In the American section, it is gratifying to note that many of the younger painters are close to the life of their own land in their art. There is an increasing interest in Americana from the paintings inspired by the ballads of the Ozarks in the work of Thomas Benton to such splendid portraits as those of Charles Hopkinson and Eugene Speicher.

Detailed reviews of various painters and nationalities will be written during the course of the thirtieth annual exhibition which continues through December 6.

DEROSA VICTOR IN DIVIDED DECISION

Fourteenth District Votes Permitted to Stand; Both Names on Ballot

Michael DeRosa, Jr., is nominated for alderman of the Twelfth Ward, East End, by 90 votes, under a decision handed down in Quarter Sessions Court late yesterday by Judge Frank P. Patterson. Judge James H. Gray handed down a dissenting opinion which would have given the nomination to Alderman William A. Means by eight votes, but the decision of Judge Patterson prevails and DeRosa's name will go on the ballot as the Republican nominee.

Both names will be on the ballot under minor party headings, and it is said the contest will continue until election day.

Judge Patterson, in his opinion, upheld Examiner Garnet R. Spear in throwing out the vote for alderman in the Fifth, Eighth and Twelfth districts, where it had been testified the polls had remained open long after the closing hour.

Then Judge Patterson overruled the examiner, who had held there was insufficient evidence to throw out the Fourteenth District, where the polls had remained open 22 minutes after the closing hour, until it was closed by state police. The judge decreed that this vote also should be thrown out. Judge Gray, in dissenting, said:

"While the decision in this case rests with Judge Patterson, as I sat with him at the argument I feel that I should state that I concur in the opinion of Judge Patterson, except as to his conclusions in regard to the Fourteenth District. In my opinion the findings and conclusions of the examiner as to the Fourteenth District, should be sustained."

The opinion does not affect the nomination of any other candidates, or their vote, in the Twelfth Ward, according to a statement made in the opinion, which sets forth that only the vote for Alderman was questioned before the court.

'Hi-Jacking' Raid Faked, Man Held

The report of a hi-jacking raid on a wholesale sugar storeroom in the Hill District early this morning brought a squad of police to the store of Michael Demus, at 818 Elm street, where William Gaffney, 21, Negro watchman, told of being attacked by four men who fled with a quantity of sugar.

However, an investigation revealed, police say, that Gaffney's story was mostly imagination. He was arrested for the sugar theft. Police say he later admitted that he and a relative had carted off 10 bags of sugar.

Auto Collision Hurts Passing Policeman

Motorcycle Patrolman Arthur Baker, 28, of Ewart drive, was removed to the Mercy Hospital this morning, after suffering an injured knee when a piece of automobile fender was hurled against it as two machines collided in Bigelow boulevard near Seventeenth street.

The officer was passing at the time of the accident. The machines were only slightly damaged and the drivers were not arrested.

ENGLISH EARL TO STIMULATE APPETITES

Bemoans Lethargic Eating Here Since Prohibition; Urges New Delectables

What is roast duck without Burgundy? Plum pudding without brandy? This business of eating has taken on a lethargic quality in America since Prohibition, according to the fifth Earl of Gosford, visiting in Pittsburgh this week. He said:

"There is very little difference between English and American appetites. But it is so difficult to get fine wines here that the taste for really good foods has deteriorated."

DINNERS HAMPERED

Elaborate coursed dinners are impractical in the American apartment version of life, Lord Gosford continued:

"But if the popularity of diets to maintain slender figures and the sparse menus of depression have cut down the quantity of food averagely consumed, quality and distinction are more important than ever."

As the head of the New York branch of Fortnum & Mason, one of England's oldest food shops, Lord Gosford is here to introduce an infinite variety of English table delicacies which will shortly make their debut in Pittsburgh kitchens.

If there are jaded appetites in Pittsburgh, they will henceforth and soon be stimulated by caviar from sturgeons in the Volga River, honey from Smyrna, cheese from Denmark, tinned Cornish pastries and meat pies, turtle meat from China, sturgeon's spine from Russia, guava jelly from Barbadoes and a host of other delectables.

PRESENTS NEW LINE

Archibald Charles Montagu Brabazon Acheson, fifth Earl of Gosford, a Knight of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem in England, son of the fourth Earl and of Lady Louise Augusta Beatrice Montagu (daughter of the Duke of Manchester), Lady of the Bedchamber to Her Majesty the Queen, is in Pittsburgh to arrange with Kaufmann's for the launching here of a hundred and one epicurean comestibles, many of which are unknown to local palates.

Fortnum & Mason's institution in London dates back two centuries to the Court of St. James. Cornelius Fortnum, said to have been a footman to Queen Anne, catered to the most discriminate palates in England.

SMASHING UP MODERN BEER PLANT

DRYS RAID BIG BREWERY HERE

Smashing their way into a two-story double garage at 144-146 Twenty-fifth street, South Side, prohibition agents early today uncovered one of the most up-to-date wildcat breweries raided in this district in more than two years. The plant was in operation when the agents broke down the front door, but no one could be found in the place.

The garage contained six 1,000-gallon vats filled with beer mash; two 250-gallon coolers; barrels of beer and large quantities of sugar and syrup. The raiders said that the plant had the latest of electrical equipment and evidently had not been in operation long.

The mash and beer were destroyed and the apparatus taken to the prohibition warehouse.

MAN ACCUSED OF EXTORTION

Charged with extortion, blackmail and assault and battery, David McBride, of Dravosburg, was to be arraigned before Alderman Thomas Flanigan today. In default of bail, McBride was placed in County Jail late yesterday pending the hearing. He had been arrested by Constable William Duncan.

According to Duncan, McBride made several attempts to obtain money from Attorney James Nugent, of the Berger Building. McBride's wife is said to be employed by Nugent as a housekeeper. Nugent, in making out the information before Alderman Flanigan, alleged that McBride had beaten him when he refused to pay large amounts of cash.

Man Found Dead In Box in Alley

Frank Lehman, 40, of near Johnstown, was found dead last night in an alley in the rear of Fourth avenue in a paper box where he had apparently sought shelter, according to a Coroner's report.

The body was found by John Wechter, of 11 Conklin street, restaurant employe. The body was removed to the morgue, where an autopsy was to be performed to determine the cause of death. Lehman, who resided with his mother, served six months at Camp Lee during the World War, according to word from Johnstown.

BUSINESS—LIKE ENSEMBLES PREFERRED BY SMART WOMEN

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 15.—There's a geometric neatness about many of the new ensembles that is most attractive, and youthful, too. More and more are women eliminating fuss and non-essentials from their all-day costumes. For nearly every woman is forced to spend some days almost entirely away from home and for this purpose she seeks a simple ensemble that is plain enough for business needs and smart enough to lunch at a fashionable place or attend an afternoon function.

A DRESS AND COAT of fine woolen, or the dress in a little lighter woolen, but of the same weave and color as the coat is a grand outfit and such a costume will do staunch service throughout the season or until such time as a heavy coat becomes necessary. Most popular is the use of two colors in the same material and it is in the joining of the colors that we find geometric angles and corners and much ingenuity has been expended by the designers to combine colors in a clever and original way. For such ensembles are quickly sold and so many varied models must be available.

TO GIVE YOU an idea of the type of business-like ensemble liked by the smart woman, we have had sketched a representative model by Lenief. The dress is of a new, pliant woolen with a corduroy rib—a grand material and one destined for popularity. The colors are bright green and black. All the fastenings are achieved with square, nickeled buckles. The dress is a wrapped-over model—easy to slip on or off and most comfortable to wear. There is a widening of the sleeves at the elbow that gives a slight baggy effect.

* * *

THE COAT is of black wool corduroy and is faced and banded with the green fabric. A double effect is made by looping back the collar at each side throughout the entire length. The peplum and vertical "fins" on the sleeves are other smart details.

Road Beautifying Told At Federation Banquet

YORK, Pa., Oct. 15.—(AP)—In a speech last night before 600 persons assembled at the federation dinner, the gala social event of the thirty-sixth annual meeting of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, Samuel S. Lewis, secretary of the State Highway Department, declared that during one year his department had removed 37,000 illegal signs that had disfigured state roads and marred the beautiful scenery of the state.

Dr. Bruno Roselli, professor of Italian at Vassar College, spoke on "Whither Bound, Womankind?"

The second day's sessions of the convention, held in the First Presbyterian Church, were featured by talks by prominent men and women of the state and nation; reading of the resolutions report of the president, Mrs. John A. Frick, as director of the general federation, and round table talks.

Two luncheons were held at noon—one for juniors at the Country Club of York, and one at the First Presbyterian Church. In the talks and discussions during the day, the speakers stressed the matters of relief for the present depression; an appeal for more facilities and opportunities for recreation for the family; children's welfare, and the problem of occupation in recreation or study, for the unemployed college boys and girls.

The speakers of the day were: Dorothy Straus, attorney, of New York, who talked on "Some National and International Aspects of the Status of Married Women;" Grace Morrison Poole, Rockburg, Mass., who talked on "Whither Bound, the General Federation;" Dr. Boyd Edwards, head master of Mercersburg Academy, on "The Spiritual Side of Education;" Edward B. Chapman, president of Pennsylvania Park Association, and Katherine Lenroot, assistant chief of the Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Her Grandfather's Fame Is Edith Barrett's Guiding Star

By GEORGE SEIBEL

A girl, dark-haired and dark-eyed, came to the stage door of the Academy and asked one of the stagehands to show her the rafters, sticking out 30 feet above the Academy stage, which many years ago supported the floor of the old Library Hall stage. The girl looked long at those rafters, then went out again into the alley behind the theater, and crossed to the stage door of the Alvin, where she is playing this week in "Mrs. Moonlight."

The girl was Edith Barrett, granddaughter of the famous tragedian Lawrence Barrett, whom she worships as an Invisible Presence though she never saw him, for he died in 1891. She looked at those rafters, jutting out above the heads of the merry-merry chorus, because on that stage her grandfather, more than a generation ago, had acted all his famous roles, from Hamlet to Lanciotto.

George Seibel

Edith Barrett is the daughter of Lawrence Barrett's daughter. She has never before been in Pittsburgh, except in a very small role in Hampden's production of "Cyrano de Bergerac." But she knows her grandfather in his callow days played here in the stock company for some time when Newton Gotthold was the idol of the audiences.

And so Pittsburgh is to her as a holy city.

THERE'S LUCK IN MUMPS

Miss Barrett's debut was a curious outcome of the theatrical blood in her veins and the little accidents that often determine human destiny. She had decided to go on the stage, and had made application to Walter Hampden, who was getting together the cast for "Cyrano." He was interested to hear she was a descendent of Lawrence Barrett, and her name went on the list of those favorably considered.

But her chance came when the girl whose name was just ahead of hers contracted a case of mumps. Edith Barrett was called to take her place, and that was her first appearance on any stage. She kept that little part and played it in Pittsburgh, though it was so unimportant that her name did not appear on the play-bill.

LEARNED IN STOCK COMPANY

The following summer she played in the Bonstelle Stock Company in Detroit, and a later summer with the Cukor Company in Rochester. But she became a fixture in the casts of Walter Hampden productions after playing Mary in "The Servant in the House" and Jessica in "The Merchant of Venice."

Her great opportunity came when she was cast for Pompilia in "Caponsacchi." In that character, which I saw her play in New York, she revealed the potencies of her theatrical blood—she was the true granddaughter of Lawrence Barrett. She also had a small part in Hampden's next production, "The Immortal Thief," which had a very brief immortality.

On another occasion I saw her as one of the pages flanking John Drew when he spoke the prologue to Shakespeare's "Henry IV," produced by the Players' Club some years ago as their annual revival. Drew had only 14 lines to speak, the pages none at all—but they were there. In those annual revivals of the Players, great stars sometimes barely have a chance to twinkle.

MEMORY OF BARRETT

Edith Barrett, of course, reveres the memory of her illustrious grandfather. She knows everything about him that can be known, and was delighted to get from me an impression of the ancestor she had never seen, except through her mother's eyes. I told her how I once met Lawrence Barrett when I was a mere boy.

He was playing at Library Hall, and in the course of his repertoire acted Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice." His costume showed a striking peculiarity. On the sleeve of Shylock's gaberdine was embroidered a large cross.

Some Jewish people who saw him play did not understand why Shylock, pillar of the synagogue, should wear a cross upon his sleeve. They wrote a letter to Lawrence Barrett, asking the reason. I was the bearer of that letter.

Barrett was stopping at the Monongahela House, then the finest hostelry in Pittsburgh.

The letter was sent to his room, and shortly I was called to the second-floor lobby. Then Lawrence Barrett came out of his room, and gave me his answer by word of mouth. Perhaps he suspected he was being held up for an autograph.

A LAW IN VENICE

The reason for the cross was in a law of the Venetian state, which the scholarly tragedian had unearthed during his studies for the production. This law required the Jews of Venice to wear the emblem of the cross on their garb, as a mark of humiliation and obloquy.

Lawrence Barrett explained this to me, and I took back the message, and have never forgotten the incident, and was just as delighted to tell it to his granddaughter as she was to hear it.

Those who have seen her tenderly wistful performance in "Mrs. Moonlight" at the Alvin Theater this week, are catching a glimpse of the great actor, scholar and gentleman, who divided for many years with his friend Edwin Booth the honor of being the noblest ornament of our American stage.

Anna May Wong Signs Movie Contract

Anna May Wong has been signed to a long term contract as a featured player for Paramount as a result of her work in "Daughter of the Dragon," with Warner Oland and Sessue Hayakawa. Miss Wong was appearing on the Broadway stage in "On the Spot" when she was selected by Paramount for the leading feminine role of "Daughter of the Dragon."

Record Sale to Assist Rockne Fund

The Rockne Memorial Fund Association of Allegheny County, will sell Rockne records in the lobby of the Stanley Theater, beginning Friday, and all proceeds are to be turned over to the Association.

Notes About Stage and Screen

Seats go on sale today at the box office of the Nixon for the engagement, beginning Monday, of "The Admirable Crichton," by James M. Barrie. Walter Hampden and Fay Bainter play the leading roles. Effie Shannon and Sydney Greenstreet are in the supporting cast.

The musical play, "Meet My Sister," will be seen in the Shubert Alvin next week. Nancy McCord, the young prima donna, plays the leading feminine role, and Walter Slezak has the leading male part. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday. Seats go on sale at the box office this morning.

"The Unholy Garden," coming tomorrow to the Penn, is the first roughneck part Ronald Colman has portrayed since "Condemned." In this original Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur romantic drama, Colman's role resembles "Beau Geste." He is supported by two leading ladies, Fay Wray and Estelle Taylor, and the cast includes Tully Marshall, Warren Hymer and Ullric Haupt.

"The Spirit of Notre Dame," coming to the Stanley tomorrow, is dedicated to the late Knute Rockne. Lew Ayres, Sally Blane and J. Farrell MacDonald and the famous "Four Horsemen" are in the cast.

Ten members of the original New York stage cast appear in Samuel Goldwyn's screen adaptation of the Elmer Rice prize drama, "Street Scene," which comes to the Sheridan Square for one week, beginning tomorrow. King Vidor directed. Prominent players are Sylvia Sidney, Buster Collier, Jr., and Estelle Taylor.

"Tabu," picture starring Reri, which is the natural love story filmed on an island in the Archipelagoes, opens an engagement as an extra added attraction in the Davis Monday. The feature film will be "Honor of the Family," with Bebe Daniels.

The romantic drama, "Alexander Hamilton," with George Arliss, opens a three-day engagement in the Enright Monday and will be followed on Thursday by "East of Borneo," with Rose Hobart and Charles Bickford.

Searls Live in Same House They Had Before Jackie Became Film Star

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15.

If all movie children only had parents like Jackie Searl's. Every cent this youngster makes goes on him, or into government bonds. His father, John E. Searl, still has his job as an oil driller in a field near Hollywood.

The family live in the same house they had before Jackie made his hit as Sid in "Tom Sawyer," and was awarded a Paramount contract. Jackie plays with every boy in the neighborhood. He and his mother walk to and from the studio. Jackie's father uses the family car.

James Dunn

Mrs. Searl, an intelligent, middle-aged woman, says:

"My husband has provided a comfortable living for 25 years. He's on a five-day week now, like the rest of the oil workers, but he's going to keep right on. What Jackie makes is his own.

"People say he is natural on the screen. I feel if we spent a lot of money either on ourselves or him, he might lose this quality. We give him $5 spending money at the beginning of each picture. He buys his toys at the 5-and-10-cent store, and likes them just as well as if they were expensive.

"I am going to let him buy a pony. He's crazy about riding."

Over at Paramount, the school teacher says Jackie is the brightest pupil she has ever had. He memorizes a part by reading it over a few times.

In five years, if he stays out his contract, he will be comfortably well off. For this, he can thank his mother. How different she is from that other movie mother who went to Agua Caliente the other day and spent $350 on perfume.

LATEST GOSSIP

Today, noon, is the time set for the wedding of Wesley Ruggles and Arline Judge. They will take the vows before 100 guests at Wesley's Beverly Hills home. Grace Oram, a Boston girl, will be maid of honor and Adela Rogers Hyland and Leila Hyams, bridesmaids. Charles Ruggles will be best man. After the ceremony, the couple will motor to San Francisco and there take a boat for British Columbia. They'll be back in two weeks . . . Marie Prevost gave another shower last night for the bride-to-be . . . James Dunn, a regular patron of the Ascott Speedway, has bought himself a racing car . . . Gloria Swanson will return to Europe on the completion of her picture . . . Ruth Chatterton chews gum . . . The spirit of Sir Walter Raleigh is not dead. The other evening when Dorothy Lee hurt her foot at Dick Arlen's house, Marsh Duffield carried her home—a matter of a block.

BUSHELL SIGNED

On account of his work in "Five Star Final," Tony Bushell has signed a long term contract with Warner Brothers. His most recent screen work was with Pola Negri in her new picture. Getting to the studio will be very handy for Tony, as he lives in Charlie Farrell's house only two blocks away. As the Lakeside Golf Club is still closer, he will be able to indulge in his favorite hobby. Bushell is a two-handicap man on this course.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

For the second time in film history "The Four Horsemen" ride the screen in "The Spirit of Notre Dame," football picture dedicated to Knute Rockne, which comes to the Stanley tomorrow. The first time was when Rudolph Valentino appeared in a screen version of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," the film title shortened to the first three words of the name of war novel by Vicente Blasco Ibanez. The novel had identified the riders of the four horses mentioned in Revelation as Famine, Pestilence, Destruction and Death. The four famous Notre Dame players were nicknamed forever by Grantland Rice in October, 1924, in a report of a football game. He wrote:

"Outlined against a blue-gray sky the Four Horsemen rode again. In dramatic lore they are known as Famine, Pestilence, Destruction and Death. These are only aliases. Their real names are Stuhldreher, Miller, Crowley and Layden."

The Layden, if you must be told, is Elmer F. Layden, Duquesne University football coach.

Real Men Go By While Girls Wait for Their 'Ideal'

She swore she'd never give her girlish heart—
Till she found her "ideal"—

She dreamed of Prince Charming, tall and fair. Prince Charming with a big bank balance in his pocket and a college diploma in his hand—

Then along came Tommy who was, and had, none of these things.

And strangely, she changed her mind.

Was she sorry? Listen!

"Dear Sally Martin:

"I haven't any problem. I'm just wondering how many modern girls miss happiness because they turn down offers of marriage from nice young men who don't happen to be the image of their 'ideal.'

DIDN'T MARRY IDEAL

"I wonder, too, how many girls do marry their 'ideal,' only to have their dreams shattered and find he has feet of clay.

"I had an ideal once myself. I always dreamed of a Prince Charming who was tall and fair . . . and I always said that my future husband must have a college education. But I married a man exactly the opposite of that picture. He is short and dark, and was only able to go through high school. Yet he is so good to me and is so well educated in the school of life, and so able to hold his own with any man who does have a college degree that I offer up a prayer of thanks that he and no one else is my husband.

"He is a man anyone could admire. At the age of 29 he is vice president of a growing corporation with a splendid future ahead of him. And with that he has the most charming personality. So that long after the glamor of the honeymoon is supposed to have waned I am still fascinated by his smile and his kisses.

FEELS LUCKY

We have a handsome, healthy son, 5 years old, who is blessed with having inherited his father's charm and intelligence, and who makes Tom's and my happiness complete.

"Considering that I married a man who was not my 'ideal,' I feel that I am the luckiest of women. I have never had the least occasion to feel sorry about my choice, as it is a man's qualities that make an everlasting impression on his wife, for her happiness or misery, and not his looks or his build. But I wonder how many girls realize that?" MILLICENT.

Wise girl, Milly. And many a broken heart and wasted life would be prevented if other girls had your wisdom. For thousands of desolate streets and dreary offices are filled with lonely women who are waiting for their 'ideal' to come along.

LIFE GOES BY

Sometime, when life was very new and glittering, they formed a gorgeous but quite impossible picture of that Ideal. Actually it had no relationship whatever to any living man. But it had a very close relationship to their own romantic dreams, their own secret frettiness and foolishness and fear. When their Ideal came . . . their strong, clever, rich, handsome, tender, wise Ideal Man . . . all that frettiness would be soothed, all that fear would be removed, and under his protection life would become beautiful and joyous and safe.

So they waited.

Real men came their way—real men with normal human weaknesses and rudeness, who might have loved them greatly. But they didn't want real men. For real men were rude. Real men were careless.

So they waited.

And while they waited life went by, and left them stranded.

You're wiser, Milly. Stay wise! One Regular Guy is worth a million Dream Heroes.

Fay King Disagrees with Theory That Whistling Indicates Moron Mind

M-MMM MOOMMMOOM M-MM-M
SOME WOMEN HUM IN A MADDENING MONOTONY AND DON'T KNOW THEY ARE - THEY ARE THINKING SO SERIOUSLY
I LIKE TO HEAR A GOOD WHISTLER!
IF IMPORTANT MEN DON'T WHISTLE IT'S BECAUSE THEY LEARN TO HIDE THEIR FEELINGS!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

I'm afraid I cannot agree with the professor who, it seems, has said that whistling indicates a moron mind.

It has always delighted me to hear a good whistler who was aware that he whistles, as he walks along.

Of course, the absent-minded whistler, who might as well be whittling as whistling, is in the annoying class with the woman who hums herself into a headache and doesn't even know she is singing.

Yet I have observed that far from being moron-minded these whistlers and hummers seem to be thinking their hardest when at these monotonous tunes.

The professor says important men do not whistle. But surely he must admit whistling is better than other faults some of them have.

Madge Extracts a Promise from the Underwoods

"It's just this," I said ostensibly answering Harry Underwood's query but really addressing Mary and Marion. "Hank and Bill are terribly sensitive about this incident of the scorched trousers—boys of that age are so self-conscious, you know—and it's going to make them most unhappy if they think you've found out about it. They evidently wanted to be dressed in their best ready to receive you, and they were panic-stricken when Hank accidentally scorched his only clean pair of white flannels while pressing them."

"It's a wonder he didn't burn himself and the house up," Mary said. "I didn't suppose he knew one end of a flatiron from the other."

"I don't think he did," I said smiling. But Dicky thought it would be a good thing for them to learn. He pressed the coats for them and left them to do the others.

"If that isn't the Dicky-bird for you," Lilian commented with the exasperation at Dicky's foibles which neither he nor I resent from her. "Leaves a couple of tyros with a job like that." But, of course, he's making up for it royally. That's the Dicky-bird also.

"Yes," I smiled. "He's rushing them off for Southampton, all ready for the evening except that they're wearing the trousers to their street suits. When they come back, if they can get fitted, they'll be the last word, sartorially. But I don't want even the quiver of an eyelash from any of you to betray that you've guessed anything. Accept whatever excuse they give for not being here—"

"Which will be an artistic job," Harry Underwood interrupted. "I know the Dicky-bird's capabilities for tall and fancy—"

"It's a mutual admiration society," his wife commented slyly. "Don't mind his interrupting you, Madge. I haven't read him his chapter from the etiquette book yet today and he's apt to get a bit rusty whenever I omit it. And on behalf of myself and my husband," she waved her hand in a grandiloquent gesture—"I promise that no beans shall be spilled by the senior Underwoods. As for those two frivolous young sisters, you'll have to make your own bargain with them."

The girls giggled.

"I can't see what they're so fussed about," Marion said. "Ronald or his chums wouldn't mind anybody's knowing a thing like that. Up at their place, the boys were always pressing clothes and forgetting the iron and burning them. Ronald went around with the print of the flatiron on the side of his trousers' leg for two evenings because he had scorched the last pair he had home—the rest were all at the cleaners. We had great fun about it. He called it his iron triangle, said it beat an iron cross any day as a decoration."

"If Hank and Bill were a few years older, they wouldn't care either, dear," I told her. "But the fact remains that they do, so I want you both to promise me that you won't let them see you know anything about this incident."

"Oh, sure," Mary agreed carelessly, and nodded her head vigorously. "We'll sweep all the dust under the bed and keep it there. I can see, though, where we've got to educate those kids. But hello, Marion, here's a thought. You can't tell me they're putting on all this dog on account of me their one and only sister. They'd come down to dinner in their bathrobes if I were the only girl around. No, Marion, it's the old 'sit-up-and-take notice thing.' They're getting it early, and you're the only other girl in sight, so it certainly must be you." Come along, and I'll tog you up ready for a killing. Oh, Auntie Madge, You and Aunt Katherine want to see our things, don't you?"

"That can wait a few minutes," I told her. "Take them all up to your room and we'll come on an inspection tour after you're dressed for dinner."

"That's splendid," she said, then, as she and Marion went through the door, she threw back a warning.

"You'll have to cork up tight, and then seal the cork with the heaviest wax you have. That lad's a regular sieve. He tells everything, does not mean to always. He's just naturally leaky."

"I know," I said a bit despondently. "But I'll do my best."

"Good hunting!" she replied with a little laugh and then the two girls were gone, and I was free to put the question which had been in my mind ever since my waking from my nap in the hammock to find that they had gone to Southampton.

"Did you post any mail when you went to Southampton?" I asked, trying to put the question carelessly. But my pulses were pounding with anxiety to know the whereabouts of the letter I had written to Jack Bickett.

Household Hints

Scented note paper is no longer considered romantic, but very poor form.

A pinch of salt added when making coffee causes the grounds to settle to the bottom.

After scrubbing marble pour a little floor polish on it and then rub with a clean cloth. A brilliant polish will be the result.

When making marmalade, a froth or scum will appear on the surface during the boiling operation. This need not be skimmed off, as, by putting in a piece of salt butter the size of a walnut, it will be found that the froth will disperse immediately.

Anniversaries

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A while ago you published a list in the paper giving the appropriate gifts for the different wedding anniversaries. I meant to cut it out, but carelessly destroyed the paper. I would be very grateful if you would repeat that list. And this time I promise to save it. M. T.

I know just how it happened, for I have often done the same thing about saving a paper in which was a treasure. Here is the list, with the different assignments, where authorities vary:

First, cotton, paper. Second, paper, wood, calico. Third, leather. Fourth, silk. Fifth, wood. Sixth, iron. Seventh, wool. Eighth, bronze. Ninth, pottery. Tenth, tin. Twelfth, silk and linen, leather. Fifteenth, crystal. Twentieth, china. Twenty-fifth, silver. Thirtieth, pearl, ivory. Thirty-fifth, coral. Fortieth, ruby. Forty-fifth, sapphire. Fiftieth, gold. Fifty-fifth, emerald. Seventy-fifth, diamond.

Giving the Bride in Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am about to be married. My parents are dead and I have been living with a married sister for about five years. Don't you think I should have my brother-in-law (who has acted as a father to me) give me away? I have brothers, but I do not see them very often.

WONDERING.

Under these circumstances, since your brother-in-law has been so especially kind and "fatherly" to you, and since you do not see much of your brothers, I think that it would be especially gracious and appropriate for you to invite your brother-in-law (in-law seems a very cold word in this case, doesn't it) to give you in marriage? Surely he has in large measure deserved this honor.

Choosing Between Trumps and No Trumps

Fashions change in bidding as they do in clothing. There was a period of direct bidding when an opening bid of a suit strongly indicated a preference for playing the hand at that declaration. Unless a powerful suit was held the custom was to bid no trumps upon strength in three suits, regardless of what the fourth suit might contain.

Then came an ultra fashion of always bidding a suit in preference to no trumps unless the latter was guarded in all four suits; of course lack of a biddable suit required no trumps to be bid upon three guarded suits, even if the fourth suit was unprotected.

Now a slight backward swing of the pendulum of popularity does not decree that no trumps must not be bid in case a biddable suit is held also. Probably one system is not one whit better than another, but custom decides what partner expects an opening bid to show in the bidder's hand.

Provided the whole hand contains at least five probable tricks, including not less than 2½ quick tricks, the following suits are considered biddable:

♠ A-10-X-X
♥ K-Q-X-X
♦ K-J-10-X
♣ Q-X-X-X-X
♠ J-10-X-X-X
♥ X-X-X-X-X

Great strength in three-card suits at times may justify bidding almost any five-card suit. Who would fail to bid 1 heart on the following?

Hand No. 1.
♠ A-K-J
♥ 8-6-5-3-2
♣ 6-3
♦ A-K-J

For lack of a biddable suit the next two hands must be bid no trumps.

Hand No. 2.	Hand No. 3.
♠ A-Q-3	♠ 10-7-6-4
♥ K-J-4	♥ J-8-5-4
♣ K-Q-7	♣ A-K-9
♦ 9-6-4-2	♦ A-K

A void suit, a low singleton, or a low doubleton urges a suit bid in preference to no trumps. Bid 1 spade on each of the following hands:

Hand No. 4.	Hand No. 5.
♠ Q-9-5-4-2	♠ A-Q-7-4
♥	♥ K-J-10-8
♣ K-J-6-5	♣ 3
♦ A-K-7-3	♦ K-10-9-6

Hand No. 6.
♠ A-10-7-4
♥ K-J-8-5
♣ A-Q-6
♦ 6-4

At present the "distribution" fad runs strongly. Some of its tenets are no whit better than those replaced—if as good. Among other things players are urged to bid no trumps upon a 4-3-3-3 division of suits rather than declare their only 4-card suit; for example, to bid 1 no trump instead of 1 spade on the following holding, although one suit is wholly unguarded.

Hand No. 7.
♠ A-Q-10-6
♣ K-J-4
♦ A-10-2

Of course two biddable suits prohibit bidding no trumps with one unguarded suit. One heart must be bid on the following hand.

Hand No. 8.
♠ 6-4
♥ K-Q-10-7
♣ A-K-5-3
♦ K-9-6

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Building Foods Vital in Pernicious Anemia

Although pernicious anemia has been known for many years, its diagnosis and treatment have not been very satisfactory. In fact, until recent years, the disease was considered as practically a hopeless one. Frequently this belief proved true, because many individuals died from this ailment in spite of the heroic efforts of the doctors.

Dr. Copeland

Within recent years the discovery of the value of liver as a curative agent has brought great relief. The use of this food and other methods of control make this disease no longer one to be considered as hopeless.

Pernicious anemia is a disease of the blood and of those organs that go to the making of blood. Its real cause has never been discovered, but it is believed there is a destruction of the blood cells by a poison which circulates in the blood stream. Not only does it destroy the blood cells, but this poison injures certain organs of the body.

The recognition of pernicious anemia is often delayed. This is unfortunate. When the disease is recognized in its early stage there is greater hope. Immediate treatment is of vital importance.

In this disease the number of red blood cells in the body is much lessened. There is marked weakness without any apparent loss of weight. As a rule there will be noted swelling of the feet, marked paleness of the skin and such disturbances as sickness at the stomach, indigestion, "biliousness" and severe diarrhoea.

Often the disease is entirely overlooked. This is explained by the fact that the ailment comes and goes. For no apparent reason a patient with pernicious anemia may suddenly have a great improvement in health and remain practically well for several months. However, sooner or later he will have another attack. As time goes on these periods of good health become less frequent and of shorter duration.

The most important thing in the treatment of pernicious anemia is the diet.

One of the greatest contributions to the treatment of this disease was the discovery that liver is blood-building food. Certainly a diet of liver aids in overcoming the anemic condition found in pernicious anemia.

WARN DUKES NOT TO UNDERRATE FOE

DUQUESNE UNIVERSITY'S HOPES for a victory over Georegtown in the floodlight football game at Forbes Field tomorrow night should not be based too strongly on the fact that Georgetown was swamped by New York U. last Saturday, 34 to 0. That is the warning given to the Dukes by some Pittsburghers who witnessed the defeat of Coach Tommy Mills' team at the hands of the Violet. They say the one-sided result is not to be taken as an indication that Georgetown this year lacks any of its usual power.

Tommy Mills

In the first place, it is pointed out that the New York U. eleven is one of such great strength that it is likely to go through the season undefeated as a claimant of the eastern championship. It is tipped as being powerful enough to beat many other prominent college teams just as handily as it defeated Georgetown. And in the second place it is asserted that the score was misleading, and that the Blue and Gray was not nearly so badly outclassed as indicated.

THE EVIDENCE OFFERED in support of this is that Georgetown made 15 first downs against 17 for the Violet, the drawback being that it did not click in its ground-gaining at the right time. Besides, a couple of halfbacks and some other valuable regulars were unable to go the distance on account of injuries, but it is expected these players will be back on the job against Duquesne.

About the only exception is Fullback Wilmer Bradley, who is out with a broken collarbone. Bradley hails from South Connellsville. Several other boys of the Tri-State district will help Georgetown in the game here, including Ray Hudson, right end, of Parnassus; Dick Danner, right guard, of Steubenville, O.; Earl Trump, fullback, of Uniontown, and Goner Smail, halfback, of Fairmont, W. Va.

BABE RUTH thinks he'll be done in baseball as a player after two more seasons. By that time he'll have seen 20 years of action in the professional ranks, and he expects to be ready for retirement from the field, to continue, no doubt, as a bench manager.

The Bambino says that a slender fellow might get by a little longer, but that 20 years is a long time for a fat man. A player burns out, he observes, adding that he would not be up there now himself if he had been laying them down and beating them out instead of being a slugger.

RUTH IS OF the opinion that Pepper Martin won't last long. "There's Ben Chapman on our club," he says. "Great hustler, likes to run bases, steals a lot, is full of pep. Crashed through the catchers like an express train in plate plays this year, but when the season ended he was all tired out. Burnt out after his tough season. Could hardly stand. Martin gets around a lot on the sacks, but, like Chapman, he'll burn out. They all do, those fast fellows. It's too much, this dashing here and there." Babe overlooks some exceptions. There was a guy named Ty Cobb. A speed demond if ever there was one, a mad man on the bases, always under full steam and tearing through any opponent who might stand in his path. Yet he lasted 24 seasons in the big show alone, or four more years than Ruth allows himself in minors and majors combined.

Floyd Vaughn

OTIS CRANDALL, Pirate coach, took in some Western League games on his way home, and in a letter to President Dreyfuss sends glowing reports of a couple of Buccaneer prospects. He is particularly enthusiastic about Floyd Vaughn, Wichita shortstop.

Otis predicts that Tommy Thevenow will have to step some next spring to keep this youngster from taking his position. "Vaughn is called the prize package of the Western League," Crandall writes, "and from what I have seen of him, I agree.

"VAUGHN IS VERY fast, has a great arm, is a good fielder and a real hitter. He has a stance like Chuck Klein's, keeps right on top of the plate and goes through with his swing.

"John Niggeling, right-handed pitcher from Des Moines, also looks like the goods. He has a fine curve and knuckle ball and is just as fast as anybody. Splendid build, too—6 feet and 175 pounds."

AL NIEHAUS, former big league first baseman, who died in Cincinnati last night of pneumonia after an illness of only two days, was a Pirate for a short time, through one of the biggest deals ever made by the Pittsburgh club. On October 27, 1924, the local club, then managed by Bill McKechnie, traded Shortstop Rabbit Maranville, Pitcher Wilbur Cooper and First Baseman Charley Grimm to the Chicago Cubs for Pitcher Vic Aldridge, Infielder George Grantham and Niehaus. With their new lineup the Pirates won the National League pennant and the world championship in 1925, but Niehaus did not remain with the club through the season. He played in only 15 games for the Bucs and on May 30 was traded to Cincinnati for Pitcher Tom Sheehan.

LIKE THE PITTSBURGH district, the Monongahela Valley is well represented in the W. P. I. A. L. football championship race, having five strong contenders. Charleroi, coached by Steve Stephanian, and which will fall or continue its drive in its battle with Clairton at Charleroi Saturday, defeated Ellsworth-Cokeburg, 70-0; Scott 32-0; New Castle, 14-6, and Fayette City, 6-0.

California, under Carl Aschman's coaching, has beaten Ellsworth-Cokeburg, 36-0; Donora, 13-7, and Waynesburg, 51-0. Tuffy McMillan's Monongahela team has defeated Masontown, 14-0; Carrick, 19-0, and Homestead, 18-0. McKeesport has won over Duquesne, 8-0; Uniontown, 13-0, and Tarentum, 13-0. Clairton, coached by George Woodman, has vanquished Hurst, 19-0; Waynesburg, 42-0, and Scott, 33-7.

EAST PITTSBURGH is the only surviving contender in the Turtle Creek Valley. Johnny Coleman's players have defeated Pitcairn, 6-0; East McKeesport, 19-14, and Trafford, 14-7.

The Panhandle district has three teams in the fight. Washington, led by Leroy P. (Hank) Day, is among the leaders as usual, having defeated Waynesburg, 34-0; Aliquippa, 54-6, and New Castle, 27-0. McDonald has beaten Oakmont, 13-0; Ellsworth-Cokeburg, 25-6, and Aspinwall, 12-0. Burgettstown has a 6-0 victory over Morganza and a 62-0 win over Claysville.

Leroy P. Day

BEAVER FALLS and Midland are carrying on for the Beaver Valley. Ambridge also is undefeated, but was held to a tie by Monessen. Beaver Falls defeated the Alumni team, 6-0; Allegheny, 21-0; Grove City, 13-0, and Ellwood City, 18-0. Midland downed Freedom, 40-0; Ellwood City, 26-0; New Brighton, 19-0, and Monaca, 32-0. Four contenders are in the field from Allegheny Valley. They are New Kensington, Freeport, Springdale and Ford City. New Kensington has beaten Falls Creek, 73-0; Latrobe, 26-13, and Butler, 13-2. Freeport has defeated St. Joseph's, 27-0; Dayton Vocational, 28-0; Leechburg, 32-7, and Zelienople, 21-0. Springdale has turned back St. Joseph's, 8-0, and Mars, 12-0, while Ford City upset Dayton Vocational, 31-0; Apollo, 34-0; Indiana, 26-0; Turtle Creek, 18-6, and Derry, 14-0. Sharon and Mercer are leading the way in the Shenango Valley. Sharon has beaten Greenville, 39-6; Warren, O., 6-0, and Strong Vincent, of Erie, 26-0, while Mercer has defeated Stoneboro, 26-0, and Harrisville, 25-6. Greensburg is waging a lone fight for Westmoreland County. Coach Leuchs' machine has defeated East Huntingdon, 13-6; Westinghouse, 39-0; Youngwood, 33-0, and Connellsville, 31-0.

EASTERN TEAMS CARD CHARITY CONTESTS

By COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Enthusiastic response of America's colleges and schools to his appeal to arrange football games for the idle will bring millions of dollars for unemployment aid, Owen D. Young said today. More than $20,000,000 may be the total raised by the benefit games.

From coast to coast leading teams are rallying to follow the appeal for the jobless as voiced Wednesday by Young, chairman of President Hoover's committee on the mobilization of relief resources.

Eight prominent eastern elevens will play in two post-season games under the Young plan. Columbia, Princeton, Carnell and Pennsylvania will meet in one of New York's huge baseball parks on December 9, and Yale, Brown, Holy Cross and Dartmouth will appear in the Yale Bowl on December 5.

TO DRAW OPPONENTS

The eight teams will not draw their opponents until the day of the contest and will play two games of 20 minutes each, the winners playing in a final contest. This will give the fans an hour's review of some of the best teams in the East, and tickets will be sold at popular prices.

Army and Navy will play in New York December 12 in one of the big contests, and practically all of the Big Ten Conference teams will meet in post-season battles or donate receipts of a regularly scheduled game.

Penn State, University of Southern California, St. Mary's, University of Detroit, California, Wesleyan of Connecticut, Manhattan, Catholic University of Washington, Maryland, Georgetown, George Washington and many others were expected to join in the big parade of benefits.

HALL EXPLAINS PLAN

E. K. Hall, chairman of the Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee and spokesman for the eight eastern colleges which will play at New Haven and New York, said the net proceeds of each of the tournaments would be delivered to the presidents of the participating colleges. The money will then be devoted to unemployment relief as the presidents of the colleges see fit.

An interesting sidelight to the New York tournament developed when it was learned Coach Gil Dobie, of Cornell, might introduce some revolutionary football plays as Cornell made its appearance.

For years, it was said, Dobie has had ideas about doubtful plays, which might prove marvelous ground-gainers or might be complete flops. Dobie, one of the best known of American coaches, has never been able to introduce his plays, but in the competition in New York he might turn his team loose with the new combinations.

Hall predicted that the fans at Yale Bowl and here would see some "wide open" football, inasmuch as no title was at stake and the teams engaged would be more likely to take chances "shooting the works" in their offensives.

By JESS CARVER

Life to the dear old Dukes is becoming just one tough ba... field opponent after another. Fir... the Dukes had to put up with Ar... Grahame, of Geneva. Then they went up against Johnny Doyle, West Virginia star, and then Jim Herrin, of Oglethorpe. Last week it was Cliff Battles, the great Bobcat halfback, and now, with Georgetown here tomorrow night, they must worry over stopping the Hoyas' husky fullback, LeRoy Bordeau, the Maine Woodchopper.

Grahame, Doyle, Battles and Herrin all were tough enough, but Bordeau, who scales 185 pounds, threatens to outshine 'em all, with the exception of Battles. He likely will be the kingpin of the Georgetown attack, for Dick Bradley has been injured and Danieu, sweetheart of a halfback, still is nursing an injured leg.

WHAT A MAN!

Bordeau comes from the Adirondacks. He has spent the greater part of his life in the woods. Just for fun, he felled 32 trees in one day to win the ax-wielding title of his locality and has developed a pair of arms as big as your leg. He has terrific drive, a lunge like that of a lion and what he does to ball toters when he's on the defense is murder.

The Georgetown backfield likely will consist of Lione at quarter, King and possibly Danieu at the halves and Bordeau at full. It is just the sort of a backfield quartet that will push the Dukers to the very limit.

The Duke coaches, Layden and Bach, have been working overtime this week, trying to whip the local Irish into condition for the meeting with the Georgetowns. Bach has been drilling and drilling the line, which has failed to come up to expectations recently. Young Powell is showing up well at end, where he'll have to sub for Krankota and Abele, both on the hors de combat list. His showing has been encouraging to the Duquesne mentors.

HOYAS HERE TONIGHT

The locals, by the way, will admit kiddies under 16 to the game, and all games for the remainder of the season, for one quarter, two bits, one quarter of a slug.

The mighty Blue and Gray gridiron contingent of Georgetown will arrive at 6:15 this evening, more than three teams strong and backed up by coaches, trainer, managers and followers. The Hoyas get into Pittsburgh over the B. & O. from Washington, D. C., and will go immediately to the Pittsburgh Athletic Association.

If the weather is right tonight, Coach Tommy Mills will send his men through night work under the Forbes Field floodlights. If not, the Georgetown gridders may work tomorrow morning on the Duke campus. Weather permitting, the Dukes will likewise indulge in their usual Thursday night drill in the Oakland ball park.

WALLACE TO BOX RODGERS HERE

Frankie Wallace, of Cleveland, recent victor over Johnny Datto in a six-round bout in Cleveland, has been signed by the Motor Square Garden Club to take the place of Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, against Jackie Rodgers in its main bout next Monday night.

Paul was barred as an opponent by the boxing commission yesterday, because he is boxing Andy Martin in Buffalo tomorrow night and thus would violate the five-day rule of the commission.

Charley Baxter and Johnny Dunn will box the semi-final.

NEW RIVER TRAVELS

MONTGOMERY, W. Va., Oct. 15.—(AP.)—A crippled and battered New River State College football squad left Montgomery yesterday for New London, Conn., where Saturday it will meet the powerful United States Coast Guard team. There were 21 men in the departing group.

Sisler Requests, Gets Release From Redwings

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—George Sisler, one of baseball's great stars during his years as first baseman for the St. Louis Browns, came back to St. Louis yesterday with an unconditional release from the Rochester club, of the International League, and no plans at present for the future.

Sisler, who said he would remain here through the winter, said:

"I had an understanding at Rochester that if I wanted my release I could have it, and when I decided that I didn't want to play there again next year I was released."

PENN COACHES ARE RANKED

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Fifty-three members of the department of physical education of the University of Pennsylvania have been given academic rank in accordance with the new athletic policy announced by President Thomas S. Gates last spring.

Dr. E. Leroy Mercer, dean of the department, and Dr. R. Tait McKenzie, internationally known sculptor and authority on physical education, were named professors.

Russell S. (Rusty) Callow, crew coach; Lawson Robertson, track coach; Harvey J. Harman, head football coach, will be known as assistant professors of physical education, and assigned to the instruction of students majoring in physical education.

The following coaches were named instructors in physical education:

Simon F. Pauxtis, assigned to football and baseball; Paul Scull, football, basketball and golf; Michael C. Hanley, football, basketball and baseball; Alec Fox, football and physical instruction; Rea McGraw, football, basketball and baseball; W. S. Merriam, swimming; Walter L. Cavas, baseball; Douglas Stewart, soccer; Lon W. Jourdet, general supervision of basketball; Leonard Terrone, director of all fencing activities for both men and women; Wallace F. Johnson, general supervision of tennis, and Leonard Mason, general supervision of boxing and wrestling.

Coaches named assistant instructors in physical education include:

SHOOT SLATED SUNDAY

The Grandview Gun Club, at Wheeling, W. Va., will be the scene of the final registered shoot of the season Sunday afternoon. It will begin at the Grandview range, in Chapman Heights, at 12:30 p. m. This afternoon the Washington Gun Club is staging its fall tournament.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Now that Ohio State has lost to Vanderbilt in a remarkable football game, 26 to 21, in which the Ohioans came back to score all of their points in the second half, after trailing, 26-0, at the intermission, Jess Carver is waiting to see what will happen when the Buckeyes play the Jay Gould and Rockefeller elevens. . . . Reed Brown, who boxed Tommy Ryan, of Duquesne, several times, more than a decade ago, now is managing Tony Marino, Tommy's kid brother, who appears in a bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. . . . If you don't think the panic is on, consider the case of one Al Perno, a reformed sports writer, who boxes a preliminary bout at a Philadelphia club tonight.

Ken Strong, captain of the Stapleton professional team, and Jerry Nemecek, a teammate, who formerly played with him at New York University, socked each other on the jaw when Jerry pulled a boner and tackled Ken on what might have been a touchdown run against the Brooklyn Dodgers the other day. . . . And who got the worst of the melee? . . . None other than Tom Thorp, the referee, when he tried to break it up. . . . All Tom hopes is that both of 'em broke their hands when they socked him on the chin. . . . That's what a college education gets some guys. . . . No one has been able yet to figure out how Jack Sharkey finally happened to win an important bout such as his "last stand" against Primo Carnera. . . . Jack's mind must not have been on his work.

Someone always is taking the joy out of life. . . . For instance, there is Ed Bang, veteran Cleveland scribe, who recalls the 1911 world series, between the Athletics and Giants, which was held up by rain for 11 days, finally being finished on October 26. . . . If that happened in these modern times and in this fast world, the football season would almost beat the series to the fadeout act. . . . The teams encountered one solid week's layoff at a stretch in that 1911 series and they do say that some of the oldest inhabitants could recall when it was started and what the teams were playing for.

It is claimed Benny Leonard trained down from 175 pounds to 152 for what he calls his comeback. . . . While it may not be of any particular importance as a football game, the Yale-Chicago meeting in Chicago Saturday is one of the red-letter affairs of the current season since the Elis will be making the first trip West in their history and doing it for the express purpose of honoring Amos Alonzo Stagg, old-time Yale star, who is celebrating his fortieth anniversary as Chicago's coach. . . . The Lad (2), 2:05½, by Truax, 2:03½, owned by Henry Oliver, local sportsman, is rated a leading favorite to win the Hambletonian and other trotting features of the 1932 Grand Circuit season.—HARRY KECK.

MRS. VANDERBECK LEADS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Clarence H. Vanderbeck carded an 81 yesterday to lead the Hurd Cup Women's golf play on the Merion Cricket Club links courses. She turned in 38 and 43. The remaining 18 holes will be played today. Mrs. Philip Corbett was second with 83, with Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare and Edith Quier tied at 84 for next position.

ALLEGHENY CLEANS HOUSE

MEADVILLE, Pa., Oct. 15.—Allegheny College proposes to eliminate all forms of subsidization of athletes, and to schedule only opponents boasting a "simon-pure" rating, it was announced today.

Many district rivals are to be supplanted on the Methodists' schedule by Susquehanna, Case and New England colleges.

Allegheny, praised by the Carnegie Foundation investigators for its sports standards, is to abolish athletic scholarships.

In addition, Harry (Maud) Crum, former Princetonian, this season will end a three-year reign as coach, inasmuch as the Methodists from here on in will require all coaches to be full-time teachers. Crum will graduate from Georgetown, where he has been studying law in the spring, and had expected to retire anyway.

W. Va. Fans to See Zontini in Action

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Oct. 15.—Hundreds of fans from Northern West Virginia will go to Clarksburg tonight to see the Salem-Marshall College game in order to get a look at Zontini, former Beth High School star, now with Marshall. Zontini was headed for West Virginia University until Roy (Legs) Hawley, athletic director at Marshall, slipped a fast one over on Harry Stansbury just before the opening of the training season.

H. M. (Tubby) McIntire, head coach at West Virginia, in 1919, when Ira Rodgers beat Princeton 28-0, pays Zontini this compliment:

"Another Jim Thorpe, less 20 pounds."

BURNS WHIPS WEST VIEW

The West View gridders ran into a hard-hitting, fighting ball club at Parnassus High School field last evening, and at the end of four periods of battling the Dan Burns club romped off with its second West Penn grid conference victory of the season, defeating Muzzio's Red and White clad warriors, 27 to 0.

The visitors tried hard in the second half, but the damage was done in the first period. Leading a diversified attack, Beckman, Burns captain, showed the New Kensington fans a real club. Murcurio scored the first touchdown when Berkman threw a pass over Politz's head. It appeared the West View player could have broken down the pass, but he elected to try to intercept it.

The former Thiel star took the ball over himself for the second touchdown, and threw a pass for the extra point. Then in the second period, Sharkey battered the Parker's line for the third touchdown.

The Muzzio outfit fought hard in the second half, and had just as much of the play as Burns, Boots Klinzing and Mehler doing some good work. However, Berkman again took matters into his own hands and in the final quarter Sharkey went over again for the fourth touchdown. Burns played brilliantly, especially in the first half. The lineup:

FURST AT GREENSBURG

Greensburg will be out to score its fifth straight victory Saturday, meeting Hurst High at Greensburg. While Hurst is not as strong as it has been in previous years the Lounksmen are looking for a tough battle from start to finish.

Two undefeated elevens also clash at Midland where Beaver Falls is the attraction of the home team. Like the Clairton-Charlero contest, this engagement brings together two clubs which have captured four successive triumphs. Neither team has been scored on this season.

Freeport, also winner of four successive games, should have no trouble disposing of Aspinwall despite the fact that the contest will be played at Aspinwall.

Altoona High, not in the running for the W. P. I. A. L. crown, faces its toughest test of the season in its battle with Lock Haven High at Altoona. Altoona has won four straight games and leads all rivals in scoring with 196 points.

MUNHALL AT CALIFORNIA

California High goes after its fourth straight victory by engaging Munhall at California, while Johnny Coleman's East Pittsburgh aggregation will seek its fourth consecutive win at the expense of Jim Hudson's Braddock machine at East Pittsburgh.

Tuffy McMillan's smooth-working Monongahela High eleven is expected to have no trouble adding Trinity of Washington, to its list of victims thereby recording its fourth victory of the season.

Carl Glock's New Kensington outfit will attempt to make it five in a row by disposing of Kittanning at Kittanning, while Sharon goes after victory No. 4 at the expense of Youngstown Rayen in Youngstown.

DUQUESNE AT WASHINGTON

Leroy P. (Hank) Day's undefeated Washington High team will strive for its fourth victory in a row at Washington by engaging Duquesne.

Friday also finds undefeated teams in action. Peabody, leader in Section 1 of the City League, will make a bid for its fourth straight win by meeting South High at Langley Field, while McDonald will be out for its fourth successive triumph at the expense of the undefeated, but tied, Beaver eleven. Beaver has one of the best teams in the valley and stands a good chance of handing McDonald its first setback.

NET TOURNEY IS SLATED AT SOUTH PARK

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

An interesting program of racquet contesting looms for the coming week-end at South Park, with final tournament contests in men's and women's singles and a fast match of exhibition doubles slated to make up a Saturday afternoon card that should wind up the district campaign in impressive fashion. Weather permitting, man-to-man quarter-finals and feminine semi-finals will be disposed of today, tomorrow and Saturday morning in order that decks may be cleared for the main action, beginning at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Henry Ackerman, Mount Lebanon High School star and 1930 Harvard Cup victor, downed his Rockwood teammate, Bob Grier, in a fast bracket-of-eight fracas yesterday, 6-2, 6-4. Grier's speedy southpaw service bothered Ackerman more than somewhat, but the steady, accurate style of the ex-Crimson premier ultimately prevailed.

As matters stand, Bill Fay, Paul De John, Tom Barrett, Russ Unger, Thaddeus Zielinski and J. Kilkeary remain in the masculine round of eight, with Ackerman, of course, advanced to the semi-finals. Mrs. Jean Artzberger, twice captor of the women's crown in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph-Pittsburgh Public Parks tilting, is favored to annex honors of the ladies' division, though the three McCelligan sisters, of Castle Shannon, are certain to furnish spirited penultimate opposition.

P. A. A. net luminaries, probably including Mrs. Dave and John O'Loughlin, Billy O'Loughlin, and Jack Lauler, in all likelihood will comprise the exhibition foursome. The County Park tourney is under the supervision of Director C. E. Forrest, formerly of the Sewickley Y. M. C. A.

Crawley Cut Out Of Chocolate Go

HOLYOKE, Mass., Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Lucien Ducharme, matchmaker at the Valley Arena here, was told by the State Boxing Commission yesterday it would not permit the Holyoke Club to promote a fight between Kid Chocolate, of Cuba, and Tommy Crawley, of Pittsburgh, Tuesday night. The letter from the Massachusetts body states that it queried the Pennsylvania Commission of Crawley's ability and received word any such match would be unequal.

YALE TO GET NEW COACH

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 15.—(INS.)—Although Yale officials ignored rumors that the entire football coaching squad was going to be shaken up, many intimate friends of Head Coach Mal Stevens today said 1931 may be his last year here.

Stevens' friends said, as his contract expires at the end of the present campaign, he will retire from coaching.

Yale's football squad will leave today for its game with the University of Chicago. Coach Stevens announced the same team, with the exception of left guard, which started last week against Georgia, would face Chicago. MacArthur or Nichols probably will be at left guard.

PASS THROUGH HERE

Two special trains carrying the Yale football team and students, on their way to play Chicago Saturday, will pass through Pittsburgh tomorrow morning. The first train will stop here at 2:20 a. m., and depart at 3:10 a. m. The second train is to arrive at 3 a. m., and depart at 4:25. Both trains will arrive in Chicago Friday afternoon. Returning, the two specials will arrive in Pittsburgh at 9:20 a. m., Sunday and leave 10 minutes later.

HAWTHORNE MUTUELS

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—(Special.)—The mutuels on the seven races at the Hawthorne race track yesterday paid a total of $273.94.

CHICAGO TO GET BLANKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg, of the University of Chicago, will receive his first "C" blanket Saturday between halves of the Yale-Maroon game—and it's about time.

Stagg, who was a player as well as coach, received a letter after Chicago's first season, 1892, and since that time has given out 800 blankets to his men.

Saturday he will receive his first one, a white blanket bearing a maroon "C" and 40 stars.

MRS. SMITH SETS PACE

SKYTOP, Pa., Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Frenzie T. Smith, Mt. Pocono, with a low net of 79 and Ruth Haley Burchill, with a low gross of 96, led the second round of the Skytop women's invitation tournament yesterday.

LIGHTWEIGHTS BATTLE

The Elks Sycamores will meet the Glenhaire Tigers in a Section 1 lightweight Conference game tonight at Saunders Field. A victory for the Sycamores will place them in a tie with the Rex Rangers for first place.

BIG BASEBALL TRADES IN MAKING

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—More Cub trading bait, suitably embellished with greenbacks as in the past when owners swallowed hook and all, is to be dangled before the Boston Braves in the near future. The lure will be cast out just as soon as William Veeck, Cub president, and Manager Rogers Hornsby get together on next season's affairs within three weeks.

The Cubs are fishing for a lefthanded pitcher who can start regularly and win ball games. The Braves have that fellow in Edward A. (Dutch) Brandt, who last season won 18 games while losing 11.

If Fuchs should prove invulnerable on the Brandt proposition, the Cubs' chiefs, according to reports, might approach him from a different angle. They would not be averse to relieving the Braves of Fred Frankhouse, the former Cardinal righthander.

It is reported that John McGraw, of the Giants, also has in mind making a bid for Frankhouse or another righthander now on the Judge Fuchs payroll.

Brooklyn has in mind the trading of Babe Herman. Herman is the made-to-order type of hitter for Wrigley Field and the Cubs need an outfielder. Maybe Hack Wilson will figure in that deal.

New Grid Trophy Rockne Memorial

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—The new trophy to be awarded to the 1931 national championship football team on the basis of the Dickinson rating system, will be known as the Knute K. Rockne Memorial.

The first edition of the award was won permanently last year by Notre Dame, the first institution to win it three times over a period of 10 years. Its donor, Jack F. Rissman, has offered another one under the same conditions, with Prof. Frank G. Dickinson, of the University of Illinois, who formulated the rating system, decided to make it a memorial to the late Notre Dame football wizard.

Notre Dame won possession of the first trophy by ranking as the best eleven in the country in 1924, 1929 and 1930.

SINGER'S COLT WINS

NEWMARKET, Eng., Oct. 15.—(AP.)—W. M. G. Singer's colt, Without a Name, today won the Middle Park stakes and established himself as the probable winter book favorite for the Epsom Derby next year. The Middle Park stakes has been run since 1865 and is worth approximately $20,000. Lautrigdale was second today, two lengths behind the winner.

At St. Louis—Walter Franklin, Kansas City, defeated E. L. Reynolds, 100 to 40, and Charles Summerell, Kansas City, won from E. A. Moore, St. Louis, 102 to 69.

HELENE SETS SWIM MARKS

SEATTLE, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Helene Madison, champion woman swimmer, set a new world record for the mile swim and broke seven American records in a swimming exhibition here last night.

The records were set up at different distances over the mile course. The world mile record was held by herself and the American marks by Ethel McGary, New York.

Miss Madison's time for the mile was 23 minutes, 37 1-5 seconds, breaking her own mark of 24 minutes, 34 3-5 seconds. Miss McGary's time for the distance was 25 minutes, 36 seconds.

The distances and new American marks set by Miss Madison in addition to the mile swim, and Miss McGary's times were:

	McGary	Madison
500 yards	11 16 4-5	12 15
1,000 yards	13 50	15 42
1,100 yards	15 19 2-5	15 07 3-5
1,320 yards	16 34 4-5	16 12 2-5
1,500 yards	21 50 2-5	20 45 3-5
1,600 yards	23 21	22 10

The 250-yard American record for a five-girl relay team, held by the Women's Swimming Association of New York, also was lowered by a Washington Athletic Club team made up of Lucy Schacht, Pat Linton, Edna McKibbon, Miss Gilson and Miss Madison in 2:23 2-5. The old time was 2:36 3-5.

Olive McKean bettered the national junior championship time in the 500-yard swim. She covered the distance in 7:01.

The billiard stars will play 12 blocks of 300 points each at 3 and 8 p. m. daily, with Harry C. Geisel, of Indianapolis, American League umpire, refereeing.

CURRY-MORGAN IN NATIONAL CUP TIE SUNDAY

FOUR CENTRAL LEAGUE GAMES SATURDAY

By TOM BIRKS

With four games scheduled in the Central League Saturday and a big national cup game at Morgan Sunday, featuring the Curry club, fans in the district are likely to see a hectic week-end of soccer football.

The national will be the big cup tie of the season and brings together Morgan and Curry in what may be a battle royal.

Morgan, a good soccer town, probably will play to a capacity crowd, and the game, being a national, will be called at 2:30 p. m.

The Pittsburgh Celtics will try a new venture Saturday, taking its game with Union Switch to Sanders Field. An enclosed field will give the cash customers plenty of parking space.

The Celtics have been steadily losing money at Leslie Park. It is a city playground and gate money cannot be charged.

Boxing Commission Acts in Datto Case

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—(INS.)—Pennsylvania's two-men boxing commission handed down a number of suspensions and issued one new promoter's license at the regular weekly meeting here yesterday.

Jack Williams, a second, of Reading, Pa., was suspended indefinitely on conduct unbecoming a licensed official. John Grandovich, a wrestler of New York City, was suspended indefinitely for wrestling in this state under two different names, and Ivan Vernahora, another wrestler, was declared ineligible indefinitely for failure to honor a contract with the Town Hall A. C. at Scranton.

Vincent Forzione, Philadelphia boxer, was declared ill and unavailable for failure to go through with a bout in Philadelphia, while Johnny Datto, of Cleveland, was ordered to weigh in at 125 pounds or over in the future.

Martin A. Griglak, Connellsville, Pa., was the promoter granted a boxing license.

Chicago Skaters In Workout Here

The Blackhawk skaters, Chicago's representatives in the National Hockey League, arrived here today in charge of Manager W. J. Tobin, and began their training campaign at Duquesne Garden this afternoon.

The skating surface at the Craig street arena was frozen this morning, and the visitors were able to don skates for their initial drill.

The Hawks will continue their drills here until the middle of November, and skirmishes with the local International League Yellow Jackets are to be a part of the conditioning campaign.

The Jackets are expected to report for training late next week.

MY LIFE STORY

By PEPPER MARTIN

Hero of 1931 World Series

Pepper Martin

CHAPTER IV.

Boys, it sure was flooring when the boss of the Greenville (Tex.) club told me that the Cardinals had bought me. You see, up to that time all my playing had been with amateurs, semi pros or those mighty small minors, and I wasn't at any time sure that I was good enough to hang onto a job even in Greenville. Fact is, there were times when I thought my loose throwing might get me fired at Greenville, and that made me try all the harder to get a lot of hits and steal a lot of bases so as to make up for bad fielding.

I got my chance to play with the Cardinals in the world series of 1931 just because Charley Barrett, scout for the Cards, happened to drop into Greenville one afternoon when I was going pretty good and Charley liked me because he figured I was a "tryer" and that, with seasoning, I might some day be good enough for a job with the Cards.

Charley paid the owner of the Greenville Club $2,500 and the idea was that I was to play out the season there, but Charley got word from Branch Rickey, who was manager of the Cardinals, that Fort Smith Arkansas, which was one of the clubs in the Western Association owned by the Cardinals, could use an infielder right away, so Charley paid the Greenville people $200 extra for my immediate release and I was told to report to Fort Smith.

UNABLE TO SPEAK

The fellows in Greenville put on a little celebration for me the afternoon I played my last game there and they gave me a watch and asked me to make a speech, but I got scared seeing so many people looking square at me and hurrahing and everything and I couldn't get any words out of my mouth, so I started for the clubhouse on a run and just was able to yell back to them:

"Thanks, boys, thanks."

And that was my farewell to Greenville and its fine people, in 1925.

My salary at Greenville was $225 a month as a starter. They reduced me to $175 because they had a depression, and Fort Smith paid me $200.

They stuck me in at short at Fort Smith. I had played that spot before, but usually it was just utility. Pitching and second-basing really were my regular jobs, and I found short-stopping tougher than second. The throws from there are longer and you've got to get them away from you pretty fast, and my trouble was that I tried to get 'em away too fast and I didn't do much aiming. It was pretty near always an even money bet that I would throw it into the bleachers.

I played 45 games with Fort Smith through the rest of 1925, made 21 errors, which means about one in every other game, which shows what a thrower I was, but every time the manager had made up his mind to shoot me dead because of bad fielding, I would make a hit or steal a base, and that is how I saved my life from one day to the next.

I scored 39 runs in 45 games for Fort Smith, made 62 hits, stole 17 bases and hit for .334 and, when the season was over, I got to thinking about my fielding and my batting and running, and I kept wondering whether these Cardinals would release me or let me do some more trying at Fort Smith to see if I couldn't do some better throwing.

SENT TO SYRACUSE

The next thing that happens is when the Cardinals' bosses tell me to report to Syracuse, another one of their teams, and which is a member of the International League, which is just one notch lower than the majors. My wages were increased to $325 a month and I just went plumb daffy. I was that glad. All spring I practised throwing so that I could get control.

Up there in Syracuse in 1926, I played second base in 88 games and was at third in 27 others. By trying and trying all the time to get better control, I was able to do .925 in fielding at second, but I was bad at third, doing only .896.

Going up against better pitching, I didn't do so good with the bat, but I did pole 'em out for .300 and I was able to steal 29 bases, which the boys said was mighty good work for a rookie that was running against the high grade catchers in the International League. But when 1926 was over, Bert Shotten, boss at Syracuse, decided I was too bad at fielding and he had me transferred to Houston, Tex., which is a club owned by the Cardinals in a smaller minor league.

ANCHORED IN RIGHT SPOT

When that happened I was pretty much worried because I knew I wasn't good enough for the International and maybe wouldn't go good at Houston, either, because of my fielding; but when I got to Houston's training camp in 1927, my whole career was changed.

"You're no infielder and no pitcher," said Joe Mathis, manager at Houston. "From now on you're an outfielder."

At last I was anchored in the right spot.

planning on starting some of his first line reservists gainst Western Reserve, Saturday. I've a sneaking suspicion that Pitt will take the Red Cats even with second stringers in the lineup. Mike Sebastian, the hot-footing Sharonite; Jim Love, Clover Meredith, Muggsy Skladany and one or two others, including Cheesio Onder, likely will be in there for kickoff.

The good Dr. Sutherland is authority for the statement that Pitt does not fear Reserve.

The one and only Lefty Lee was in a huddle with Buddy Overend out at Tech yesterday, which was the big news of the day. When those babies get together, look out! I've traveled a few miles with this Lee fellah, and if I had a dollar for every mile, I'd be just about even with him for what he's taken in those red dog sessions.

The Tartans are preparing for their game next week with Purdue. With an off day this Saturday, Bib Waddell is able to bring his squad along slowly for the test with the Big Tenners, and it won't surprise the boys a bit if the Tartans give the Boilermakers the heck of an argument.

YEARLINGS TO MEET

Carnegie Tech Plebes and Pitt Panther Cubs will have their grid battle of the season at the Stadium Saturday at 10:30 in the morning. Although no admission is to be charged, a collection will be taken for the Knute Rockne Memorial fund, of which Graduate Manager Clarence Overend, of the Skibos, is chairman of the local committee. The teams appear to be fairly well matched.

Jim McGirr, McKeesport's boxing promoter, takes another flier tonight, when he will make a bid for patronage with a show at reduced prices. Jim's that sort of a feller. He'll try anything at least once. The fans haven't been breaking their necks to get into his shows, so he will try to lure them in at a buck a throw, with the balcony going at 50 cents, for "action" fights. If this doesn't pan out, he always can close up and quit. He's an optimist.

Battling Gizzy

Battling Gizzy of Donora, who has been on the sidelines for some months because of illness, will make his return bow in the main event of tonight's show, against Jackie Dugan of Louisville, a seasoned veteran. Young Rudy, of Charleroi, and Marty McHale, of McKeesport, are in the eight-round semi-final. Patsy Hennigan of Clairton and Charley Blozevich, of St. Michael's, in the second bout, and Georgie Tomosky, of Turtle Creek, and Tony Marino, of Duquesne, in the opener.

Between Rounds

Bernard Kelly, Jr., of McKeesport, matchmaker of the Fairmont (W. Va.) Boxing Club, has signed Benny McArthur and Nick Caruso for the 10-round main bout of his opening show, next Wednesday night. Paul Oper and Johnny Dehko will clash in the eight-round semi-final, and George Tomosky, Donora flash, and Kid Tenney, opponent Billy McCale in the two preliminaries. Kelly also is matchmaker at Morgantown, W. Va., and plans to hold his first show there on November 4.

Apollo Meyers, having been refused permission by the Boxing Commission to promote bouts at the Castle Rink in New Castle because of the fact that local men there want to operate this winter, is getting busy on his plans to reopen the Moose Temple for boxing.

Jury Spiegel will box Matty Mario, of New York, in the main bout of a show in Uniontown next Wednesday night. Martin Frigola is the new promoter there.

Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, who will not be permitted to box Jackie Rodgers at Madison Square Garden next Monday night because he faces Andy Martin in Buffalo three nights before, also is matched with Johnny Farr in Buffalo one week from next Monday night.

Ted Yarosz and Jimmy Belmont, leading local welterweight rivals, meet in the main bout at the Garden one week from next Monday, and Paul Pirrone and Buck McTiernan may clash there the following Monday.

Red Roberts boxes Mickey Taylor in a 15-rounder at the Armory Club in New York Saturday night. The same night, Charley (Trader) Horn meets Walter Rouzo in a six-rounder and Billy Janowsky and Joey Knapp battle over the 10-round route in Brooklyn.

Victorio Campolo and Ralph Pizzarello do the honors at the St. Nicholas arena, New York, next Monday night, with Tom Heeney and Giacoma Bergomas following in the same ring the succeeding Monday, the latter bout having been set back a week because Heeney injured his hands in a recent tussle with Jose Santa.

Earl Mastro's next bout is with Midget Mike O'Dowd at Hartford, Conn., October 26.

Bruno Sala, Donora light-heavyweight, knocked his right leg out of joint kicking at a soccer football and will be on the sidelines for a spell.

Jack Tracey, local Negro middleweight, boxes Gorilla Speaks and Eddie Brannon, local Negro lightweight, meets Jimmy Smith in bouts at Muncie, Ind., tonight. Jim Buchanan will handle both.

Frankie Genaro boxes Young Perez in their postponed 15-rounder, in Paris, October 26.

Ernie Schaaf will box Jack Dorval in the headliner of a Christmas basket fund show in Boston's Madison Square Garden, November 16.

Stadium Football Seats for a Dime

Thousands of boys and girls will attend the Pitt-Western Reserve football game at the Stadium Saturday afternoon for a dime and they'll all sit in the section that costs others 75 cents. The 10-cent price is made possible by an arrangement the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph has made with the Stadium management by which thousands of exchange tickets distributed by this newspaper will be good for the 75-cent seats when presented at the ticket windows for gate No. 18 with 10 cents. These Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph exchange tickets can only be used by boys and girls under 16 years of age.

Dorizas May Be Made Boxing Comish Member

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—A local paper says Gov. Pinchot is seriously considering Prof. Michael Dorizas, professor of geography, for appointment as Boxing Commissioner. If he is named, he will succeed Frank Weiner.

Stephen Stahlnecker, secretary of the Governer, is quoted as saying Pinchot is highly impressed with the possibility of obtaining the professor. The latter starred on the track, field, boxing, football, baseball and wrestling teams at the University of Pennsylvania.

GOLFERS HERE IN TWO TESTS TODAY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

One or two more tourneys and the curtain will be rung down on the local golf season. Still in the offing is a second tourney to aid distressed folks, particularly children, in the vicinity of South Park, which is to be held next week, and possibly a professional event at the Highland Country Club.

Two competitions are in progress today. The seniors' championship is being held at the Pittsburgh Field Club, with a number of non-eligibles playing along for the fun of it. Only those members 50 years of age or older may compete. A fourth of a stroke handicap is to be given for each year beyond the 50 mark.

TO ELECT DIRECTORS

Of great importance to the club itself is the election of five directors at the annual meeting to be held tonight. John McGraw, W. J. McAlister, J. N. Succop, John W. Carr and Dr. J. H. McCready have been nominated for office. It will begin at 8 p. m.

Prizes in the tourney will be low net and low gross for seniors and low net and low gross for non-seniors. A get-together stag will be held in the evening. John W. Carr, secretary of the club, pens a "reminder" that the club is now preparing for its sauerkraut festival, better known as its Schlachtfest, to be held sometime next month; the date to be announced later.

An ideal field was slated to tee off in the four-ball, best ball 18-hole professional-amateur tourney at the Shannopin Country Club, which began at 1 o'clock this afternoon. An entry of about 100 was on the books, with star professionals from the three states of the tri-state district engaging in play, paired with Shannopin amateurs.

HELPING HAND TOURNEY

Director of County Parks Paul B. Riis has slated his next benefit tourney as an 18-hole two-ball mixed foursome, with the entry fee to be clothing for children from 6 months to 16 years of age. Following the success of the original "Helping Hand" tourney, Director Riis hopes the same spirit of charity will be shown in the forthcoming competition, in spite of the lateness of the season.

Play is to be staged from Monday of next week to the following Saturday, with a cup to the winner of the low score, and other prizes. Al McBride, professional, is making reservations.

The Illuminating Engineers Society held a blind bogey at the St. Clair Country Club yesterday, and the scores were so entangled that the committee in charge decided to withhold the names of the winners until the convention banquet tonight, to be held in the William Penn Hotel. About 60 players braved inclement weather to compete.

Northwestern Asks Capone To Stay Away

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Al Capone has been invited to stay away from Northwestern University football games in the future.

Jack Leach, chairman of the editorial board of the Daily Northwestern, issued the "invitation" yesterday in the newspaper, commenting on Capone's recent appearance at the Northwestern-Nebraska football game.

Under the caption, "Get This, Capone," Leach said:

"You are not wanted at Dyche Stadium nor at Soldier Field when Northwestern is host. You are not getting away with anything and you are only impressing a moronic few who don't matter anyway."

Leach complained that Capone at the Nebraska game "swept in with an escort of motorcycle police like an emperor going to his coronation."

Soccer Race Close In Grade Schools

The public grade school soccer race is in the home stretch, with several teams still in the running for the title. In Section I, Greenfield and Morningside have undefeated records, and Beechwood, Allen and Obey are undefeated in Section II.

The leaders in Section I are: Group 1, Greenfield; Group 2, Lawrence; Group 3, Woolslair; Group 4, Morningside; Group 5, Swisshelm.

Section II leaders are as follow: Group 1, Allen and Spring Lane tied; Group 2, Beechwood; Group 3, Stevens and Westlake tied; Group 4, Obey; Group 5, Conroy.

UMPS HOLD DANCE

The Pittsburgh Umpires Association will stage a dance tonight in the Roosevelt Hotel, beginning at 9 o'clock. This evening's Sandlot Parade is to be a feature.

AL NIEHAUS, EX-BUC, DIES

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Al Niehaus, former first baseman for the Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates, in the National League, died of pneumonia late yesterday. He was ill two days.

Niehaus first played with the Louisville American Association Club, coming to the Reds from there. After three years he went to the Pirates, and from there to Nashville and Chattanooga in the Southern Association. He did not play last season.

Johnston Garden's New Boxing Head

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(INS.)—James Jabbering Johnston, promoter of boxing matches, swimming meets, automobile races and marathon races in his time, became the biggest figure in the leather-using industry today when he took charge of boxing at Madison Square Garden.

The 600 millionaires of the world's greatest boxing corporation were forced to take the dapper little cockney into the fold after he had run them ragged for the past four months by putting on better shows at the Brooklyn baseball park.

Johnston has a three-year contract as vice president and general manager. His old friend, President Bill Carey, the bridge builder, who was unable to cope with the machinations of the boxing racketeers, will let Jimmy run the works. Uncle Jimmy will install his own matchmaker and assistants. Matchmaker Tom McArdle departing for other pastures.

Johnston's salary will be $25,000 a year, but a transfer of 30,000 shares of Garden stock in his name may swell his profits to $100,000 annually.

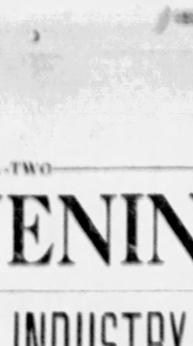
LIGHT INDUSTRY STAGES QUICK COMEBACK

N. England's Comparatively Satisfactory Condition Significant Slump Phase

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
(Central Service)

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The relative comeback of industry in New England, which is currently in a comparatively satisfactory condition, constitutes one of the significant phases of the depression period.

During the prolonged boom, it will be recalled, New England was considered a backward if not a retrogressive section of the country. To a degree, New England is today reaping the benefits of its somewhat restraint during the period of inflation and over-expansion. But other factors are also involved.



Mr. Rukeyser

Though general business is subnormal, the depression is far more acute in the heavy industries, which cater to the demand for durable capital goods, than the textile, shoe and other industries, which make products directly for the consumer. New England, which tends to specialize in making consumption goods rather than production goods, is therefore favored by conditions.

The New England council, which has reported that businesses in many of New England's smaller mills and industrial plants has turned the corner, is itself a factor in the recovery. It has been coordinating efforts to revitalize trade processes in New England and is now beginning to reap some of the benefits.

New England, too, is still the citadel of relatively small business enterprises, whereas other manufacturing sections of the country are the home of giant industries. Among other observers, President Hoover, it is understood, has been impressed with the capacity of small industries to readjust themselves quicker to changing conditions than larger and less wieldy units.

Refiners Hold Lower Gasoline Supplies

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Stocks of gasoline held by refineries representing 95.2 per cent of the country's refining capacity reporting to the American Petroleum Institute declined 115,000 barrels during the week ended October 10 to 30,253,000 barrels.

Refineries were operated at 65½ per cent of capacity during the week, running to stills 2,400,100 barrels of crude oil daily. In the previous week operations were at 62.7 per cent and crude runs to still averaged 2,290,900 barrels daily.

Stock Exchange Topics

Johns Manville Profits Show Improvement in September

Earnings of Johns Manville Corporation in September represented a sharp improvement over the low level of early summer results for the month having been three times those of July. Net for the third quarter probably will run between $425,000 and $475,000, equal to 40 to 70 cents a share on outstanding 750,000 shares of common after preferred dividends. This would compare with $1,202,867, or $1.43 a common share in the like 1930 period. Assuming net for the quarter just closed is about 45 cents a share, it would bring earnings for nine months to $1.36 a share, against $3.40 a year ago.

Bullishness in regard to wheat, if it works out, should favorably affect various stocks, including Sears, Roebuck and Montgomery Ward, says J. H. Oliphant & Co. Paying $2.50 and giving 7 per cent return at a price around 27, Sears, Roebuck has considerable merit. Last year, the earnings were 20 per cent over the dividend. This year, while sales in 40 weeks have been 8.6 per cent lower, there has been some gain in profit margin. The appeal in Montgomery Ward, owing to lack of earnings, is wholly speculative, but holdings of $28,000,000 cash at the beginning of 1931 are probably about intact. Current assets would discharge all liabilities, including $20,000,000 preferred, with a balance of $18 a common share.

Downward revisions are being made in the estimates of earnings of Bohn Aluminum for this year. Months ago it was the confident prediction that the company would make a better showing. Interests close to Bohn state that operating deficits are likely to be shown for the current month and in November. In addition inventory adjustments may be necessary at the end of the year. In the first half $2.63 a share was reported and many will be satisfied if the final six months show an even break.

Banking interests identified with Allis Chalmers insist the company will cover its $1 annual dividend this year with a small margin to spare. They have informed clients that the stock has been well liquidated, and that the company is in a position to take advantage of any improvement in general business. There has been no attempt to have sponsorship for the stock in the past month of reactionary tendencies and the market has been a natural one.

Speculative buying has come into Southern Pacific in the past few weeks. The demand has been encouraged by interests who have been pointing out the history of the road in the past. It is shown that in the 10 years ended with 1930 Southern Pacific had earned a total of $102.06 a share on the common stock. Dividend distributions in that period amounted to $60 a share so that $42.06 a share was carried to surplus. The $6 a share has been in effect for more than 23 years. One commission house maintains that the directors can continue to pay the current rate in view of what was done in the past in adding to surplus during the good years.

Earnings of S. S. Kresge Company so far this year have been running about on a par with last year. With anything like normally favorable weather conditions during the coming 2½ months, there is a probability that net on the common stock will reach or even exceed $2 a share. Last year Kresge reported net profit of $10,621,151, equal after preferred dividends to $1.90 a share on outstanding 5,517,929 common shares.

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability is 46.56 per cent, compared with 36.06 last week. Rate of discount 6 per cent.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Rails Lead Rise — Local Market Steady

STOCK MARKET LED UPWARD BY RAILS

List After Showing Gains Of 2 to 7 Slips Some, but Soon Resumes Advance

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—Wall street took a fresh hold on its courage today, as the stock market turned upward before the reaction from last week's high levels got beyond normal technical limits.

The rail shares led a slow but substantial advance. Brokerage circles received intimations of an early announcement of the Washington administration's plan to stabilize railway bonds. The upturn came after the declines of Tuesday and Wednesday had cancelled roughly half of last week's extreme gain.

After recording numerous advances of 2 to 7 points, the market slipped back a little from the top during the third hour, but the advance was soon resumed. Santa Fe railroad rose more than 7 points, and issues getting up 3 to 4 included New York Central, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, New Haven and Norfolk and Western. In other sections of the list, Eastman rose more than 6, and advances of 2 to 4 appeared in such stocks as United States Steel, American Telephone, American Can, North American, American Water Works, Bethlehem Steel, National Biscuit, Dupont, Woolworth, Sears and International Harvester.

Brokerage quarters had anticipated a fair setback from the high levels reached in last week's violent rebound. A swift rebound in the market is usually followed by a secondary reaction. If this reaction is checked after canceling about half of the extreme rise, chart readers regard it as of merely "technical" proportions. If more than half the advance is lost, chart readers begin to fear that the rebound may have reflected merely the striking of a false bottom. The upturn today, therefore, was regarded as of considerable significance.

Wall street was encouraged by a better tone in foreign bonds, and somewhat better feeling in international banking circles over conditions abroad.

Prominent bankers are inclined to view the loss of gold to Europe as of more hopeful significance than otherwise.

America's 'Best Employe Plan;' How Workers and Company Have Profited Many Years

By B. C. FORBES

WHICH AMERICAN company has the best plan for handling employes?

What kind of treatment, what system, what methods have proved most acceptable and profitable alike to employed and employer?

B. C. Forbes

Mayor Harry Mackey, of Philadelphia, yesterday, at a ceremony held under the auspices of the Philadelphia Business Progress Association, presented to Morris E. Leeds, president of the Leeds and Northrop Company, a check for $2,000, awarded by a business publication in a contest conducted "to find the best employer-employe plan now in operation that makes for the economic independence of the workers, promotes their happiness and safety, thereby increasing their usefulness to the country."

One thousand dollars went to Mr. Leeds, who wrote the prizewinning manuscript, and the other thousand went to the company employes.

Incidentally, the plan adjudged the next best is that of Procter & Gamble, while General Electric and Westinghouse tied for third place.

A BRIEF SUMMARY of this progressive company's plan will interest employers and workers all over the country.

Employes of five years' service, earning $1,500 or more and who have been approved by a board of trustees elected annually by the shareholders are entitled to purchase employes' shares which are sold for cash, have full voting rights, and receive all of the profits after the limited preferred dividend is paid on converted and investment shares. The value of the employes' shares is determined annually. The first value, in 1915, was $45; in 1922 $31, $466 in 1929, $544 in 1930 and $472 this year.

The investment and converted shares, carrying a fixed dividend, can be bought by employes whose business experience and outside circumstances do not justify their taking the employes' shares.

A BONUS FUND is divided among a group (at present 91) of major and minor executives called the bonus group, arranged in sub-groups. The share of bonus varies with the different groups. In good years bonuses may be 15 or 20 per cent of salaries for those in the lowest group and two or three times salaries for those at the top.

IN 1923 AN unemployment benefit fund was inaugurated, and weekly contributions made by the company of 2 per cent of the payroll until the total equaled twice the largest weekly payroll. By January, 1930, contributions by the company, with interest accumulations, brought the fund to $82,000, the required maximum.

Measures to stabilize employment were also adopted—when business is brisk working hours are increased, with extra pay for overtime; when work slackens the standard week is resumed, material is manufactured for stock, research is carried on to develop new apparatus and new uses for present products.

Unemployment benefits are paid to employes who are discharged, laid off, or working less than the regular 44-hour week. Provision is made for those whose benefit payments have expired and who have not yet found other work, through loans or gifts from a separate fund created by employes remaining on full pay.

Old age retirement allowances operate through Metropolitan Life policies paid for by the company for all employes of five years' service and over. If employes elect to co-operate by paying 3 per cent of salary, the company doubles its contribution. Group insurance, sick benefits, etc., are carried on a co-operative basis.

EACH WORKER is reviewed once in three months, and those whose cost records justify it are promoted. Workers paid on hourly basis are given vacations and holidays with pay as their service lengthens; those of nine and one-half years' service are paid for two weeks' vacation and for eight regular plant holidays.

The entire personnel is organized under the co-operative association, functioning through a council whose members are elected annually. This association is made up of various committees, including a permanent committee on wages, to co-operate with the management in working out rates of pay, working hours, etc.; an appeal board for employes who have been discharged and feel they have not had proper consideration; an educational plan committee for helping employes improve their education out of working hours, the company paying one-half the cost; a lunchroom committee, reception and entertainment committee, dispensary committee, committee in charge of athletics and music, and various other committees.

SHOULD NOT THE extremely beneficial results thus attained for employer and employe encourage other right-thinking corporations and companies to do likewise?

Bank of England Rate Unchanged

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The Bank of England made no change in its discount rate, which is 6 per cent.

Bank Resources Pooled in Reserve System

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

This is the fourth article of a series describing the workings of the Federal Reserve System and discussing the changes in its operations which probably will be suggested at the next session of Congress.

THE FORMATION OF THE Federal Reserve System was equivalent to a pooling of bank reserves. Previous to 1913 each of the 27,000 independent banks in the United States held a portion of its deposits idle in its vaults to provide for any sudden calls from depositors.

Reserve requirements varied widely in different states. In most European countries there are few banks and the sizes of reserves are left to individual discretion, but the great number of small banks in this country made rigid legal requirements necessary to protect depositors. As a result, banks were forced to keep a large proportion of their funds idle during periods of heavy demand for credit, when this money might have been helpful to business.

Member banks are required to deposit their reserves, outside of the funds needed to transact ordinary business, with the Federal Reserve Bank. These reserves of all member banks form a basis for granting credit to any individual banks which may need money to meet emergencies. This pooling of reserves is particularly important, since they can be used without drawing them out. They form the basis for issues of Federal Reserve notes or further extensions of credit.

Relation of Banks to System

THE INDIVIDUAL BANKS have a relationship to the Federal Banks similar to that of individuals or corporations to their own banks. The banks carry accounts with the Federal Reserve. In return they can borrow money. This is one way in which elasticity is given to currency. When the law was framed, however, it was realized that there was great danger of starting credit inflation. To guard against this, rigid rules were established about the ways in which banks could use Federal Reserve credit.

Banks may borrow money from the Federal Reserve in two ways. A bank may indorse its customers' promissory notes representing actual commercial or agricultural transactions and send them to the Federal Reserve Bank, which will discount or advance money on this paper if it has a maturity of 90 days or less. Some kinds of agricultural paper may run for nine months. This is referred to as either a discount or a rediscount.

The bank may also borrow on its own promissory note secured by commercial paper or United States government bonds. This is called an advance.

Rediscount Rate Important

THE INTEREST CHARGED by the Federal Reserve Bank in transactions of this kind is known as the rediscount rate. This rate is established by the board of each district bank subject to the approval of the Federal Reserve Board.

The Reserve Banks can stimulate or retard the borrowing of money by raising or lowering the rediscount rate. If an increase in circulation of currency would be helpful to business a reduction in the rediscount rate will encourage borrowing from the Federal Reserve and will keep the supply of cheap credit plentiful. If an increase is not desirable the rediscount rate can be kept at a high level, which will make borrowing from the Federal Reserve unprofitable except in emergencies.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. — The bond market fluctuated irregularly again today.

Railroad obligations reversed their trend of yesterday and many of the more active of them scored substantial recoveries.

United States government loans resumed their decline. Trading was concentrated in Liberty fourth 4¼s and the Treasury 3s and 3¼s.

Trading in foreign issues was much less active than usual.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. (AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, (the omitted in sales column) (Unless otherwise stated bonds in dollars and (thirty)-seconds of dollars):

Valentin's Dance Rehearsal Fails to Please Him

CHAPTER XXXI.

We walk side by side. The mist flows between us. Wolf jumps up about us and barks, the trams are ringing, and the world is warm and soft. The old feeling is there once again, full, tremulous, wavering; the years are blotted out, an arch has flung over into the past, a rainbow, a bright bridge through the mist.

I have no idea what we are talking about—what does it matter? The point is that we are walking side by side; that this sweet, inaudible music of other days is here again, a cascade of dreams, beyond which shimmers silken the green of meadows; beyond which sings the silver chatter of the poplar trees and the smooth horizon of youth shows clear like the dawn.

Have we been walking long? —I do not know. I run back alone. Adele has said good-by. But still like a big, many-colored banners there waves within me joy and hope and fullness; the little room where I was once a boy; summer; the green spires and the open-wide world.

As I run back I bump into Willy and we go on together in search of Valentin. We overtake him. With every appearance of joy he darts off after some fellow whom he gives a resounding slap on the back. "Hullo, Kuckhuff, old son! Where have your sprung from?" He holds out his hand. "This is a bit of luck, eh? Fancy meeting again like this."

FAITH SHATTERED

The other looks at him a while deprecatingly.

"Ah, Laher, I think?"

"Sure, man! Why we were together on the Somme, don't you remember? And how, right in the middle of the bloody stunt, we polished off those fritters Lilly sent me? It was Georg brought them up, with the mail. A risky thing to do, you know, what?"

"Yes, indeed," says the other.

Valentin is quite excited by his memories. "He got it properly later on, though," he continues. "You'd gone then, of course. Lost his right arm, he did. Stiff luck on a coachman like him. I suppose he's had to start something else now—And where have you been hiding all this time, eh?"

The other makes an evasive answer, then says patronizingly, "Nice to have met you.—And how are you getting along now, my man?"

"Eh?" retorts Valentin in astonishment.

"How are you getting along? What are you doing now?"

Valentin has still not recovered. "My man?" For a moment he continues to stare at the other as he stands before him in his elegant raincoat. Then he glances down at his own things, goes fiery red and pushes off. "Skunk!"

I feel sorry for Valentin. It is the first time apparently that the idea of a difference has struck him. Until now in his mind we had all been just plain soldiers. And with one single "My man" this conceited puppy has shattered his simple faith.

"Don't let that worry you, Valentin," I say. "It's the likes of him that pride themselves on how much their fathers earn. That's their business."

And Willy supplements with a few forceful expressions.

"Fine sort of pal he is, anyway," says Valentin at last sullenly. But that does not take the taste away. It works on chokingly within him.

Fortunately at that moment we run into Tjaden. He is as gray as a floorcloth. "Say!" says Willy. "The war's over now, you know! Couldn't you give yourself a good wash once in a while?"

"Not just now," explains Tjaden solmenly. "But next Saturday I will. I'm even going to have a bath then."

We start in surprise. Tjaden have a bath! Whatever's the matter with the man? He must have stopped something, surely, that time he was buried last August. Willy, who is quite floored, puts a hand to his ear. —"I'm afraid I haven't understood you properly—What did you say you are going to do on Saturday?"

"Have a bath!" says Tjaden proudly. "I'm getting engaged next Saturday night."

TJADEN EXPLAINS

Willy stares at him as if he were some strange kind of parrot, then gently he puts his great paw on Tjaden's shoulder and says in a fatherly tone, "Say, Tjaden, do you sometimes have a stabbing pain in the back of the head? Or a funny buzzing sort of noise in your ears?"

"Only when I'm half starved," Tjaden reassures him; "and then I have a regular bombardment in my belly, too—an awful feeling that is, I tell you! But to come back to my fiancee; she isn't beautiful, mind you, but she makes up for it with a heart, and then, you see, her father's a butcher."

A butcher! The light begins to dawn.—Tjaden volunteers yet more information. "You'd be surprised. She's so crazy about me. And, well, it's catch-as-catch-can these days. Times are bad, you know, so a man has to make some sacrifices. But a butcher will be the last man to starve. Any anyway, besides, engaged is after all still a long way from married."

Willy listens with growing interest. "Tjaden," he begins, "you know we have always been good friends——"

"Certainly, Willy," interrupts Tjaden, "you may have a few sausages. And chops, too, to go with them, for mine. Come around next Monday. We are having a white sale on Monday."

"White sale? What do you mean?" I asked, mystified. "Have you a drapery business as well?"

"No, not that, but, you see, we are killing a white horse."

We promise faithfully to be there and go on our way.

Valentin turns in at the Alstadter Hof, where the artists put up. A group of Lilliputians are already sitting at supper as we enter. There is a turnip soup on the table and beside each is a piece of bread.

"Let's hope they at least can get a square meal off their ration cards," growls Willy. "They'll have smaller bellies, I suppose, don't you think?"

Pasted on the walls there are playbills and photographs—variecolored patches, some of them half torn, and pictures of weight-lifters and female lion-tamers and clowns. They are old and faded. The front line has been the arena for weight-lifters, crack riders and acrobats during the past few years, and there they had no need of placards.

Valentin points to one of them. "That was me once." In the picture is a fellow with a pouter's chest turning a somersault from a horizontal bar, away up the dome of a circus. But with the best will in the world one could not recognize Valentin in it any more.

The dancer with whom he proposes to work is already waiting. We pass on into the little hall at the back of the restaurant. Some stage scenery is leaning in a corner. It belongs to the farce, "Fly, Little Pineapple, a humorous piece from the lives of our lads in field-gray, with songs for all," which had a great run for over two years.

Valentin sets a gramophone on a chair and looks out some records. A hoarse melody issues croaking from the horn. "Tango!" Willy whispers to me, with the air of an adept that does not betray the fact that he has just read the inscription on the record.

VALENTIN DISSATISFIED

Valentin is wearing blue pants and a shirt, the woman is in tights. They practice an Apache dance and a fancy number where the girl finally hangs by the legs about Valentin's neck, while he gyrates as fast as he can.

The two rehearse in silence with grim faces. Only occasionally is a half-audible word spoken.

Valentin finishes. Willy claps his applause. Valentin, ill-satisfied, makes a gesture to desist. The girl changes without even noticing us.

Willy goes nosing around the room. He discovers a program for the "Pineapple." On the back are some advertisements. A confectioner, for instance, recommends bombs and shells made of chocolate, all ready packed to send off to the trenches. And a Saxon firm is offering letter-openers made from shell splinters, and paper with sayings of great men about the war.

The dancer has dressed. In cloak and hat she looks quite strange. Before she was a lithe animal; now she is like all the others again. One would hardly believe that it is necessary only to put on a few bits of clothing to make such a difference. Most strange it is, how clothes do change people! And uniforms more than all.

Synopsis

Ernst, who enlisted when a schoolboy, tells the post-war story of a group of friends from the same city who return home when peace is made, to find a strange new world in which they seem to have no place. They are without occupation and out of touch with conditions. Rationing leaves them hungry and several of the group go into the country on a foraging expedition. When on their return gendarmes stop them and attempt to take their booty they overpower the police and escape with their loot. Later, walking with Valentin Laher, Ernst catches a glimpse of Adele, whom he knew and liked romantically in the old days. He leaves Valentin abruptly to speak to the girl, who greets him in surprise.

Now Go On

DAILY SHORT STORY

Smart Girl

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Aunt Warns Niece About Friday the 13th

"Now you be careful, Jessica!"

Jessica Blakely looked questioningly at her aunt.

"Careful of what, Auntie?" she asked.

"Everything!"

Mrs. Jane Sawyer said it sharply, and convincingly, but Jessica was still naturally in the dark.

"Well, I'm always careful—I don't walk off any docks or go to sleep on railroad tracks—"

"Now Jessica Blakely, don't you dare to be facetious. I know you don't naturally do things that would prove fatal—"

"People usually do those only once."

Mrs. Jane Sawyer raised her hands and eyes at this

"Jessica Blakely, haven't you got the sense you were born with? What day is this?"

"Friday," Jessica replied, picking up her gloves, preparatory to starting down town for her work.

"Yes, but it's more than Friday—land knows Friday is unlucky enough, but this is Friday the Thirteenth."

"All right, Auntie."

"But it isn't all right. It is a very dangerous day!"

"Perhaps, but Auntie, be reasonable. Did I make the calendar? Is it my fault that every once in a while Friday comes on the thirteenth of the month?"

"You didn't make the calendar, but that doesn't change matters any. You didn't make the lightnin', either, but it isn't healthy to get struck by it. You be careful, child."

REFRAINS FROM LAUGHING

"All right, Auntie."

"Don't let any black cats cross in front of you—"

"I know, it's a sign they want to get on the other side of the street."

"Jessica! Don't be so pert and so—so—wicked. Cats are omens, black ones, crossing the street."

"If they cross in front of me what shall I do?"

Mrs. Jane Sawyer did not suspect how much Jessica was struggling to keep from laughing.

"You turn around and walk back nine steps, then you'll kill the curse."

"All right, Auntie."

Jessica started out.

"And say, don't walk under any ladders. Ladders are awful bad luck to walk under at any time and doubly dangerous on Friday the thirteenth."

"I'll watch out for ladders," Jessica promised.

"And some ladders are positively deadly—"

"If they fall on you!"

"Now Jessica Blakely, something is sure to happen to you today—something dreadful. It's almost sacrilegious to make fun of omens and such. What I mean is that some ladders have only 13 rungs—if you walked under one of them it would probably mean the end of you."

"Which end!"

"All right, all right, if you come home half killed don't say I didn't tell you."

Jessica hugged her superstitious old aunt with real affection and started out for her work.

She had a number of blocks to walk at each end of her subway trip.

WORKS AT NEWSPAPER

She worked in the classified advertising department of a certain old-fashioned morning newspaper. For some months she had worked there, taking the classified advertisements from advertisers, counting the words, computing the rates and taking the money for them.

Jessica considered herself to be quite fortunate, since so very many could find no jobs at all in these depressing times.

Jessica was wondering if this new job held any future. She might work up to something better. Already she helped the uninitiated advertisers to properly word their wants. And she knew that trained writers of advertising copy received very handsome wages.

Perhaps she might get to do this, go over to some big commercial advertising agency, and gradually work up to a position of influence and affluence.

Jessica came out of her reverie at these words and looked up.

She was standing close to a ladder and a workman was holding her back as a truck backed up out of an excavation where a new building was going up.

Jessica looked back. She had, it was plain to be seen, walked under a ladder. She grinned at this. She thought of her aunt and chuckled. Her aunt would almost pass out, if she could see her now.

The truck backed up slowly. Jessica had to wait. She glanced up at the ladder leaning against the temporary scaffolding.

"One, two, three—" and so on until she finished with 13!"

Thirteen rungs to this ladder—a fatal number, according to Aunt Jane.

It did make Jessica gasp a little. But the truck passed and Jessica went on her way.

At the corner of the next street she waited for the traffic lights to be right, to cross. Just as they flashed green she saw one of those large sized pins, used for securing legal papers, at her feet.

EARLY FOR WORK

But the crowd had started across and Jessica went with the crowd.

"See a pin and let it lay,
Means bad luck all the day."

Jessica repeated the couplet to herself. She wondered why her superstitious aunt had neglected to mention the matter of picking up pins.

In the subway she was crowded smack up to an extremely cross-eyed youngster.

Jessica knew the superstition. She had a girl friend who was a chorus girl. When you see a cross-eyed person you must spit at once or you will have bad luck.

Jessica wouldn't have been silly enough to do that, anyway, but crowded into the subway as she was there was no chance to thus break the jinx.

Out at the end of her subway trip she glanced at the great clock in the square.

Five minutes to go. Plenty of time to get to the office, hang up her things and slide up on the stool before the little window where she presided.

She saw a cute hat in a window and gave it a fleeting glance. Only $3.98. She would get it the next payday.

And so she forgot, for the moment, her aunt and the fact that it was Friday the thirteenth. She was busy planning how best to get material for a new dress. Jessica had skilled fingers and made many of her little dresses.

Automatically she turned in at the door of the office building.

During the luncheon hour she ran out and took a look at the $3.98 hat.

She liked it better than ever. And she could easily spare the money. Tomorrow she would get her weekly $21. She would dutifully give her Aunt Jane eight of it, for her little room and board. She had it all figured out. She knew how much she could spend for lunches, what her subway fares were and how much she would have left after she tucked away the $3 that went into the bank each week.

Jessica hadn't been back more than an hour when someone from the cashier's office came down the line. Three of the girls received envelopes. One of these went to Jessica.

She was puzzled and then, seeing Mayme Johnson, two desks down, begin to cry, Jessica became frightened. She opened her envelope with fingers that trembled somewhat. Others were looking at her now, Jessica read:

"Owing to necessary retrenchments we are forced to lay off the three latest comers to this department and regret that you are included. Two weeks' salary will be awaiting you tomorrow."

Jessica had a lot of pride. She knew that several were already wise. She flipped the little note down to the desk.

"Well," she said, "that's that!"

"Atta girl, don't let anything get you," Tom Parsons said to her. Tom had charge of this department.

Jessica felt sick and trembly and wanted to cry, but pride held her head high. Automatically she answered questions, and helped advertisers tell their wants in two or three lines.

A boy tossed in an advertisement and winked at her. Jessica grinned at the sassy kid.

"How much, Angel-face?" he asked.

Jessica read:

WANTED—SMART GIRL, to keep records. Chance for advancement. Universe Advertising Agency.

She told the boy what it would cost, took the money and made a note of the address.

At home that night she forced herself to be so cheerful that her Aunt Jane said, "Well, I guess Friday the Thirteenth didn't hurt you any."

GETS POSITION

The next morning at 8:30, Jessica was in the office of the Universe Advertising Agency. She had to wait until 9 to see Mr. Anderson.

He listened to her application, nodded at her modest account of herself and said, "Well, you are early, that's one recommendation. I should, however, interview other applicants."

"Why? You wanted a smart girl. I'm a smart girl," Jessica found courage to say.

"How do I know you are a smart girl?" Mr. Anderson demanded.

"Because here's your money for the advertisement. I didn't turn it over to the paper or put the ad in. I wanted to be sure to be the first and the only applicant for that job. I'm going to be a writer of big advertising copy before long and you might as well take advantage of my services while I'm learning."

Mr. Anderson gazed dreamily at pretty Jessica for a moment and pushed a button. A prim woman appeared.

"Here, Miss Thomas," he said, "is a smart girl. Show her what her first duties will be."

Last Minute Spending

The Building Owners' Association Again Indicates How Municipal Extravagance Can Be Curbed,

The Building Owners' and Managers' Association, which did such good work last year in combatting high taxes, rendered another service yesterday in calling attention, through its spokesman, J. W. Bamford, to last minute extravagance in the city administration.

Scrutiny of the municipal records shows far heavier spending in the last three months of the fiscal year than at other seasons. The interpretation, probably correct, which Mr. Bamford places upon this recurrent phenomenon is that the department heads, finding as the year nears a close that if expenditures continue at the normal rate a considerable part of their appropriations will be left unexpended at the end of the year hasten to spend lavishly. They fear that if they report an unexpected balance next year's funds will be cut.

It is a shameful commentary on the spirit of the administration that department heads should be unwilling to report an unexpended balance when it would be easy to do so.

They Worked Well

Despite Allegheny County's Experience Voting Machines Have Proved a Great Improvement,

Common Pleas Court has been asked to restrain the County Commissioners from accepting any more of the voting machines to be delivered by the Poole Engineering and Machine Company until those now on hand have been examined and approved by the state.

This, the latest in a long series of difficulties that have interfered with the effort to install voting machines in Allegheny County, will tend to disgust some persons with the machines and incline them to think we would be better off if we had never made the effort.

To those who may entertain this opinion we commend a report from Harrisburg as to how voting machines worked in other counties in the primary election. Richard J. Beamish, Secretary of the Commonwealth, states they worked remarkably well. Two thousand, three hundred and thirty-five machines were used in 18 counties. Poole machines were used in three counties. The only county to complain of mechanical defects was Allegheny.

In every Philadelphia district where voting machines were used the returns were published long before the returns were available in districts using paper ballots. Complete returns from the Eleventh Ward, which used voting machines, were in City Hall at 10:02, and the first of the paper ballot districts to submit a complete count was not in with it until 2:44 a. m.

Voting machines have been in use for more than 30 years and were in successful operation in 2,000 communities before Pennsylvania adopted them.

Our difficulties have been due principally to lack of experience, and will be overcome before long.

Poor Board Election

It Is Gratifying to Know That the Incumbent Directors Are Going to Have Strong Opposition.

The opposition to the County Directors of the Poor, J. Clyde Miller, H. H. Dixon and Dr. W. L. Henderson, who are candidates for another term, spread itself out too thin in the primary. Notwithstanding that the Directors are charged with grave irregularities in the administration of their offices, they triumphed over the score or more of candidates opposing them for the Republican nominations.

It is gratifying to learn that this does not assure their election. Judge Macfarlane's decision dismissing the attack on the legality of the nominating papers placing Bert A. Llewellyn, K. William Schuchman and Bernard L. Flynn in the field as candidates of the Square Deal party makes it certain that the accused Directors will have strong opposition.

The opposition to the three men was scattered in the primary among a score or more of competing candidates. Concentrated on the three Square Deal party nominees in the general election, it may defeat Miller, Dixon and Henderson.

They should be defeated, for the board of visitors appointed by Common Pleas Court to investigate their conduct has reported the charges are true.

Not Wholly Charity

Much of Money to Be Raised in Approaching Relief Drive Will Be Spent On Public Works.

Are the people of Pittsburgh less generous, less sensitive to the suffering of the unemployed, than the people of Seattle, or Duluth, or Wichita Falls, or Elgin, Ill., or Green Bay, Wis., or Bellingham, Wash.?

The answer is, of course, "No."

The western cities named, first in the country to conduct welfare campaigns, have oversubscribed their quotas. Hence there is reason to believe that our approaching relief drive will be successful, notwithstanding that the amount of money sought is about three times as great as the amount raised last year.

The Welfare Fund and the Emergency Association will join forces in a campaign to be conducted from November 9 to 23 for a tentative budget of $5,500,000.

An important point to be remembered is that less than half this money will be devoted outright to charity. Three million dollars of it will be expended by the Emergency Association in wages to be paid men and women who will be given emergency employment on public works or on improvements blic or semi-public institutions.

Under this arrangement, known as the Pittsburgh Plan, ibutors to the fund will receive part of their money back e form of municipal betterments.

The difficulties that will be experienced in raising the money are not to be underestimated, but the task is well within our ability.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Fifty-Fifty Courtship

Once upon a time, every girl looked forward to marriage as she did to Christmas Day, and to a husband as a Life-Santa-Claus.

* * *

But marriage is no longer the royal road to a life of ease and luxury.

It is more like a labor-union, in which two jobs and two pay-envelopes blossom where there used to be only one.

* * *

"I'll clean your safety-razor if you'll powder my back and cover me with diamonds," is no longer the slogan of domestic reciprocity. It's "I'll run a typewriter downtown and help with the bills if you'll turn the washing machine uptown and help with the meals."

"Every morn, I bring thee violets," is not the modern lover's "line."

Girls no longer look forward to Christmas Day as the harvest time, when they will gather in enough gloves, silk stockings and imported wrist watches to last throughout the year.

* * *

When a girl wants anything, from a husband to a motor car, she first gets a job—and then goes AFTER IT! She knows that is the quickest and surest way to get it.

She has discovered that sitting helplessly back and wishing on the new moon doesn't get her much in this life, except a cold in the head.

When Christmas comes around she climbs down her own chimney and fills her own little stocking—and is pleased and thankful if she doesn't have to kiss herself under the mistletoe.

It is all a little sad and unromantic. But it's really much more refreshing and satisfying, much more fun working for things, than it was waiting around for some man to "shower" them on you. The "shower" never comes when you most long for it—and then it is always apt to be something you don't want and have to look grateful for.

* * *

Now the hand that rocks the cradle, also cradles the "rocks," and buys its own gloves and dinner rings—and the high cost of loving is no longer a national or a bar to marriage.

* * *

The 50-50 marriage has led to the 50-50 courtship—and every girl has GOT to be her own Santa Claus.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The other evening in a Tenth avenue coffee house I met one of the beglamoured creatures known as a "gun moll." The introduction was through a Tenderloin reporter on a gangster assignment. I expected a flinty and highly rouged lady—swift tongued, trigger minded.

Instead I found an unbelievably vapid, chewing gum type, bedecked in five and ten finery who might have stepped from a Vina Delmar's novel. She was "crazy about Richard Barthelmess" and had won three Friday night prize contests in various dance halls.

Her patter was punctuated with "O. K!" and "You're telling me?" All in all a witless girl of about twenty, the kind often found in movie ticket cages on Third avenue or balancing trays in depot restaurants in Chicago. Yet she had just figured prominently in the life of a desperado.

As she said "he got a bum rap and is doing a bit up the river." She was terrif .lly conscious of the part she played in one of his adventures, displaying newspaper clippings from a bright red leather purse which showed them in cells at a police station.

So far as I could gather she had been freed largely because of her youth and was now under the espionage of a correction school to which she reports weekly. It was interesting to note the part environment played in her waywardness.

She spoke of her father as "the old harp" and as one whom she never saw sober and there was the same indifference about her mother. "She went out with the horrors over at Welfare," she said, and added unemotionally: "A gin head, too."

I am told most of the "gun molls" are of the same ilk. They are waifs cast loose from orphanages or products of tenement house living neglect. Gangsters are their heroes and they will do anything at their bidding. And for this reason prove of great value.

One of those splay-footed performers of the bounding mat—trampline is the backstage name—was held for five weeks at the Palace this summer and only released because of prior engagements. It's my guess an expert trick bicycle rider could have the same run. There is a new generation for many old acts for which we older audiences grew indifferent.

The bounding mat looks easiest of all acrobatic antics. To the casual eye one merely hits and bounces, yet I am told it requires remarkable equilibristic precision. The slightest misjudging of distance results in severe and often fatal accidents. Records show that for this reason bounding mat performers do not last long. More than a dozen top liners of 20 years ago were catapulted to wheel chairs.

A New York managing editor has been on the lookout for a bright columnist to illuminate a book page. He angled for several and one who submitted a sample column rang the bell with a bang. But it developed one column was all he had. It was also discovered woods are full of one-column guys. Which, maybe proves a successful columnist is a second story worker.

I rather suspect that one of the reasons Dinty Moore's mirrored midtown caravansary is always packed with two-fisted eaters is that the menu offers such homely items as "Cabbages, potatoes and turnips warmed over in pan—50 cents."

* * *

And there is still a misty swim in recalling a window card on upper Broadway that read: "Thick white bean soup on Monday. Wet Southern hash on Saturday." But so lacking in sentiment is the vast metropolis that when Will Hogg and I visited it two days later a bankrupt notice was on the door.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"Is there any way I can earn money at home?"

Thousands of desperate women asking that question. Winter coming. Dad out of a job—or pinching along on half pay. The youngsters need shoes. And Jimmy should have his tonsils out before the cold sets in—

"If only I knew how to do something . . . if only I could earn just a little!" cries the worried wife and mother.

"You do—you can!" says Elita Wilson, and proceeds to write a book telling over one hundred ways by which a woman may make money at home.

This isn't a book review department. But it's a human service department—and we're going to pass on the news about this book as a lifesaver for those anxious wives and mothers.

"HOW TO MAKE MONEY AT HOME" is a really practical book. Elita Wilson knows women and women's jobs. She doesn't present a lot of poetical bunk and trick pictures. She gets right down to brass tacks and tells Mrs. Bill Jones what she can make in her own kitchen with her own egg beater, sewing machine, paint brush, watering can, hammer and saw. Tells her how to go to work, how to sell her work, what to charge for it. As for example—

Handy with your needle? How about doll outfits for Christmas . . . ironing board covers . . . layettes . . . pine pillows . . . or maybe house dresses for the "perfect 36's" for whom the average store provides only figured circus tents? Scores of suggestions in that chapter.

A good cook? Ever think of putting up school lunches . . . picnic suppers . . . taking on the catering for small neighborhood dinners . . . becoming a doughnut specialist?

Like to write letters? Dozens of people loath it—would pay you gladly if you'd help them out. Or there are people who'd be willing to pay a small fee if you'd read to them for an hour a day—though I don't think Miss Wilson mentions that opportunity.

Crazy about children? How about planning children's parties? Taking care of them in the afternoons, while their mothers shop? Setting up a children's barber shop? Coaching backward children?

Over a hundred practical suggestions—with complete directions for making a real job of a pleasant task. That book is going to do a lot for Mrs. Bill Jones. It's going to do more than put money in her pocket . . . it will put hope and self-confidence back again, into her spirit.

Not an easy trick, that—with a housewife. I've been one of them. I know. Housework does something to you—takes something from you. Doing the same things, day after day, inside the same four walls. Pretty soon you feel as dull as your own dust mops. Get to hating it all. Get to thinking you don't amount to anything—particularly when you watch the unmarried girls clicking by to their work, fresh and gay, all set for adventure.

Don't feel that way, Mrs. Bill. You DO amount to something. You amount to a lot. Actually, you have a dozen crafts at your finger tips, where the office girl has only one. You have the stuff! Then use it. Put it to work. AND BELIEVE IN IT!

Go at that home job as you'd go at any office job, old girl . . . with the same confidence in yourself . . . the same wallop and pep and sense of gay adventure . . . AND YOU'LL WIN. And, when you do, write and tell me about it, won't you? I had the kitchen-sink-blues once myself.

Get the name again—"HOW TO MAKE MONEY AT HOME" by Elita Wilson. Any book shop has it. Get that book. Then get busy.

The Whispering Campaign Against the Dollar

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser

THE latest turn in the humpty dumpty monetary economics of this period is the flood of rumors in France and elsewhere in Europe concerning the position of the American dollar.

Propagandist tales have been cabled from abroad concerning indications of a flight from the dollar into the franc.

Apart from political intrigue, such stories are a measure of the extent of the financial reign of terror and emotionalism.

Press reports are careful to point out that official agencies discredit the rumors, but that gutter economists in France are fearful of inflation on this side, especially as a result of the Hoover financial plan.

William Randolph Hearst in a signed editorial appearing in all Hearst newspapers on October 4, 1931, foresaw just such a whispering campaign. He said in part:

"* * *, but our government, and particularly our people, must expect assaults upon the supremacy of the United States.

"There will be attempts to undermine our solvency and supremacy.

"This effort will express itself chiefly in concerted attempts on the part of European nations to relieve themselves of war debts and to impose all of THEIR war and THEIR folly and THEIR fatal mistakes upon the United States, which was drawn innocently and unwillingly into the war."

IT is high time that the sensible people of the world planted their feet firmly on the ground, and recognized that the rules of elementary arithmetic still operate.

With a dozen nations forced off the gold standard, it is perhaps natural that sly efforts should be made to change the rules of the game of international finance.

Perhaps another aspect of the situation is that the second largest repository of gold in the world, France, is unaccustomed to play the role of an international financial leader. There is a strong tendency in France to use the gold hoard as an important nationalistic weapon to heighten French prestige in international diplomacy.

With France and the United States sharing the bulk of the world's supply of monetary gold, the forthcoming visit to Washington of Premier Laval is fraught with broad significance.

But before policies can be intelligently discussed, it is high time for European observers to be reminded of the A, B, C's of monetary economics.

IN the first place, the Hoover plan, whatever its merits or defects, raises no question of pathological inflation, such as Europe became familiar with in France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, and other belligerent nations.

At best, the plan is an attempt to heighten confidence through accomplishing formally through a banking pool a job which the strong, liquid member banks were already accomplishing informally for less liquid correspondent banks. It calls for no vast increase in credit, but rather for a mobilization and central direction of funds already available. It is a belated attempt to check uncontrolled and reckless deflation.

The attempt to head off the disease of deflation, and to move back toward an economic basis, shown by banking experience and by legal reserve requirements to be safe, cannot be described as an inflationary campaign. It is simply a counter deflationary move toward normal.

The American banks, as a result of their dominant position in the world's gold market, can enormously expand the currency, without approaching limits imposed by banking experience or legal gold reserve requirements.

If in the future American leaders should decide that controlled credit expansion is desirable, their decision will not resemble inflation in the European sense, which was carried on arbitrarily without regard to the adequacy of the gold cover.

ATTEMPTS to cast aspersions on the supremacy of the dollar are RIDICULOUS, especially in view of the fact that recent withdrawals of gold from this center have been accomplished through the courtesy of American leaders.

If there were no moratorium, European nations would find it necessary to send over a quarter of a billion dollars this year in gold or its equivalent to settle intergovernmental debt payments.

If American bankers had not consented to leave huge short term loan balances in Berlin and in London in the interest of stabilizing the world situation, New York could have been drawing gold from those centers.

It is IRONIC for the French, even for the irresponsible French, to cast reflections on the dollar, which remains at mint parity, when their country attained monetary stability ONLY THROUGH THE POLICY OF REPUDIATION OF 80 PER CENT OF THE VALUE OF THE FRANC, after insisting on the scaling down of inter-governmental debts owed to Great Britain and to the United States.

It is ABSURD for Europeans to question the impregnability of the dollar, while at the same time carrying on a propaganda for the REMISSION OR CANCELLATION OF EUROPEAN DEBTS TO THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT.

OBVIOUSLY the cancellationists are basing their arguments on the unrivaled strength of the American dollar.

THE DOLLAR IS TODAY FINANCIAL KING, and American statesmen and financiers have a large responsibility to act with forbearance and with wisdom.

With evidence before them of alien intrigue, however, American leaders should safeguard zealously the debt agreements, which in the international scramble for gold give America a big stick for protecting itself financially from massed foreign attack.

Further to reduce the debt of France, for example, which is NOW BOASTFUL OF ITS FINANCIAL STRENGTH, would seem especially uncalled for.

WORK DELAYED, RESIDENTS COMPLAIN

Job Proceeding Normally, City's Reply to Demand More Men Be Employed

City inspectors do not agree with the complaint of Center avenue residents, between Aiken and Morewood avenues, that the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the city are slow in repaving Center avenue. In fact, the inspectors say that the project is being pushed at a normal rate and will be completed about November 1.

Meanwhile, residents of the district continue to complain that only a handful of workmen are employed on the repaving of the 2,200 feet; that they have no facilities for parking; that the noise is a nuisance, and that the work could be speeded if more men were employed.

R. V. Hipwell, street inspector, explained:

"The job was started late in August. It took about a month to lay the tracks. They were completed last Thursday and today the curbs are being put in. The contractor, M. O'Herron, will begin laying the concrete within a few days. This is done rapidly, 800 feet or more a day. The laying of the asphalt will follow."

WILKINS TOWNSHIP RALLY TO SPEED TAX RATE PROTEST

FINAL PETITION TO BE DRAFTED FOR COUNTY

90 Per Cent of Property Owners Join in Fight On 'Unfair Assessments'

Taxpayers of Wilkins Township will meet tomorrow night in the Gilmore School to complete preparation of petitions to be presented to the County Commissioners protesting "unfair" tax assessments.

Andrew A. McKeever, tax collector for the township, said that there is a possibility that the petitions which he claims bear the signatures of 90 per cent of the property owners of the district may be withheld until after January 1, when the new County Commissioners will take office.

The petitions, which ask the elimination of several tax inequalities, grew out of meetings held in the township during the past seven or eight months, charge that the small home-owner carries the tax burden, and ask for equalization of assessments.

The petitions state in part:

"We know that such a survey will show large and valuable pieces of real estate which are assessed for taxation at approximately 20 per cent of the market price. We know also that such a survey will show small homes to be assessed approximately 80 per cent of the market price.

"Such an unfair and unequal assessment not only tends to hold such real estate in the township vacant for speculative purposes, but it also deprives the county of a considerable amount of taxes.

"Furthermore, the low rate of taxation upon the large land owner enables him to hold his land vacant and by so doing prevents the township from being built up with new residences."

PROF. AND MRS. CLARENCE J. GROGAN . . . . . HE'S TAUGHT MUSIC FOR MANY YEARS

Blind Wilkinsburg Music Genius Achieves Fame In 'Believe It or Not'

"Believe it or not," but Ripley did not tell the whole story of blind Prof. Clarence J. Grogan, of 413 McNaugher avenue, Wilkinsburg, in his Sun-Telegraph drawing last week.

Besides playing three tunes and singing another simultaneously, Grogan directs his own music school, composes both classical and dance music, typewrites with lightning speed and plays and sings over the radio.

He had poor eyes at birth and at three months was totally blind. His interest in music was evidenced while he was in a school for the blind in the South. He studied there for a time and later under Prof. Strauchaeur of the Lepsic School of Germany.

For 12 years he played on the vaudeville and concert stage and 13 years ago he started his own music school in Wilkinsburg, teaching piano, voice, violin, harmony, cornet, saxophone, tenor banjo, mandolin and ukulele.

"My, that is a bright light!"

His wife asked:

"How do you know?"

"I can feel it, not through my eyes, but I can feel very bright lights."

NEGLEY BURIAL PLACE MARKED

Standing in the shade of a grove of trees in the heart of Highland Park is a sturdy monument that marks the burial place of two of Pittsburgh's noted pioneers, Alexander Negley and his wife, Mary Ann Burkstreese Negley. The monument was erected by their granddaughter, Sarah Jane Negley Mellon.

A brief inscription explains:

"Alexander Negley was born in Germany 1734, of Swiss ancestry, came to Eastern Pennsylvania in 1739 and served in the Revolution, settled on the present site of Highland Park in 1778, and died November 3, 1809."

His wife died January 17, 1829.

The monument stands in the center on a burial ground that was once near the heart of the Negley homestead.

APPEAL FILED ON TOWN HALL

Property owners in the Schenley Farms district have filed an appeal to the Supreme Court from the decision of Judge James R. Macfarlane refusing to enjoin the County Commissioners from constructing the Town Hall in the district. Attorney Oliver K. Eaton filed the appeal, which probably will be heard during the January session in Philadelphia.

County officials have expressed their opinion that the Town Hall site will come before the Commissioners who are to be chosen at the November election.

Before they can proceed with construction of the building, the County Commissioners will have to secure a change in the city's zoning laws as well as await the court's decision.

Munhall set about to remedy the situation and was granted permission by the State Health Department to pump from the section instead of using the proposed West Run system.

Loading Tobacco in Early Virginia

In 1612, John Rolfe, the husband of Pocohontas began the systematic planting of tobacco in Virginia. Within a few years, it became the greatest industry in the state. Before this, America exported little, but with the vast extent of tobacco cultivation, commerce with Europe began.

Those upon whom responsibility falls appreciate the personal interest we take in carrying out their wishes properly.

AVORITES WIN AT SOCCER

By TOM BIRKS

All of the favorites in the Pitts-gh Central Soccer League ne through last Saturday's bat- in fine style. The Union itch and Douglas elevens played nectic game to a tie, while the rman Sport Club and the green-d Celtics won as the dope in-ated.

as the weeks roll around, fans the East End district seem to assured that soccer is going to e its greatest season since the eption of the game in the pop-r Saturday league.

f course, there are three weak ms in the loop, but Westing-se, Tarentum and National e will probably strengthen re many days roll around.

n Saturday the big battle of day finds the Union Switch Signal battling the Celtics. nager Tom Edwards, with an to bolstering the gate receipts, taken the game to Sanders d, Aspinwall, and the move a good one.

he Rovers will invade Sullivan d Saturday to meet the Sport s, and this game should give Lawrenceville fans plenty to me enthused over. Bloomfield s also want to see soccer as it uld be played and might drop for a time and see the game.

he Rovers and German Sport two of the classiest exponents the kicking code in the Pitts-gh district, and there is a nce that these stylists might e the game very popular in omfield.

mpion has the National Tube m at the Westinghouse High ool Stadium, and the Clans-n should have little difficulty ning that game.

he introduction of Marshall to y inside right for the Switch ms to be a good move for Jack mpbell. Nelson now has two ex-ienced players making open-s for him, and he should get s of goals.

GRANT STORES SHOW GROWTH

During the first nine months of this year the W. T. Grant Company, with a store at 6025 Penn avenue, has added 165 young men to its training list, from which future managers and field executives will be selected.

These men have been selected from 26 states, with 17 from Pennsylvania.

During this year the company also will have added nearly 70 stores. It is the company's practice to promote only from within the organization.

OHIOANS PLAY OLYMPICS

With no conference games scheduled this week for East End followers of the independent gridiron to become enthused over, the McKeesport Olympics tilt with the Akron Awnings, scheduled for Sunday at Olympic Park, will be the attraction for the fans.

For four long years the Olympics have been battling the big Akron professional club, and for four years the locals have finished on the short end.

Playing on a split basis, the Tube City club is cut to the bone in the matter of players. Only 13 men made the trip to Bridgeville and two of them were injured. Akron comes with 20 players, all seemingly equally capable, and this is a big advantage when the going gets tough.

The Olympic tackles, Highberger and Kaletz, have been the backbone of the club in the early season games, but Kaletz went out of the game last Sunday with a broken finger, and this means Boyer will have to get a good tackle to team up with the former Carnegie Tech star.

The other big East End club, Linwood, helped its cause by holding East Liverpool to a tie game at the pottery town last Sunday. Now the East End club is making overtures to get into the big conference, and to play its home games at Sanders Field under the lights. There is a chance that the other managers will lend a responsive ear.
